Post-Election Brawl Results In 2 Injured

Fairfax Administrator Winds Up In Hospital

By NELS JOHNSON

Fairfax Town Administrator Robert E. Crowe was hospitalized early today with head cuts and contusions after he armed himself with a double-bladed axe and grappled with another man in a city street.

Crowe, 37, was reported in good condition today in Marin General Hospital following the brawl at 12:56 a.m. in the street fronting 34 Meadow Way. The other man, Kenneth M. Davidson, 19, of 17 Meadow Way, was treated for a deep cut in the lower back.

"After being challenged to fight, and reportedly threatened, suspect (Crowe) reportedly struck the victim in the back with a double-bladed ax, either prior to or immediately after being struck with a one quart beer bottle," Fairfax police wrote in their report.

Police said both men had been drinking and may have been intoxicated.

Police said no arrest has been made in the case, pending an

Gas Lines Not So Long Today

By MARY LEYDECKER

As Marin County prepares to go to a voluntary odd-even gasoline sales plan next Monday, motorists today found waiting lines at service stations somewhat shorter than yesterday and Monday.

The ease was possibly due a midweek easing of the gasoline crunch or additional March supplies of fuel arriving at stations.

Next week, the Marin Board of Supervisors and the Marin County Independent Service Station Operators Association agreed yesterday, the so-called "Oregon plan" will go into effect on trial.

The plan, which will not include penalties for violators, will be tried through April 15, with a review and possible modifications set for April 1.

Nixon Vetoes Energy Act As Regressive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon vetoed the energy emergency act today, charging that the measure would "undo the progress we have already made" and force gasoline rationing on the nation.

"The amendments, counter amendments and parliamentary puzzles which have marked the stumbling route of this bill through the Congress must make Americans wonder what has been going on in Washington while they confront their own very real problems," the President said.

Nixon had announced last week, even before the House gave final approval to the bill, that he would veto it, partly because of a provision calling

Supervisors Approve Exhibition Hall Plans

Preliminary plans for a new flat-door exhibition hall at the county fairgrounds were approved yesterday by Marin County supervisors who voted 3 to 2 to proceed with detailed architectural drawings. (Other supervisors stories, page 38.)

The board's vote to proceed with drawings was conditioned on the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation architects meeting one more time with interested groups which have not reviewed the preliminary plans.

That meeting is slated for Monday at 10 a.m. at the civic center. The board authorized the architects to begin their detailed drawings if no substantial objection is raised Monday.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., noting that meetings already have been held with local groups, voted against the motion, saying there should be no further delay.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere also voted against it, saying approval should come after the group meeting so supervisors can hear any objec-

Cooperation Pledged To Impeachers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's Watergate attorney said today the President is willing to turn over extensive material to House impeachment investigators and is prepared to answer both written and oral questions if necessary.

Attorney James D. St. Clair, however, quickly opposed a suggestion by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica that the House Judiciary Committee put off its proceedings until after completion of Watergate cover-up trials which he said would begin in September.

St. Clair told Sirica: "The President would not be in favor of delaying the impeachment proceedings."

As for turning over the sealed grand jury report, St. Clair said that whatever Sirica decided would be acceptable to the President.

St. Clair's disclosure of Nixon's readiness to cooperate with the House committee came early in a public hearing called by Sirica to help him decide what to do with a sealed Watergate grand jury report and a briefcase of other secret material submitted with it.

St. Clair told Sirica he had been "authorized and directed by the President" to pledge Nixon's cooperation with the committee inquiry.

"The President is prepared to turn over to the House committee all the materials he has turned over to the grand jury without limitation and to answer all written interrogatories and participate in oral interviews if it is deemed necessary," the President's attorney declared.

As for the secret report given Sirica on the same day the grand jury indicted seven former aides and associates of Nixon's, St. Clair said the President was making no recommendations to the judge on whether he should turn over the report to the House panel.

John Doar, special counsel for the impeachment inquiry, formally requested that the report and the briefcase of material be turned over to the committee.

The material is said to outline the grand jury's views on how Nixon handled the scandal.

Expressing concern about defendants' right to a fair trial, Sirica asked Doar whether the committee had "thought about the advisability or feasibility of delaying this matter until after this cover-up trial."

Doar replied that the committee had not considered any postponement. The committee has set an April 30 target date for making a recommendation on impeachment.

Sirica then asked: "Don't you think it (the committee) ought to think about it?"

Doar said he could not speak

Incumbents Do Poorly In Municipal Voting

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH — After long months of campaigning and the fever pitch of preelection days, the adults may still have the energy to toast, tipple and talk. But the little people, like Abby Burton and Tiger Paws, engage in more sensible pursuits. Abby, the daughter of Mill Valley Councilman Robert Burton and Tiger, the cat of Ivan Poutiatine, had a pajama party of yesterday — sans pajamas — in the midst of a celebration in honor of Poutiatine's election to the Mill Valley Council. (More election photos, see page 38.)

9 Of 19 Defeated In Election Bids

City council upheavals in Fairfax and Sausalito and a general buffeting for incumbents highlighted yesterday's elections in 12 Marin and Southern Sonoma cities.

While filling 28 council seats, voters refused to return to office 10 of the 19 incumbents on the ballot — the heaviest toll in recent years.

Antidevelopment forces gained ground in Corte Madera and Fairfax, but Novato and Cotati voters chose moderately pro-commerce candidates over growth control advocates.

Fairfax voters turned down reelection bids by Councilmen Robert R. Souza and Lee Nelder and put challengers Priscilla C. Gray and Randall L. Garrison in their seats. Incumbent Frank J. Egger managed to keep his council post.

Mrs. Gray led the field with 1,141 votes; Egger came in second with 1,123 ballots and Garrison was third with 1,071. Souza, with 598 votes, and Nelder, with 572, finished at the bottom of the heap, behind Alfred J. Daubenfeld who received 733 ballots.

(The Fairfax election outcome was complicated by last week's announcement by Mayor E. Ross Parkerson that he is resigning. The town council will have to decide whether to fill the seat with a runner-up in the election or call a special election.)

In Sausalito, the defeat of incumbent Stephen A. Fraser and veteran Earl F. Dunphy was coupled with victory for Planning Commissioner Violeta Autumn and attorney Leonard F. Rappa.

The result is that Sausalito will have the first female majority in the history of Marin County city councils — and possibly in state political annals — when Mrs. Autumn is sworn in to sit beside Mayor Robin Sweeny and Councilman Sally Stanford.

Mrs. Autumn was the top vote getter, with 1,273; Rappa captured 1,071. Dunphy came in third with 835 ballots and Fraser was fifth with 369, trailing another challenger, W. Daniel O'Connor, 623.

Meanwhile, Corte Madera voters had a change of heart and ousted Albert A. Kostelic, whom they had elected to the council only two months ago. Giving Kostelic 1,398 votes, they installed in his place by 159 votes Larry P. Weingarth, who had been turned down in his council bid in the special council election in December.

Incumbents Jana Haehl and Joel A. Shawn, who swept to victory in December, were reelected with 1,641 and 1,709 votes respectively.

Novato, Mill Valley, Cotati and Rohnert Park each lost one incumbent in the election day shuffle.

F. Wayne Sartain took 2,665 votes, but failed to win a second four-year term on the Novato City Council, bowing before Planning Commissioner Gail M. Wilhelm, 2,711 votes, and David E. Milano, 2,724. Design engineer Edward A. Brooks Jr., with 1,151 votes, lost in his first

NIXON MEETING THE PRESS AGAIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon was to hold a news conference at 4:30 p.m. today, his second in eight days, a White House spokesman announced.

It was to be broadcast nationally on television and radio.

Transit District Decides Against June Tax Ballot

The staff of the Marin County Transit District has decided not to put a measure on the ballot in June that could allow the county to increase greatly the amount of money available for transit.

Robert L. Harrison, assistant general manager for the district, told the Independent-Journal today that the staff's decision had the backing of "possibly two or three" of the seven directors of the district. He said he "could not remember" which of the seven he had told about the matter, but said Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini was one of them.

The matter was not discussed at yesterday's meeting of the district directors. Today is the deadline to get local measures on the June ballot.

The local measure would have allowed the county to use gasoline tax revenue for transit immediately if a statewide proposition passes on the same ballot. The statewide measure, Proposition 5, would allow diversion of the tax revenue to transit, but only if approved in separate elections in each county.

Harrison said the state proposition imposed too many restrictions on how the money could be used to be useful at present in Marin. It may appear on a future ballot when transit planning is expanded, he said.

The proposition would permit use of the tax revenue to build "exclusive public mass transit guideways" and related fixed facilities such as stations, but exclude maintenance and operating costs and purchase of transit vehicles.

The county of Marin and its cities got almost $3 million in gasoline tax revenues last year. Under the state constitution, however, these revenues can be used only for road purposes even if Proposition 5, amending the constitution, passes.

Lagomarsino Wins; Ohio Demo Victory

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Democrat Tom Luken captured an Ohio congressional seat that slipped out of the Republican grasp only three other times in a century but a Republican outpolled the combined total of seven Democrats to keep a California House seat in GOP hands yesterday.

Democrats hailed Luken's victory in the Cincinnati area as further proof that a Democratic landslide victory is in the offing in the fall national elections because of Republican Watergate troubles.

Republicans conceded that Watergate in general, together with President Nixon's low popularity, played a major part in Luken's victory but expressed delight over Robert J. Lagomarsino's win in California's 13th District —even though he disclaimed it as any party victory. The seat was left vacant due to the recent death of Republican Rep. Charles M. Teague.

Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss said Luken's victory, the Democrats' third in recent weeks in House districts that Republicans had held for 25 years or more, showed that voters were turning more and more to the

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Selassie's Plan To End Turmoil

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie, his kingdom in turmoil, announced plans last night for a constitutional convention expected to replace his virtually absolute rule with a new system of limited monarchy.

Selassie

"He has gone as near to abdication as possible without actually stepping down," one British diplomat said after Selassie, the world's longest-ruling monarch, announced his plans in a nationwide television speech.

The 81-year-old emperor said, "I am convinced of the necessity that the people should be involved in the decision-making process."

The emperor said the envisioned reforms would make the prime minister responsible to parliament, guarantee civil rights and reorganize the court system.

Denies Orders

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes yesterday denied that he gave any orders that resulted in national guardsmen using live ammunition when they fired on Kent State University students, killing four.

Rhodes, who spoke to newsmen after testifying, was the last of more than 150 witnesses to be questioned by a federal grand jury in the last three months in connection with the deaths of the four and the wounding of nine others May 4, 1970, during an anti-war demonstration.

Terrorist Bombs

BELFAST (UPI) — Terrorists set off bombs across Northern Ireland yesterday, striking at stores, a housing complex, a newspaper office and a hotel. Seventeen persons were hurt.

Fire bombs went off in a shoe store, a pharmacy and a furniture store in downtown Belfast during the evening rush hour, injuring eight persons and sending black smoke billowing over the city.

Reform Package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, whose supporters raised an estimated $60 million for his reelection campaign in 1972, is preparing a federal campaign reform package which will limit contributions candidates can accept but would not involve public financing.

A high ranking White House official said yesterday that the President's proposed legislation, which would also limit the duration of campaigns, would be presented to Congress Friday.

It would run head on into a Senate proposal which would fully finance presidential elections with federal funds, underwrite Senate and House elections and help finance primary campaigns.

Hits Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO president George Meany, accusing President Nixon of making a mess of the economy, today asked Congress to let the administration's wage-price control authority expire April 30 "without any ifs, ands or buts."

"We are here to ask the Congress not to give this administration the legislative authority to further wreck the American economy," Meany said in testimony prepared for a Senate Banking subcommittee hearing.

"Two and one-half years of experience under this program are enough," Meany said. "It has failed miserably in its stated aim of curbing inflation. It has been unfair, inequitable and unbalanced. It is a fraud and deception. . ."

Returning Bodies

UTAPAO AIR BASE, Thailand (UPI) — An American transport plane left Hanoi today carrying the bodies of 12 U.S. servicemen who died in captivity during the Indochina War.

Military spokesmen here said the craft with the remains departed from Hanoi's Gia Lam airport in midafternoon, following a brief ceremony.

The remains of the men, who died in the "Hanoi Hilton" prison camp, will be flown back to Utapao and then to Samaesan, Thailand, for identification.

$300,000 Tax?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional committee will find that President Nixon owes back taxes, but the White House is cooperating fully in the committee investigation, according to Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.

Sources close to the committee say the Nixon tax bill is likely to amount to more than $300,000.

Long, chairman of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, yesterday repeated his assertion that "the President will owe some additional tax," but he refused to confirm or deny the $300,000-plus figure.

Coal Talks

LONDON (UPI) — Union leaders and state Coal Board chiefs met today for the first time in more than four months to seek a swift end to the coal strike which has crippled British industry.

Mineworkers Union President Joe Gormly said "I hope we can finalize an agreement by tonight and perhaps resume work Monday. I am very optimistic."

Government officials said Coal Board negotiators were under orders from Prime Minister Harold Wilson to settle quickly for the best terms they could get.

Sol Hurok Dead Of Heart Attack

SOL HUROK
Artistic ambassador

NEW YORK (UPI) — Impresario Sol Hurok, America's "artistic ambassador," who introduced the Bolshoi Ballet to America and took pianist Van Cliburn to Russia, died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 85.

Hurok, who never retired, was stricken while in the office of banker David Rockefeller, a long-time friend. He was pronounced dead a short time later at a hospital. Earlier he had had lunch with Andres Segovia, the Spanish classical guitarist.

Hurok used to say, "So long as you dance and sing together, there is no bloodshed." He sent American performers on triumphal round-the-world tours and brought cultural talent from Europe and the Far East to the United States.

He presented more than 1,800 performers during his career. The list reads like a roster of the world's leading musicians, dancers and singers in the 20th Century: Anna Pavlova, Isadora Duncan, Marian Anderson, Arthur Rubinstein, Roberta Peters, Isaac Stern, Jan Peerce, Van Cliburn, Margot Fonteyn, and many others.

As a measure of his fame, he often took marquee billing over artists, with the legend "S. Hurok Presents."

His last big promotion was the return U.S. tour of soprano Maria Callas, who appeared in New York City last night.

Hurok was probably best known for his promotion of cultural exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union, including the Bolshoi Ballet.

He gambled his own money on first bringing over the Bolshoi in 1959, but was the envy of the business and cultural worlds when he reaped a handsome profit from the effort. He defended the U.S.-Soviet cultural such exchanges as "a silk thread that brings people and people together."

His shows have also included the Kiroi and Moiseyev ballets from the Soviet Union; the British Royal Ballet; the famed Old Vic theater company of London and the London Rozal Ballet, and the Danish Royal Ballet.

Hurok, who lived on Manhattan's East Side, was twice married and separated from his second wife, Emma, and also is survived by a daughter, Ruth.

Recall Of Chryslers Is Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) ordered Chrysler Corp. today to recall 825,000 1973 model passenger cars—about half of its total output—to correct a defect in the air pollution control system.

The action also affected 1,000 1974 model trucks, bringing the total recall to 826,000 vehicle.

In the first large scale recall ordered by the EPA, Administrator Russell E. Train said that "virtually all" the cars would emit nitrogen oxides "considerably above the federal emission standard."

The defect cited by the EPA is a temperature sensing device that activates an exhaust gas recirculation system designed to reduce nitrogen oxide emissions.

Under the EPA order, Chrysler must submit a recall plan within 30 days. The recall procedure also requires the manufacturer to pay the costs of fixing the defect.

Chrysler may appeal the order within 10 days and receive a public hearing under the Clean Air Act of 1970.

Lost Balloonist Reward Offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Relatives of Army Reserve Col. Thomas L. Gatch are offering a $10,000 reward for the recovery alive of the balloonist, who has been missing since Feb. 21.

Gatch took off from Harrisburg, Pa., on Feb. 18, in an attempt to make the first manned balloon crossing of the Atlantic Ocean. The last reported sighting of his balloon craft, "Light Heart," was Feb. 21, by a Liberian-registered freighter about 1,000 miles west of the Canary Islands.

Gun Blast Precedes Indictment

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — District Attorney Robert W. Duggan, husband of an heiress to the Mellon fortune, died yesterday of a shotgun wound just hours before he was indicted by a federal grand jury for income tax evasion.

A coronor's report may determine whether he was killed accidentally or committed suicide.

The body of Duggan, 48, who married Cordelia Scaife May last summer, was found yesterday about 75 feet from his summer home, Lochnoc Farm, an estate he owned in the Laurel Highlands near Ligonier.

Duggan was indicted by a federal grand jury less than two hours after his body was found by a gardener, police said.

In its indictment, the federal grand jury accused Duggan of reporting only $433,473 of an actual income of $570,889 during the years 1967 through 1970, and with paying $255,492 of $348,498 in actual taxes due. He was serving an unprecedented third term as Allegheny County district attorney.

The grand jury said the source of Duggan's allegedly unreported income was "protection" payments collected from racketeers.

Israel Believes Syrians Are Planning New Attack

TEL AVIV (UPI) -- The Israeli national radio said today intelligence information indicated Syria was planning an attack to try to recapture the salient taken by Israeli forces in the October war and that this led to a reconciliation of Prime Minister Golda Meir and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

Israeli newspapers and radio reports spoke of heightened tension on the Golan Heights front and Syrian troop buildups led to the sudden change of mind by Mrs. Meir to scrap all other political considerations and form a new government.

Transport Minister Shimon Peres said the change in the security situation prompted him and Dayan to change their stands and to join Mrs. Meir's new government. They had pledged to stay out unless a national unity government was set up.

Peres said after the Egyptian and Syrian surprise attacks in October, Israel was taking no chances.

"Israel had intelligence information that the Syrians were planning aggressive action," the national radio's mulitary correspondent said, apparently from information based on a military briefing. Israeli forces captured 325 square miles of Syrian territory in the war.

"Such an action could be an attempt to recapture the salient captured by Israeli troops in the Yom Kippur war," the correspondent said. "The purpose of this would be to create military pressure to influence diplomatic activity now going on.

"In any case, Syrian troops are so deployed on the ground as to enable them to attack at any time."

"After what happened on Yom Kippur, I think that every Israeli must accept every piece of information in its most grave and serious dimension," Peres said in a radio interview. "We have learned our lesson once.

"It is better that we see the worst premonitions dispelled than react frivolously to such possibilities."

The Israeli national radio said Dayan decided to join the government because of "a redeployment of Syrian troops" necessitating "quick action."

The Israeli newspaper Davar, quoting foreign press reports, said some elements in Syria's ruling Baath party apparently were seeking to foment tension out of unhappiness with strides toward peace worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"It has become known that a great deal of tension exists on the line with Syria," the newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said.

Auerbach, Cullen Elected As Belvedere Councilmen

A Belvedere planning commissioner and a city fire commissioner were elected to the city council yesterday, winning over four other challengers.

Voters chose Charles E. Auerbach, planning commissioner and former parks and recreation commissioner, and Dr. Stuart C. Cullen, a member of the Belvedere Fire Commission and the city open space commission.

Auerbach received the most votes — 521 — while Cullen narrowly defeated Sherry C. Levit, a parks and recreation commissioner, by 15 votes. Cullen, in his second try for the council, polled 322 votes to Mrs. Levit's 307.

Other candidates and their votes were William H. Rafter, a planning commissioner, 272; William E. Steen, owner of a chain of men's clothing stores, 267, and Barbara Egoian, a real estate woman, 69.

Despite her defeat, the 31-year-old Mrs. Levit appeared headed for a seat on the council vacated by the surprise resignation of Councilman Merritt K. Ruddock on Monday. When it learned of his resignation, the council recommended that the newly elected council choose the third place finisher in yesterday's election as Ruddock's successor.

Auerbach, 52, is a chemical engineer at the Standard Oil Co. refinery in Richmond. He said he believed that voters chose him because of his technical background "which can provide an analytical approach to some of the city's problems."

He also attributed his victory to a hard campaign of doorbell ringing and personal contact with voters. "That was a very important factor," he said.

Auerbach had proposed that Belvedere and Tiburon join together to purchase all or part of the Southern Pacific Railroad lands in downtown Tiburon to save at least part of the property from development.

Cullen, 65, did not think a joint venture to buy the railroad land was possible, but thought Belvedere should continue to object to proposed plans for downtown Tiburon because of the density of development and the traffic it would generate.

The county elections office said the 57.2 per cent of Belvedere's 938 registered voters went to the polls.

Sewage Plan Financing Is Defeated

Despite threats that property owners with failing septic tanks eventually could be evicted from their homes, Stinson Beach voters yesterday turned thumbs down on measures to finance a sewage disposal system for the community.

Residents, who three years ago ousted three Stinson Beach County Water District directors who had proposed a waste treatment system, proved that their ideas have not changed appreciably.

They yesterday rejected plans to increase the district's maximum property tax rate by 20 cents and to borrow $1.85 million from the state.

Both proposals were needed to pay Stinson Beach's share of a $2.5 million sewerage project, including a treatment plant and sewer lines for almost all areas of the district, with the exception of the Seadrift area.

The vote was 146 in favor of the tax hike and loan application and 205 opposed. Passage would have required a majority "yes" vote. A total of 351 of the district's 474 eligible voters went to the polls.

Proponents of the disposal system said it was the best and cheapest way to deal with the problem of septic tank pollution in the community. Opponents argued that the system would result in a population boom of up to 200 per cent in the seaside town.

Those who opposed the project proposed instead a septic tank district which they claim would make it possible to correct failing tanks and maintain others in good order.

Architects for the Wright Foundation estimated the cost of the new building at $1.2 million, without furnishings, equipment, or landscaping.

Options, such as an acoustical tile ceiling and concrete instead of asphalt floor, could push the cost up to $1.5 million, they said.

The building, long sought by local civic and cultural groups which have found the Veterans Memorial Building too expensive or not suited for their events, includes the exhibition hall, a meeting hall, a meeting room and screened projection area, and offices, storage and restrooms.

The exhibition hall will total about 24,500 square feet, enough room for 30 to 40 boat exhibits, 60 to 80 automobile exhibits or 140 conventional trade booths.

One of the options to be considered is a movable wall or curtain to allow multiple use of the hall.

The meeting hall totals 4,000 square feet of floor space with movable partitions. Fully opened, it could handle more than 450 persons or be transformed into nine 17-by-20-foot meeting rooms. Banquets could be staged for more than 350 persons.

The meeting room is proposed to total 2,900 square feet of floor space, or enough room to seat 275 persons. It would double as an audio-visual theater for films and slides.

While Arrigoni voted against the motion, he endorsed the building design and urged the board to go "first cabin" with necessary options "to avoid the problems which have occurred at the auditorium. I hope we don't try skimping. . ."

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella, who urged swift approval of the plans, said the county has about $1.1 million budgeted for the building.

Fair Mgr. Marcella McCoy raised the lone question about the plan yesterday, suggesting the board consider building only half the exhibition hall now because the greatest demand appears to be for a 10,000 square foot hall.

Jean Knox of the Marin Civic Ballet Association said her group had not seen the preliminary plans and requested the meeting with the architects.

Bright Energy Picture Seen By Oil Leader

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The United States could be energy self-sufficient by 1980, according to the president of one of the world's largest offshore oil drilling companies, but only if the government keeps its hands off the industry.

Alden J. LaBorde, president of Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co., said yesterday the government's price controls and allocation programs are causing long lines at service stations.

"The government is almost insuring that we are going to have a shortage for a long time to come," LaBorde said.

La Borde said if controls are lifted, gasoline would rise to 75-80 cents a gallon but it would encourage domestic production and prices eventually would come down.

Building Design Is Turned Down

The design of an office building proposed for Miller Avenue was rejected last night by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee.

According to Robert J. Hanna, associate planner, the committee said the two-story building designed for 275 Miller Avenue by developer John Warsen would be too massive for the site and the proposed Victorian facade unacceptable.

Warsen's representatives asked that it be denied immediately so they could appeal the decision to the planning commission.

Attack On Nazi Results In San Francisco Arrest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Jewish Defense League member was arrested yesterday at a Board of Education hearing on integration after a swastika-wearing member of the National Socialist White People's Party was attacked.

Police said Roger Pavlov, 19, was being held for a battery investigation.

Alan Vincent, Bay Area commander of the NSWPP, suffered a bruised rib in the scuffle, which followed his declaration from the podium that most San Franciscans don't want racially integrated schools.

"Nobody can trample on the will of the majority," Vincent had said.

Patrolmen quoted Pavlov as saying, "Those ——made lampshades out of my people."

Board members voted approval of a modified integration plan extending from kindergarten through the 10th grade in September. Grades 11 and 12 are to be integrated in the next two years.

Under the plan, a school grade with between 10 per cent and 40 per cent black students would be considered integrated.

Implementation was left to the school staff.

CROWE

investigation and consultation with Marin County District Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

The episode unfolded just a block away from the home of Fairfax Councilman Frank J. Egger, who was celebrating re-election to the city council as the pair fought outside.

Police said a number of onlookers witnessed the event or portions of it, including Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni and Fairfax Councilman Albert E. Gately, arriving together to attend Egger's victory party.

Gately, astonished by the scene, said he rolled down his car window and declared "What the hell are you damn fools doing?"

Gately said he jumped from his car and broke up the fight, taking the axe both men were struggling over.

"I wasn't there when it started. I don't know what it was over," Gately said. The councilman declined comment on whether Crowe will continue in his post as city administrator.

Police, in a lengthy report, gave this account of the incident:

Crowe and Roberta Laidley of 34 Meadow Way arrived at the Laidley residence about 12:30 a.m. after attending a party at the home of Fairfax Councilman Robert R. Souza, defeated in a bid for reelection yesterday.

They discovered that someone had put a "for sale" sign in the Laidley yard and Mrs. Laidley, believing the sign to be a prank of partygoers at the Egger home, tossed it over Egger's fence at 13 Meadow Way.

Davidson, attending Egger's party, followed Mrs. Laidley back to 34 Meadow Way shouting obscenities at her and then at Crowe, the city administrator told police from his hospital bed this morning. Crowe grabbed a long handled axe and, after being challenged, walked into the street to meet Davidson, who held a beer bottle.

Crowe told officers he ordered Davidson to leave the residence and that Davidson smashed a beer bottle over his head. He told police that he did not swing the axe he held, and that Davidson was probably cut when they grappled.

Davidson's version is different, according to the report:

"Prior to being transported to Marin General Hospital, Davidson advised that he had gone to 34 Meadow Way to challenge Mr. Crowe to fight him, and that after calling Mr. Crowe out to fight, Crowe appeared armed with an axe, and swung it striking him in the back. At this point, Davidson advised (that) to defend himself, he struck Crowe with a beer bottle breaking it over his head."

Police said they were first summoned to the scene by Crowe. "I've been hit with a beer bottle, a kid just broke a beer bottle over my head," police quoted Crowe as declaring over the phone.

Officers arrived to find a large crowd in the street and approached Crowe after several citizens brought Davidson to a patrol car.

Crowe, who suffered a severe blow on the head and was bleeding profusely, declined to make a statement at the scene, saying he wanted to speak off the record, according to police.

The city administrator was taken to Marin General Hospital by Police Chief Charles A. Grasso, and gave officers his account of events at 5:30 a.m. this morning.

"On advice of the district attorney's office, no arrests have been made at this time pending completion of the investigation and further questioning of witnesses," according to Police Lt. Andy Grimes.

ENERGY

for crude oil price rollbacks.

The Senate approved the compromise measure by a margin of better than 2 to 1, and supporters of the bill said they felt they had a chance of getting the necessary two-thirds Senate vote to override the veto. Congressional observers doubted a two-thirds majority could be mustered in the House.

Nixon sent a special message to Congress explaining reasons for his veto. He raised several specific objections.

Referring to the rollbacks, he said this would set domestic crude oil prices at such low levels that production would be discouraged and compulsory gasoline rationing would be likely.

Rationing, which he has consistently opposed, would cost $1.5 billion a year and a bureaucracy of 17,000 people to administer, Nixon said.

The President also contended that the legislation would establish "an unworkable and inequitable program" of unemployment subsistence, saddling the government with the task of determining whether the unemployment of each jobless worker was energy related.

Nixon said there was "no excuse for shoveling out the taxpayers' money" under vague and arbitrary standards.

NIXON

for the committee on that question.

"What harm can be done by, say, waiting until this case has been tried?" the judge asked.

St. Clair's announcement of Nixon's willingness to submit to the House panel materials he has previously submitted to the Watergate grand jury apparently took the edge off a prospective confrontation.

The Judiciary Committee members had been showing signs of impatience over absence of a reply from St. Clair to a request for Watergate materials.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., threatened to raise the question of whether a subpoena should be issued on the President at a meeting tomorrow.

Although Rodino and ranking GOP member Edward Hutchinson of Michigan share subpoena power, a vote of the 38-member committee is required if the two disagree on whether to issue one.

Hutchinson said yesterday he would not go along with a subpoena to the White House and that "a confrontation must be avoided because a confrontation won't solve anything."

try for public office.

Sartain, like Mrs. Wilhelm, had compaigned to "maintain the semirural character of Novato," while Milano, the top vote-getter, favored growth control but was more pro-business than the others.

Face-to-face contact with voters seemed to turn the trick for one Mill Valley council candidate, Ivan S. Poutiatine, who captured the seat of incumbent Edward J. Boessenecker. Boessenecker who trailed both Poutiatine, and candidate Gregory C. Dyer, blamed his defeat on the fact he had not followed their lead in campaigning door-to-door.

Mayor Jean Barnard won handily, with 1,962 votes to Poutiatine's 1,662, Dyer's 1,218 and Boessenecker's 1,214.

In Rohnert Park, Mayor Armando F. Flores received 809 votes, enough needed to keep his seat. But David L. Eck, with 928 ballots, beat out a 746-vote reelection try by incumbent Arthur N. Roberts.

Cotati City Councilman Laura Washburn, appointed to the council in September, found her career in city government cut short last night. She lost to challenger Allen C. Stansbury, who had 247 votes to her 100. Harry E. Fassio kept his council post with 273 ballots and challenger Patrick H. Corrigan ran third with 100 votes.

Incumbents emerged unscathed in Larkspur, Ross and San Anselmo.

San Anselmo residents returned incumbent Woodrow V. Capurro to office and elected John H. Colteaux and Pieter Toal to vacant council seats. Votes for the winning candidates were: Colteaux, 1,638; Capurro, 1,418, and Toal, 1,366.

In Larkspur, Mayor Alfred J. Malvino was reelected with 1,324 votes. Planning Commissioner Charles H. Curley, with 1,585 ballots came in first. The loser in the contest was housewife Joi Losee with 588 votes.

There were no surprises in Ross as incumbents Mayor Frederick S. Allen (496 votes) and Roy Farrington Jones (382) were eased back into office, defeating a council bid by James R. Drimmel (248 votes).

Two cities, Belvedere and Tiburon, had no incumbents on the ballot. Tiburon elected George L. Ellman, E. Bruce Ross and Donald S. Tayer. The vote was Tayer, 1,092; Ross, 1,082, and Ellman, 1,074.

Dr. Stuart C. Cullen, a Belvedere fire commissioner, and Charles E. Auerbach, a planning commissioner won in that election, with 322 and 521 votes, respectively. Cullen was seriously challenged by Sherry C. Levit, parks and recreation commission chairman who took 307 votes, only 15 votes less than his total.

However, Mrs. Levit appears likely to get a council seat anyway to fill the vacancy created by the resignation Monday of Councilman Merritt K. Ruddock. The council is expected to appoint her to succeed Ruddock.

Voters in the Stinson Beach County Water District and in Petaluma didn't vote on council candidates, but did ballot on fiscal matters.

The West Marin Community turned down proposals to borrow state money and raise the property tax rate to finance a sewage treatment plant. The result is essentially to freeze development of the area, because the state Regional Water Quality Control Board has banned installing any new septic tanks in the area.

In Petaluma, voters gave the necessary two-thirds majority to a $750,000 bond issue for library construction, but a proposed $1.9 million bond issue for park sites and development fell barely short of the required two-thirds support.

Larkspur voters approved paying their councilmen $50 a meeting, to $150 a month maximum.

When it was all over, Larkspur's J. Malvino commented that many cities' voters had turned the election into a "Watergate" revenge. But defeated Sausalito Councilman Stephen A. Fraser charged that his city's voters hadn't learned "the lessons of Watergate" because they ousted him and fellow incumbent Earl F. Dunphy.

The vote was light to average for a cities-only election, ranging from a low turnout of 34.2 per cent in Larkspur to a high of 57.2 per cent in Belvedere and 53.2 per cent in Tiburon, where all the incumbents declined to run for reelection.

The election count went without a single hitch, according to Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections officer. All the ballots were gathered from the polling places and brought directly to the elections office in the Marin County Civic Center.

The unofficial computer count was completed before 11 p.m., less than three hours after the polls closed. It was the earliest finish in the county's history, Meyer reported.

GAS

cense plates may buy gasoline on odd-numbered days of the month, and those with even numbers on even numbered days. Personalized plates with no numbers will be considered odd. Saturdays will be "potluck" and Sundays, stations will be closed.

As the gasoline shortage continued, Marin residents were becoming more ingenious in obtaining supplies — either legally or illegally. There have been widespread reports of siphoning, and many gasoline dealers were suggesting that car owners purchase a spiral device which fits inside the top of the gas tank, and prevents a hose from being run into the tank.

These devices, which are relatively inexpensive, do not require a key.

In Lucas Valley yesterday afternoon, a resident confronted two teen-age boys trying to siphon gasoline from a neighbor's car. The boys dropped their can and sped off on a motorcycle but were found later at a house four blocks away.

The owner of the cycle, a 16-year-old San Anselmo youth, told a sheriff's deputy he "would gladly have bought gas" but couldn't find any and only needed a gallon to get home. The deputy took the boy to a gasoline station, arranged for a gallon of gasoline and sent the boy home.

Last night, thieves helped themselves to an undetermined amount of gasoline at a truck repair firm in Greenbrae.

Larkspur police said the burglars scaled a fence, broke into a building, turned on the power for the gasoline pump and then stole gasoline from Largent Truck Repairing firm at 45 East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

In some areas of the county, motorists have taken to leaving their cars outside gasoline stations overnight, arriving again just before opening time. Early-birds still wearing their pajamas also have been spotted.

Elsewhere in the state, Energy Coordinator Wesley Bruer said today that mandatory odd-even gasoline sales limitations probably will spread to more counties and will remain in effect at least until early summer.

The Reagan administration's top energy official also said the earliest the mandatory program could be lifted would be June, depending on when and if the Arab nations stop their oil embargo.

In San Francisco today, the chairman of Standard Oil Co. disclosed in an interview with the Wall Street Journal that the company expects record earnings this year.

He said the company's gasoline stocks were up 13 per cent from last year but added that "we are building stocks for increased summer demand and are planning ahead for the closing of some units for necessary maintenance."

H. J. Haynes, chairman of the board of the company, also predicted gasoline rationing unless the Arab oil embargo ends within two months.

VOTING

Democrats because of "Republican failure to come to grips with the serious problems of this nation."

In California, Democrats sought to link Lagomarsino to the President as well as his two top former aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, who were indicted by the Watergate grand jury Friday.

Lagomarsino said his foes made "a serious error" and that voters in the district rejected their arguments. At the same time, he refused to commit himself to support of Nixon in any impeachment proceeding, saying he would let the evidence determine his decision.

Lagomarsino declared that his win "was not a victory for the Republican party as such," but showed that "a Republican can win under the right circumstances."

Luken polled 57,171 votes to Gradison's 51,057, in unofficial final returns in the Ohio 1st District.

With all but 2 per cent of the votes tallied unofficially in California's 13th District, Lagomarsino had better than 53 per cent, a comfortable cushion in a race where 50 per cent was needed to avoid a runoff. Lagomarsino had almost three times as many votes as his closest pursuer.

Spires was a retired assistant director for inspection services in the state Department of Agriculture.

He was born in Pennsylvania but had lived in California many years. He made his home in Tiburon from 1950 to 1957 before moving to Sacramento.

While in Marin, he served on the Richardson Bay Sanitary District board, worked with Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts, was a member of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur and belonged to two Marin folk dance groups.

He was a member of the California State Employees Association, the Retired Public Employees Association and the California Alumni Association.

Survivors include his wife, Muriel; a son, Scott Spires of Soquel, Santa Cruz County; a daughter, Priscilla Wegars of Oakland; three brothers, John Spires of Napa, Blair Spires of Oakley, Contra Costa County, and Frank Spires of Sun City, Ariz.; three sisters, Myrtle McGlamery of Anderson, Shasta County; Mildred Smith of Seal Beach, Orange County, and Sara Spires of Walnut Creek, and three grandchildren.

IRENE McFADYEN

Funeral for Irene S. McFadyen of Sunnyvale, mother of William S. McFadyen of Mill Valley, was held today in Santa Clara.

Mrs. McFadyen, 80, died Monday in Sunnyvale.

A native of Hancock, Minn., she taught school for 45 years in Southern California. She had lived in Sunnyvale for the past eight years.

In addition to her son in Mill Valley, she is survived by two other sons, Thomas M. McFadyen and John J. McFadyen, both of Santa Clara; a daughter, Mary Steel of New York, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Glendale.

JACK FOSTER

Jack S. Foster, 67, an employee of the Silveira Ranch, north of Novato, was discovered dead yesterday on the ranch, apparently of natural causes.

Foster went out on horseback at 12:30 p.m. and his horse, with broken reins, returned without him at 5:30 p.m., the coroner's office reported.

His wife, Betty, then searched and discovered him lying unconscious in a valley, a mile and a quarter west of Highway 101. He was dead when a coroner's deputy arrived.

There wasn't any evidence of a struggle, nor any apparent external injuries and the horse he was riding reportedly was very gentle, the coroner's office reported.

Foster had been employed by the ranch about four years. Funeral arrangements were pending today at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato.

Kostelic Beaten In Corte Madera

Voters yesterday tipped the Corte Madera Town Council balance even more heavily against the proposed Hahn shopping center project.

One pro-center councilman was ousted from the seat he won only last December, and three anticenter councilmen were elected.

Councilman Albert A. Kostelic lost his seat by finishing fourth in the five-candidate race. Replacing him on the council was Larry P. Weingarth who placed fourth among 10 candidates in December when voters filled the three seats from which they earlier had recalled progrowth councilmen.

The unofficial tally reported last night by the county elections office was:

Incumbent Councilman Joel A. Shawn, 1,709 votes; incumbent Jana Haehl, 1,641 votes; Weingarth, 1,557 votes; Kostelic, 1,398 votes, and John Charter Reed II, 141 votes.

LARRY P. WEINGARTH

Reed withdrew from the race too late to remove his name from the ballot, and threw his support to Weingarth. He had placed ninth in the 10-man December race.

Mrs. Haehl predicted before the election that Corte Madera voters were tired by three elections in five months and would turn out only sparsely — but she erred. Yesterday, 52.6 per cent of the city's 4,920 registered voters cast ballots, compared with 48 per cent at the December election and 56 per cent at the recall vote in September.

The three winners shouted their jubilant reactions to a telephoning Independent-Journal reporter last night, above the cheers and hubbub of a joint victory party in a Paradise Drive restaurant. About 100 persons were celebrating.

"We didn't run as a slate, we ran individually on our merits," said Weingarth. "I'm ecstatic. I knew I had an uphill fight, not being on the council."

He, Mrs. Haehl and Shawn agreed that the three council winners "want to be open to the public, to look forward to participatory democracy."

Throughout the campaigns leading up to last year's recall of Councilmen Holmes S. Norville, Edward W. Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, anti-center factions complained that the then council didn't heed the citizens' wishes.

A Windfall Of Gasoline Found

THOUSAND OAKS (UPI) — Clarence K. Scott, a service station operator, discovered yesterday he has 45,000 gallons of gasoline he didn't know about.

Scott's station is in Lake Lindero, but he leases a station here which was closed three months ago, when he took over the lease, and he never reopened it.

But an Exxon Oil Co. spokesman said "to our knowledge he has been open and our supplier made deliveries to the station in good faith." After discovering the 45,000 gallons of gasoline—the station's allotment for January, February and March—stored in the unused station's tanks, Scott said he thinks he may reopen it.

Fassio, Stansbury Are Victors In Cotati City Council Voting

One of the two citizens appointed to the Cotati City Council after last September's recall battle retains his post in the wake of yesterday's election.

Harry E. Fassio, 49, a maintenance supervisor at Mare Island Naval Shipyard, was the choice with 273 votes.

Second place winner was Allen C. Stansbury with 247 votes, compared to losers Patrick Corrigan, 199, and incumbent Laura Washburn, 100.

A proponent of light industrial and commercial development to relieve the tax load on homeowners, Fassio was appointed to the council with Mrs. Washburn, a 35-year-old antique dealer; after Herbert T. Winter and Frank P. Dolinsek quit following the unsuccessful recall Sept. 5 against Mayor Geoffrey Dunham and councilmen Stephen Laughlin and Annette Lombardi.

Mrs. Washburn based her campaign on having "the vested interest, narrow-minded, commercial-oriented people filtered out of the planning commission and city council" so that Cotati could be reserved as a "bountiful oasis" for differing lifestyles.

Winners Fassio and Stansbury, 31, continually emphasized during their campaigns the need for unity and harmony among residents, and their election may signify a peace treaty between older and younger residents whose factional feuds last year precipitated a municipal crisis.

Fassio and Mrs. Washburn were named councilmen in an effort by the three embattled councilmen to end the fight.

Stansbury successfully campaigned by telling residents to shrug off the apathy which has characterized Cotati politics since the recall controversy. He told voters he would seek greater representation for the city at county, regional and state levels.

Corrigan, 30-year-old owner of an auto parts store, had stressed preserving Cotati's rural atmosphere through careful planning.

Cotati has 1,710 registered voters, roughly twice the number that voted yesterday.

Quentin Peninsula Rezoning On List

Final rezoning of San Quentin Peninsula to a planned development district will be considered by the Larkspur City Council tonight at 8'oclock in city hall.

The rezoning will require large and small landowners to cooperate in submitting one preliminary development plan for the entire area.

Tomb Of Stalin Largely Ignored

MOSCOW (UPI) — The death of Josef V. Stalin 21 years ago yesterday went uncelebrated and unremarked in Moscow.

The thousands who visited the Lenin mausoleum in Red Square filed past Stalin's tomb on the way out, but few seemed to pay special attention.

Australian Ship Met By Salute

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — H.M.A.S. Melbourne, flagship of the Australian fleet, sailed into San Francisco Bay yesterday and was greeted with a 21-gun salute.

The salute was fired by the U.S. Army from the Presidio of San Francisco as the 20,000-ton aircraft carrier sailed by en route to Alameda Naval Air Station.

On Saturday, the ship will sail for Melbourne, which she left Feb. 4.

New Faces For Fairfax Council

Fairfax voters returned incumbent Town Councilman Frank J. Egger for his second term in office, but ousted Councilmen Robert R. Souza and Lee Nelder in a move that victors said drastically changed the balance of power on a divided council.

Top vote-getter was challenger Priscilla C. Gray, who won the town treasurer's office in an upset two years ago. Randall L. Garrison, defeated in his first council bid in 1972, won office this time by a wide margin over Souza and Nelder.

The unofficial vote tally according to the county elections office was:

Mrs. Gray, 1,141 votes; Egger, 1,123; Garrison, 1,071; Alfred F. Daubenfeld, 733; Souza, 598, and Nelder, 572.

Mrs. Gray predicted that the town council no longer would be constantly split over proposals for high-density residential development. "I think it's quite clear how the people feel about development," said the growth control advocate. "The election two years ago should have told the councilmen how we felt." Planning-oriented Councilman E. Ross Parkerson and Albert E. Gately were elected in 1972, but Parkerson has announced his intention to resign.

Asked whether the council turnover might result in Town Mgr. Robert E. Crowe's replacement, Mrs. Gray said, "let us hope so."

Crowe was hospitalized last night, as was a young man, both wounded in a postelection brawl. (See story, page 1.)

"The election was a change of tide," Egger said happily. "The council will be fun to work with now." He said that a sensational full-page newspaper advertisement opposing him last week "really had me down" but it apparently backfired against its sponsors.

Souza had been the senior member of the council, appointed in 1964 and twice reelected since. Nelder first won election to the council in 1970, and was seeking his second term. Daubenfeld, the fifth candidate, was making his first try for office after serving on the city's board of review that figured in the lengthy, controversial hearing over Crowe's firing of Police Chief James R. Orr.

Yesterday's turnover was wrought by only 42.4 per cent of the electorate, as 1,849 of the town's 4,267 registered voters cast ballots.

Drought Predicted

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Dr. Walter Orr Roberts, a research scientist who believes sunspots directly affect the weather on earth, says a severe drought rivaling the Dust Bowl days of the Depression may hit the Great Plains next year or by 1975.

Roth Says He Would Soak Rich

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — William Matson Roth of Ross, a Democratic candidate for governor, proposed yesterday to drastically increase the state income tax on the wealthy.

"The California tax rate structure is badly out of line," he said. "The top of the scale is only 11 per cent. Whether you earn $31,000 per year, or $310,000 per year, you pay only 11 per cent."

"I believe the state should adopt a progressive scale up to $250,000 per year, at least where it was in the thirties when incomes were much lower."

Roth's proposal was one of many in a tax reform plan outlined to a group of San Francisco stock brokers. If elected, he said he would appoint a citizen's tax reform commission which would include persons with low incomes as well as tax and economic experts.

Roth's theme was that the state of California now loses $300 million each year because of "unfair, special advantages and outright loopholes."

$500 Fine In Bus Joyriding

A South Lake Tahoe man originally charged with stealing a tour bus in Sausalito has pleaded guilty to misdemeanor joyriding.

Donn Michael Gilbert, 34, was fined $500 by municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

Gilbert's guilty plea came after a felony vehicle theft charge was reduced. Sausalito police said Gilbert took a tour bus last June from a parking lot in that town.

ALFRED J. MALVINO
Wins third term

CHARLES H. CURLEY

Larkspur's Mayor Survives Voter Test

Larkspur's Mayor Alfred J. Malvino yesterday handily won a third term on the city council, but the top vote-getter in the three-way race for two open seats was Charles H. Curley, a member of the city's planning commission.

Joi Losee, opponent of the Larkspur ferry terminal and of other developments she said were threats to the city's environment, finished last.

The unofficial vote tally was Curley, 1,585 votes; Malvino, 1,324, and Mrs. Losee, 588 votes.

Larkspur voters were the least concerned electorate in any of the 10 municipal elections in Marin County yesterday. Only 32.4 per cent of the 6,066 registered voters went to the polls — a total turnout of 1,967 voters.

Those who did vote gave the city councilmen a gift — the city ballot measure providing $50 a meeting for councilmen, up to a maximum of $150 a month, was approved by 1,056 to 815.

Malvino said he was relieved to survive what he described as "a Watergate for incumbent councilmen" throughout Marin County.

Curley said he was "very grateful that the citizens voted for my kind of philosophy." Both he and Malvino said they would concentrate on working with the city's general plan, and molding to it developments proposed for the San Quentin Peninsula and Bon Air shopping center.

Mrs. Losee said her first campaign was "a very positive experience. I met a lot of nice people. I've got two years to think whether I'll try again."

Mrs. Losee was the first of all the cities' candidates to learn she had lost last night. She was at the county elections office while Larkspur's votes were the first to be tabulated, before 10 p.m.

As she left, smiling wistfully, her campaign adviser, Charles Brouse, charged that "the two other candidates took over all her environmental issues" during their campaigns.

Marin Concert Membership Drive Begins

The Marin Concert Association's annual membership drive which started Mnday will continue through March 16, according to publicity chairman Esther Dearth.

New members joining the association will be entitled to attend the five concerts planned for next year plus a bonus concert, "The Carnival de Mexico," at 8:15 p.m., March 26, at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building, she said.

The association so far has booked the "Royal Welsh Male Choir" for one of its five concerts next year. The others have not been booked yet, she said.

Memberships may be obtained at Whitney's Band Instruments at 1408 Fourth Street, she said.

Greetings For Special Visitor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon posed for pictures yesterday with Tammy Bryant, the National Easter Seal poster child, and told her, "You're a Georgia peach."

Tammy, a blonde girl who wears a crutch on one leg, smiled up at the First Lady. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Kenneth I. Bryant, of Key West, Fla., formerly of Albany, Ga.

Tammy gave the first lady a huge badge with the Easter Seal cross on it, the first sheet of the 1974 Easter Seal stamps and a gold key to the city of Key West.

Mill Valley's Mayor Wins Reelection

Mayor Jean S. Barnard easily won reelection to the Mill Valley City Council yesterday, but Edward J. Boessenecker lost out in his bid for a second term.

Ivan S. Poutiatine, a member of the planning commission for six years, defeated Boessenecker and beat out another challenger, Gregory C. Dyer, who had aimed his campaign at the needs of local businessmen.

"We have a very informed electorate and they made the right choice," the 42-year-old Poutiatine said jubilantly after being informed of his victory. "Mill Valley voters know what they want and all the things I said during the campaign appear to have been the right things."

The new councilman said he believes voters chose the candidates they felt they could trust, since there were no burning issues in the contest.

Poutiatine, a partner in a San Francisco architectural firm, said his first task will be to obtain for Mill Valley "the best general plan that's ever been devised for a community."

Mrs. Barnard, on the other hand, plans to fight the automobile's encroachment on the city. "The auto is the villain in Mill Valley and I'm going to go after it at all levels becase traffic is one of our biggest problems," the 55-year-old mayor said.

She also plans to work for an open space bond issue for the city.

Like some other incumbents who lost their posts in yesterday's election, Boessenecker, a 52-year-old attorney, was surprised by his defeat. "I can't quite understand it, but if that's what the people want, they're welcome to it," he said.

The former chairman of the city's planning commission blamed his loss on the fact he had no time to tramp the streets of Mill Valley and visit voters in their homes.

"The other candidates had time to ring doorbells and that's what wins elections," he said.

Mayor Barnard captured 1,962 of the 3,207 votes cast. Poutiatine received 1,662; Boessenecker, 1,214, and Dyer, 1,218.

Sartain Defeated In Novato Voting

Novato City Councilman F. Wayne Sartain lost his bid for a second term yesterday, in an upset election that saw only a 59-vote spread among the top three contenders for the two seats open.

Elected were longtime Novato resident David E. Milano, with 2,724 votes and planning commission member Gail M. Wilhelm with 2,711 votes.

Sartain, long a spokesmen for North Marin homeowner groups, received 2,665 votes and Edward A. Brooks Jr., a first-time candidate, received 1,151 votes.

"I'm surprised and unhappy at the result" of the vote said Mrs. Wilhelm, explaining that she had hoped Sartain would be reelected.

Sartain took it philosophically. "Of course, I'm disappointed," he said. "I thought I'd win when I went into the election. But my wife and I had talked it over; win or lose this was going to be my last shot."

Milano had urged voters to give longtime Novato residents more voice on the city council, called for more encouragement of new business and clean industry for the city, and urged orderly growth control.

Mrs. Wilhelm campaigned for a vigorous follow-through on the city's recently adopted general plan, and for correction of city management problems.

Voter interest in Novato was relatively low even for an election following relatively low-key campaigns. Only 5,009 of the 12,988 registered voters went to the polls, resulting in a 38.5 per cent turnout.

Special Event Is Announced For Red Cross

Marin Red Cross Chapter's second swim-a-thon, to raise money for the Red Cross will be held on May 18.

Competitors, many of them graduates of Red Cross water safety classes, will swim laps to raise funds. The competition will take place in six pools in various Marin County locations, according to Nancy King Hayden, public relations officer for the chapter.

Ralph Chatoian, Independent-Journal sports editor, will be the honorary chairman of the event.

Posters and entry forms will be available from Red Cross swimming instructors about April 1.

Last year the swim-a-thon raised $1,637.31, Mrs. Hayden said.

Greyhound Wins Fare Surcharge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Public Utilities Commission granted Greyhound Bus Lines, Inc., permission yesterday to temporarily add a 1.36 per cent surcharge to its intrastate fares.

Greyhound said it needed the money to pay increasing fuel bill and estimated its fuel would cost an additional $800,000 this year.

On April 9 the commission is to hold public hearings on a Greyhound request to boost its fares by 16 per cent.

Greyhound said the surcharge would add two cents to fares from San Francisco to San Mateo, Palo Alto and Redwood City.

The FBI accused Perry of selling 100 tickets for $5,000, although he allegedly knew they were stoeln property, and of interstate shipment of stolen goods.

Novato Little League Granted Use Of Schools For Ballfields

Novato Little League can build ball fields on two Novato school sites, but with stipulations that may stop the Little League from doing it, the Novato Unified School District board agreed unanimously last night.

The board voted to approve the Little League field for Lynwood School, but without the outfield fence which Principal Donald V. Wineland said is needed to protect children using it.

The Little League can also construct a field on the Mill-Trumbull undeveloped school site, but with the knowledge that if the district must pay a proposed assessment on it, it may sell the site and the Little League would be out its investment.

Little League had proposed spending $12,500 at the Lynwood School playground and $36,700 on the Mill-Trumbull site.

Representatives of the Little League, when they learned of the stipulations, told the board they would report back to their board of directors. They would not commit the league to spending the money without further board approval, they said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

ATTENDANCE — Was told enrollment dropped in February and that Sinaloa Junior High School with the largest enrollment of the three junior high schools will start to decline in 1974-75. The board asked staff to make proposals for new realignment of the boundaries of the school attendance areas.

THERAPISTS — Notified the two special speech therapists that they may be out of a job at the end of this school year unless the special federal program is renewed. The Novato district has received $25,000 a year grant for the past two years on the program.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $415 from the Lynwood School Parent-Teacher Association.

REPORT — Had a slide picture and oral report on the early childhood education program at Olive School It is one of 1,000 schools in California which is trying the new concept of small group teaching under a state grant.

SECURITY — In order to try to cut down on the vandalism at the schools, the board hired private guard Bruce Eytinge for two days work each week.

COMPUTER — Authorized buying a Singer or Quantel computer and equipment for approximately $26,000 to replace the National Cash Register 400 computer which the district has rented for several years at a cost of $10,868 per year.

ADULT — Approved 54 courses for the spring term at Novato Adult Evening High School, including: the computer, conversational French, preparation for childbirth, introduction to legal and medical terminology, graphoanalysis, knit-crochet workshop and beginner piano.

VOTING — Approved having all board votes by roll call and tabulated on each motion.

CENTER — Renewed the lease for $1 a year for the space for the children's center at Novato High School site to the Marin County Superintendent of Schools.

CLAIM — Denied a $5,000 claim by Michelle Bacon, through her father, Thomas C. Bacon of 1561 Buchanan, for injuries reportedly received at Rancho School on Dec. 11.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m., next Tuesday at the lecture room at Novato High School to receive the preliminary budget, discuss reading and essential learning programs and instruct negotiators on dealing with the increase asked by the teachers.

Winner Claims Practice Did It

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The 100-year-old daughter of a former slave said yesterday that experience helped her win the 1973 prize for producing Alabama's best cotton crop.

"Since I can remember," Mrs. Bettie Pride said, "my folks woke me up in the morning and told me to get to the fields. I guess that's why I know how to pick good."

Mrs. Pride was honored at an annual King Cotton luncheon for her crop, which averaged 1,367 pounds per acre on a tiny three-acre farm at Bella Mina, in Northwest Alabama's Limestone County.

Novato Teachers Seek 22 Per Cent Pay Hike

Novato teachers last night asked for a 22 per cent increase in salaries for next school year.

John Weston, chairman of the Certificated Employees Council presented the teachers request and said further requests will be presented next week.

The remainder of the teachers' requests, he said, deal with class size limitations, preparation period for elementary teachers which will provide an enrichment program for students, extra duty pay for teachers of music, department chairmen and coaches of girls athletics, and improvement of leave policies.

The Novato Unified School District board accepted the proposal without comment and set 8 p.m. next Tuesday to discuss negotiations with the teachers in a closed meeting.

No official estimate was given on the cost of the 22 per cent request, but based on the current budget, it would be approximately $2 million.

The teachers asked for 5 per cent increase on the base salary to bring the salary schedule in line with consumer price index as of December 1973; 12 per cent increase on the base salary to compensate for the estimated cost-of-living increase to the fall of 1974, and 5 per cent increase on the base salary to improve the schedule to increase purchasing power. This totals the 22 per cent asked.

For several years the Novato Teachers and school board have had many months of negotiations before reaching a salary agreement. This was climaxed by a threatened teacher strike last year.

Assemblyman To Walk Again

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John P. Quimby, confined to a wheelchair for three years, was released from the UC Medical Center yesterday after being told he would be able to walk again.

Quimby, D-San Bernardino, entered the San Francisco center for an orthopedic evaluation preparatory to becoming ambulatory again. Quimby had polio when he was 11.

The lawmaker's office quoted his doctors as saying, "With the prescribed weight loss of 30 pounds, we can have him ambulatory again through the aid of leg braces."

26 Of 65 Candidates Turn In Their Papers

With the close of filing for the June primary election at 5 p.m. on Friday, only 26 of the 65 announced candidates in Marin races have turned in nomination papers.

The only contest so far is for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District.

There are no contests yet in the other 29 congressional, legislative, county, district and state Board of Equalization seats at stake.

Friday also is the deadline to file for each political party's central committee.

In Sonoma, filings have assured a contest in the Second Supervisorial District between incumbent Philip L. Joerger and veterinarian William M. Kortum, both of Petaluma.

New filings reported by the Marin County elections office are: incumbent Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste of Novato in the Fifth District; Margaret Neese of Ross in Marin Municipal Water District's Division 3; incumbent Joseph J. Brezina in Almonte Sanitary District; incumbent Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos, and incumbent Treasurer-Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez. All previously announced their candidacies.

Politicians Can Be Soon Forgotten

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Wilcox County Probate Court Judge Roland Cooper can tell you how fast you can be forgotten in the Alabama Legislature.

Cooper had served 16 years in the state Senate and was one of its leaders when he resigned a few months ago to become probate court judge.

When he returned to the Capitol, he was run out of the legislative parking lot by a Capitol guard, although he was only trying to use the parking space reserved for a garbage truck.

Cure Offered For Social Ills

HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas said yesterday the nation is in a decline which can only be corrected by citizen participation in public life.

"Public involvement is necessary to change social and economic ills," the 75-year-old Douglas said in an interview with Haverford College president Johnn R. Coleman before 650 students. "There is no ready-made vehicle for public involvement. You have to invent it."

Douglas said America's young people "could play a significant role in reversing the downward spiral" in the United States.

Cuts At McClellan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A total of 1,007 military and 121 civilian positions at McClellan Air Force Base will be eliminated by the summer of 1975 in a cutback in the base's fleet of radar reconnaisance planes, the Pentagon announced Tuesday.

Both Sexes Picking Up 'Streaking'

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

More than a thousand college students of both sexes dashed naked across campuses last night as the nation's newest college fad — "streaking" — gained momentum, but some authorities took a "get tough" attitude.

The biggest display of nudity was at the University of Georgia, where about 300 youths ran between dormitories in an effort to break the streaking record — apparently set in a nude carnival featuring 514 participants at the University of South Carolina Monday night.

An estimated 270 males streaked around Southern Tech in Atlanta and 180 men and one woman, calling themselves the Lehigh University Streaking Team (LUST), ran naked across the campus at Bethlehem, Pa. The lone female exclaimed afterwards: "I feel great and no one touched me."

One of the 175 streakers at Northwestern University was on crutches while one of the 16 streakers at the University of Illinois at Urbana was pushed in a wheelchair.

Disrobed darters were reported running from the Columbia University campus onto New York's Broadway last night and seven women were among the 35 nude runners at the University of Wisconsin Lacrosse. One girl took part in a naked dash by 30 students across a street at the University of Oklahoma. About 20 youths streaked at Georgia Tech and four others did it at the University of Pittsburgh.

Two male streakers, clad only in yellow stockings over their heads, weaved their way through players at a college basketball tournament in Americus, Ga., to the cheers of spectators, and fled out a door last night.

A bill was introduced in the South Carolina Legislature yesterday that would make streaking at public schools and state supported institutions illegal with a penalty of expulsion and up to 90 days in jail.

Chancellor Jack Reese of the University of Tennessee, where $2,000 damage was inflicted on businesses near the campus during a streaking demonstration Monday night and early yesterday morning, said any more streaking "will necessitate concerted action..."

Fatal Hit-Run Case To Superior Court

Following a preliminary hearing yesterday that was closed to spectators, a Fairfax man was bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony hit-and-run charge stemming from the traffic death of a San Anselmo cyclist in November.

Woodrow Wilson Fitzsimmons, 30, was ordered to appear March 18 to answer the felony charge and a misdemeanor manslaughter count.

Municipal Judge Gary W. Thomas, following a day-long hearing in a locked courtroom, ruled there is enough evidence to hold Fitzsimmons.

The twisted bicycle which Harmen Evers, 40, an assistant vice president at Bank of America in San Francisco, was riding when run down on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard was shown to Judge Thomas.

The public was excluded from the courtroom at the request of Fitzsimmons under a provision of the state Penal Code.

Fitzsimmons was arrested early last month on information supplied San Anselmo police under the Independent-Journal's secret witness program.

Police said the information enabled them to match bits of glass found at the accident scene with a shattered windshield allegedly replaced on Fitzsimmon's Cadillac.

If Fitzsimmons is convicted, the witness stands to collect a $2,000 reward.

In yet another case pending against Fitzsimmons, a preliminary hearing is set for March 14 on a charge he assaulted Sheriff's Deputy Kenneth Harlan at the Marin County Jail Feb. 23.

Strong Commerce Department Is Urged In State

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The director of the state Department of Commerce says a "strong and effective" Commerce Department is needed to help boost a sagging economy facing California.

Director John K. Geohegan made the comment yesterday to a Senate Finance subcommittee in taking issue with a recommendation by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the department be virtually eliminated.

Geohegan said economic downturns and energy-related job losses make the department increasingly important because of its work to create new jobs.

Callas Dedicates Recital To Hurok

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maria Callas returned to the New York stage last night despite the death of her manager, Sol Hurok, and dedicated the program to his memory.

The soprano, who had canceled her scheduled Carnegie Hall concert Feb. 17 with tenor Guiseppi Di Steffano because of illness, asked the standing-room-only audience to bear with her because "I have the emotions and he (Di Steffano) has a cold."

The 50-year-old diva had last sung in New York at the Metropolitan Opera in 1965.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ray B. Hunter, director of the state Department of Consevation, today called on Californians to observe Conservation Week March 7-13, saying preservation of the state's resources "must now be paramount."

No Teacher Releases Expected

No teacher will have to be released next year from the Kentfield School District even though lower enrollments are projected, district trustees learned last night.

Supt. Eugene C. Peters told trustees that enrollment is expected to drop from 1,275 to 1,243 in the district. He said that the 57 teachers presently employed will drop to 56 as a result of normal turnover and that the pupil-teacher ratio will remain 22-to-1.

Trustees set a special meeting March 13 at 7:30 p.m. in district offices to discuss a screening program next year to identify children with learning disabilities. Trustees will meet with Vera Bagryanana, guidance consultant in the Lafayette School District, to discuss the Lafayette screening program.

Tomales High Benefit Slated

A benefit dance and potluck dinner for the junior and senior classes at Tomales High School will be held Saturday at the West Marin Community Center in Point Reyes Station.

Dinner will start at 5 p.m. and the dance at 8 p.m.

"Kid Kahoutek and the Shooting Stars" will furnish the music for dancing.

The event will benefit the trip planned by 132 members of the junior and senior classes to take a trip to Washington D.C., April 8 to 15, during the Easter vacation.

Trunkline For Sewage Is Approved

Specifications for sewer trunkline replacement in San Anselmo have been approved by Ross Valley Sanitary District directors.

District Mgr. Ned J. Ongaro said the district will now seek bids on the project, open them on April 8 at 2 p.m. and hold a special meeting that same night at 8 p.m. to consider awarding a contract.

Final specifications were drawn after district staff met with chamber of commerce officials and city staff to review the project and only minor changes were made such as truck routes through town.

He said no one attended the board meeting Monday to protest the project.

The downtown portion of the project will replace trunk line from Tunstead Avenue to San Rafael Avenue along San Anselmo Avenue. The work is to be completed within 150 calendar days with pipeline construction to be done within 12 consecutive weeks.

The second part of the summer project will replace trunkline in residential areas on Magnolia Avenue and Kientz Lane. That work is to be completed within 180 calendar days and will be done simultaneously with downtown sewer replacement.

The board also agreed to pay $7,250 as its share of a $43,000 study on a possible sewage reclamation plant for Marin and Southern Sonoma.

It adjourned to March 18 at 8 p.m. in district offices.

Ross Voters Favor Both Incumbents

Ross voters yesterday quietly retained veteran Mayor Frederick S. Allen and Councilman Roy Farrington Jones for their fourth full terms, in a three-way contest for the two seats open.

Allen led the vote getting with 496 ballots according to the unofficial tally in the Marin County elections office. Jones received 382 votes, and first-time challenger James R. Drimmel 248 votes.

Allen had hinted late last year that he was considering stepping down from the seat he has held since he was appointed in 1960. Since 1964, he has been mayor, and unofficial town manager, devoting several days a week to city business.

One of the most clear-cut differences of opinion in preelection campaigning was over a bicycle path proposal. Both Allen and Jones opposed Drimmel's call for a path along Shady Lane, citing neighborhood opposition to the idea.

A total of 608 votes was cast, for a 37.7 per cent turnout of the town's 1,600 registered voters.

Library Wins, Park Plan Loses In Petaluma Voting

Petalumans voted overwhelmingly yesterday for a $750,000 bond issue to build a new library, while narrowly rejecting a $1.9 million park improvement plan.

An estimated 75.8 per cent of the 4,645 persons who voted supported the library bonds, although only 65.4 per cent favored the park bond issue. In both cases, state law required at least a 66.66 per cent "yes" vote for approval.

The new library will be built in Kenilworth Park, geographical center of Petaluma. Preliminary plans call for a 24,000 square foot structure with areas for children, teen-agers, cultural exhibits and an audio visual section. The existing building at Fourth and D streets, built near the turn of the century, will be kept for library-related use.

Total cost of the new library will be around $1.3 million, with the balance coming from revenue sharing funds already committed by the city council and Sonoma supervisors.

The park bonds were to provide expansion and upgrading of facilities at several Petaluma parks. Among the improvements planned were tennis, handball and volleyball courts and a three-acre lagoon at Luchesi Park; playing fields and picnic facilities at Shollenberger River Park; an additional tennis court at McNear Park, and expansion of the lawn area at the city swimming center.

Yesterday's turnout represented about one-third of Petaluma's 13,239 registered voters.

Trudeau Wins A Major Vote

OTTAWA (UPI) — The minority Liberal government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield introduced the motion of nonconfidence last Thursday on the issues of energy and inflation.

Trudeau easily survived a Conservative nonconfidence motion last night with the support of the New Democratic Party.

The motion of nonconfidence was defeated by a vote of 129 to 109 with the 11 Social Credit Party members voting with the Conservatives and the Liberals receiving the support of 28 NDP members.

ARMANDO FLORES
Mayor reelected

Flores Wins New Term As Mayor

Voters in Rohnert Park yesterday gave popular Mayor Armando F. Flores another four-year term and favored environmentalist David L. Eck over incumbent Arthur N. Roberts.

Eck, 32, a Sonoma State College chemistry professor, was the top vote-getter with 928 votes. He had pledged to be responsive to citizens instead of to real estate developers who, he claimed, had an undue influence on the council.

Flores, also 32, is a Sausalito school administrator who campaigned on his past performance, citing his success in working for federal grants to improve the quality of life in the rapidly growing young city. He ran second with 809 votes.

Eck will replace Roberts, a 42-year-old Rohnert Park pharmacist who lost his seat on the council, receiving 746 votes. Roberts, like Flores, based his campaign on past performance, but chided residents for not showing enough interest in local affairs.

Although a majority of Rohnert Park's 3,709 registered voters marked ballots yesterday, the campaign was met with a generally apathetic reception from residents. No single issue dominated during the preelection discussions among the candidates.

Finishing in fourth position with 706 votes was Lillian E. (Laiki) Sani, 51, an accounts clerk at Sonoma State, who during the early 1960s served as Rohnert Park's first city clerk. She told voters she hoped to represent women and citizens over 50 years of age.

Willis E. Brock, 42, a Marine supply specialist for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. in Berkeley, finished last with 60 votes. He is a newcomer to Rohnert Park who sought a council seat because he believed his section of town, Holiday Park, needed representation.

Meetings Set On Park Plan

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Department has scheduled a series of meetings for public reaction to the proposed master plan for John F. McInnis Park north of Santa Venetia.

The first meeting is set for 8 p.m. tomorrow in Rooms 123 and 124 of Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley.

Donald Rolph, chief park planner for the department, will give a slide show and describe the plan at each of the meetings.

Other presentations are set to next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the San Rafael Planning Commission meeting at city hall and March 14 at 8 p.m. at the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission meeting at the community house.

The proposed plan calls for multiple recreational use of the new park, including a long-sought swim and tennis center. Other facilities include a boat launching area, picnic grounds and playfields.

Ehrlichman Asked Help For Vesco

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Ehrlichman, President Nixon's domestic affairs advisor, in 1972 asked John N. Mitchell, then attorney general, to call "certain embassies" in financier Robert L. Vesco's behalf, a witness testified at the Mitchell-Stans trial today.

The government witness, Harry L. Sears, a New Jersey attorney, Republican leader, and Vesco employee, was testifying for the second day as a star for the prosecution in the trial of the former attorney general and Maurice H. Stans, former secretary of commerce.

They are charged in federal court with trying to obstruct a major federal investigation of Vesco, now a fugitive, in exchange for his $200,000 cash gift to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

Sears testified that he believed it was Jan. 4, 1972 when he got a phone call from Mithell in Washington.

"He inquired about a memo he got from John Ehrlichman which asked Mr. Mitchell to make calls to certain embassies in Mr. Vesco's behalf," Sears testified.

"He said he didn't have enough detail and didn't undestand the memo and asked me to bring some details as to what was wanted in that regard.

"I got some details from Mr. Vesco."

Vesco at that time was under a vigorous investigation by the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Sears said that at a midafternoon meeting on Jan. 12, 1972 with Mitchell in .the attorney general's office he informed Mitchell that Vesco and his executives were "deathly afraid not only because of the emotion involved in the conduct of the staff but also because of abrasions of Vesco lawyers with the staff that there was going to be a precipitious staff report that would recommend a suit (against Vesco) with an injunction and the commission would approve it."

The mention of Ehrlichman and his memo was not further explained.

Sears said he told Mitchell, an old political friend of his, that he had just been hired by Vesco at $60,000 a year for parttime work as a lawyer and board member of Vesco's International Controls Corp (ICC).

He said that after a long recital of ICC troubles with the SEC staff, Mitchell agreed to discuss the matter with William Casey, SEC chairman.

"He listened and puffed—I mean on his pipe—and nodded," Sears said of Mitchell. "He listened very attentively.

"Then he said if these things were true that Vesco and the ICC certainly appeared to deserve some kind of help. He said in view of my interest and connections he would at least discuss it with Bill Casey and he told me he would do it at some convenient time."

In earlier testimony, Sears said that twice in 1971 he reminded Mitchell that Vesco considered himself a friend of the Nixon family.

The Problems Of Commuters

The commuter who uses public transit must learn how to survive.

The transit system owes him the "highest degree of care." That is the duty of public transit systems or any common carrier to riders.

That duty not only extends to the running of the bus, train or plane, but to the loading and unloading areas controlled by the carrier. That duty means that the carrier must control other passengers and use high degree of care to prevent injuries by others.

There is a duty to protect against assault by employees, to protect against drunk passengers, tp protect passengers from air blasts and other hazards common to the operation of the carrying vehicle.

A person is a "passenger" not only while on the car, but while alighting and until he has safely left it. So there is a duty on the carrier to keep entrance and exit steps clean and clear. They must assist crippled or other incapacitated persons boarding. A bus driver that shoves you on, or lets you off in a dangerous place such as a narrow lane too small for the easy clearance of moving traffic, is violating its high degree of care.

In a recent case, Patsy, an airline passenger, left the airplane to take a helicopter to her ultimate destination. At this large airport she had to walk on an escalator, a moving belt, and across a large expanse to get to the helicopter. The airline did not control those areas which were a part of the public international airport.

Patsy tripped on the damp escalator and injured herself. She sued the airline and lost. There was no high duty of care after she left the areas under the carrier's control or after discharging her into a safe space.

Budget Presented Is Similar To Last One

The preliminary budget for the Fairfax School District is almost identical to last year's, according to Supt. H. Reginald Hammond.

The 1974-75 budget as submitted to the board last night estimated $1,259,450 income with ending balance of $74,000 for a total of $1,333,450, he said.

Against this, the preliminary budget called for $1,328,922 in expenditures, leaving only $4,528 difference, he said.

Last year's preliminary budget estimated income at $1,225,723 with an ending balance of $108,000 for a total of $1,333,723.

"There is not enough difference in income and expenditures; so we will have to cut items all over the budget," Hammond said.

Evidence Lacked In Arson Case

Due to a lack of evidence, a 22-year-old San Rafael man will not be prosecuted in Marin Municipal Court on an arson charge.

The district attorney's office said no complaint will be filed against Robert J. Webb, arrested Feb. 23 in connection with a trash fire near an apartment door in Fairfax.

The burning rubbish at 200 Bolinas Avenue caused no damage, according to Fairfax police.

Space Ship Taken On Test Flight

EDWARDS AFB (UPI) — Test pilot John Manke flew the experimental X24B, a delta-shaped space ship, in its first supersonic sortie yesterday, hitting a top speed of 740 miles an hour and a peak altitude of 60,800 feet.

The craft was launched from a B52 flying at 45,000 feet over Cuddeback Dry Lake. Manke ignited all four chambers of the XLR11 rocket engine and accelerated to Mach 1.12 and topped the preplanned altitude of 58,000 feet by 2,800 feet.

After engine shutdown, he glided to a 200-mile-an-hour landing on a dry lake at this Mojave Desert base.

The X24B is a joint project of the U.S. Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and is designed to demonstrate man's ability to maneuver and safely land a vehicle with a shape designed for re-rentry from space flight. This was the ninth flight of the X24B and the seventh time Manke has been at the controls.

OYSTERS AU gratin is an elegant way to entertain that won't overstrain the budget. The seasoned sauce and broccoli and rice make it a complete main dish.

Oysters Au Gratin An Impressive Meal

A really impressive, elegant meal is one with oysters. However, they're just too expensive to give everyone a dozen on the half shell. To keep within your budget, serve oysters in a flavorful rice casserole. Oysters au Gratin.

A layer of rice and broccoli topped with a layer of oysters; then a magnificently seasoned sauce. Finally a layer of bread crumbs. As the casserole bakes, flavors blend uniquely into a dish fit for any gourmet.

OYSTERS AU GRATIN

- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli
- 3 cups cooked rice
- 1 pint oysters, drained
- ¾ cup sour cream
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- ¼ cup milk
- 2 tablespoons sherry
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon cream style horseradish
- 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 6 to 8 drops liquid hot pepper sauce
- 1½ teaspoons onion salt
- ½ cup buttered soft bread crumbs

Cook broccoli according to package directions. Drain; toss lightly with rice. Spoon into a greased shallow two quart casserole. Arrange oysters on rice mixture. Combine remaining ingredients except bread crumbs. Pour over oysters. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until oysters are tender and top is browned. Makes six servings.

Each serving provides 254 calories.

Fish fillets can be elegant too. Here the secret is in a most flavorful wine sauce spooned over the fish and rice.

Each serving provides 250 calories.

Traditional Purim Dessert On Menu For Family Party

Hamentaschen, the traditional Purim dessert, will be served at the Marin Jewish Community Center's annual Purim family party Sunday at 5 p.m. at Temple Rodef Sholom in San Rafael.

During Purim the Biblical story of Queen Esther is told. The villain of the story is Hamen, who wears a three-cornered hat. Hamentaschen (translated Hamen's hat) is a triangular shaped fruit filled pastry, made to resemble Hamen's hat.

Yeast or honey dough can be used, and the hamentaschen can be filled with poppyseed or prune.

HAMENTASCHEN YEAST DOUGH

- 2 cakes or pkgs. yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- ¾ cup scalded milk, cooled
- 5 cups sifted flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1½ tsp. salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup melted butter

Soften the yeast in water for five minutes. Add it to the milk. Stir in two cups of the flour, the sugar and the salt. Add one egg at a time, beating after each addition. Beat in the butter and remaining flour. Knead for a few minutes, then place in a bowl. Cover with a towel and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Punch down, and knead on a floured board (lightly floured) for five minutes. Divide the dough in half, and roll out to ¼ inch thickness. Cut into four-inch squares. Place a heaping tablespoon of filling on each and fold the dough over into a triangle, sealing the edges. Let rise until doubled in bulk, and brush with beaten egg yolk.

Bake in a 375-degree oven 25 minutes, or until browned. Makes about 3½ dozen.

HONEY DOUGH FOR HAMENTASCHEN

- 4 cups sifted flour
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- ½ cup shortening, softened
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup honey

Sift the flour, salt, and baking powder into a bowl. Make a well in the center and place the shortening, eggs and honey in it. Work together with the hand, until the dough is formed. Roll out and cut into four-inch squares. Place a heaping tablespoon of filling on each and fold over into a triangle, sealing the edges.

Bake in 350-degree oven 20 minutes. Yield: three dozen.

FILLING FOR HAMENTASCHEN

Poppyseed

- 2 cups poppy seeds
- 1 cup milk
- ¾ cup honey
- 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
- ½ cup seedless raisins.

Have the poppy seeds ground, or put them through food chopper. Combine with the milk and honey. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until thick. Stir in the lemon rind and raisins. Cool and fill the dough.

Prune

- 2 cup lackva (prune butter) or strained babyfood prunes
- ½ cup ground almonds
- 1 tbsp. grated orange rind

Mis ingredients together, and fill dough.

WHEN COMPANY is coming and there isn't much time to cook, this apple dessert is a quickie. Most homemakers keep the pancake batter ingredients on hand. A can of apple pie filling can be stored on the shelf until the need arises.

An Apple Dessert Quickly Prepared

There seems to be no exception to the rule that homemakers are extremely busy people. So recipes that can be prepared quickly, yet with delicious results are in great demand.

This apple dessert is one such recipe. The batter for the pancake takes only a few minutes to make and bake, and spiced apple pie filling comes in a can and takes no time at all.

APPLE DESSERT PANCAKE

- 2 large eggs
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 can (21 oz.) apple pie filling
- Dairy sour cream (optional)

Combine eggs, milk, flour and salt. Beat with rotary egg beater or electric mixer about 2 minutes (batter will be very thin.) Heat butter in 10-inch frying pan with oven proof handle (or wrap handle in heavy foil.)

When hot, pour batter into pan. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Lower heat to 350 degrees and bake about 5 minutes longer or until golden brown and crisp. (Batter will creep up on sides of pan, forming a shell.) Remove from pan, fill with apple pie filling, heated or not, as preferred.) Serve with sour cream if desired.

Makes four to six servings.

Tip On Peanuts

Here's a tip for using peanuts in cooking: Because peanuts absorb moisture readily, to retain their crispness always add peanuts to the other ingredients just before serving, or sprinkle the peanuts on top of the dish at the last moment prior to serving.

Hundreds Of Combinations For Granola Made At Home

By Phyllis Vanes
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Cashing in on Mother Nature is one aspect of the natural-foods movement that has attracted big business. With the swiftness only money incentive can bring, large corporations and financiers have jumped on the health food bandwagon, some of them changing their products and bringing out new ones; others are merely changing their advertising.

Cereals, in particular, were among the first to get the natural treatment, with crunchy granola, an oat-flake cereal flavored with honey, reported to be doubling in sales as early as 1972.

Since then the new, natural granola-like cereals have increased in popularity to account for a big chunk of the ready-to-eat cereal market. Some say the top four brands of all cereals are in this category.

Housewives discovered early in the game that crunchy breakfast cereals are cheaper when they are made at home from scratch. And when making your own granola combination, there are hundreds of possibilities.

Our files have swelled recently with more than a hundred recipes from a new book, "The Granola Cookbook" by Eric Miller and Jane Kaplan (Arco Publishing Co.) The authors say granola is a fine ingredient for breads, cookies, pies and cakes, vegetables, pasta, eggs, and even salads and fruits.

The 400 recipes also include suggestions for making granola for children so it can compete with the air-filled commercial breakfast foods. Here are some of the basic recipes:

BASIC GRANOLA

- 10 cups rolled oats
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup vegetable oil

Heat the honey and oil in a suacepan over a moderate flame, stirring to blend. When thoroughly melted and fluid, add to the oats in a bowl. Mix for a minute or two until all the oats are coated. Then spread onto an oiled cookie sheet or shallow baking pan. Place in a preheated 250 degree oven. It's done when lightly brown, after 40 minutes to an hour. Cool and store in a plastic bag. Makes about 10 servings.

The cheapest granola recipe is made with rolled oats, the lowest priced grain used in granola. The only "extra" is an even less expensive ingredient, such as wheat bran. Molasses is preferred over honey, and if you cut down on oil and molasses, it will lower the cost. Add water to compensate for liquid bulk. Thus, cheapest granola, costing about 5 cents a cup.

CHEAPEST GRANOLA

- 7 cups rolled oats
- 3 cups wheat bran
- ½ cup safflower oil
- ¼ cup molasses
- 2 tablespoons water

Inexpensive granolas need not be dull, however, as long as a few inexpensive ingredients more costly than rolled oats can be afforded. Powdered milk and especially wheat germ are not very high priced, and they add not only to the flavor but also to the nutritional value. The least expensive nuts and dried fruits are raisins and Spanish peanuts. Add these and you have a good 10-cent granola.

A GOOD LOWCOST GRANOLA

- 7 cups rolled oats
- 1 cup wheat germ
- ½ cup powdered milk
- ½ cup Spanish peanuts
- 1 cup raisins
- ½ cup safflower oil
- ½ cup molasses

For the sake of comparison, to show that homemade granola is a sanely priced food, the authors of the new cookbook concocted the most expensive granola they could think of. The result cost 38 cents a cup, and if your other meals are as expensive three times a day you'd still be within most budgets.

FLAMBOYANT GRANOLA

- 2 cups rolled oats
- 2 cups barley flakes
- 1 cup rye flakes
- ½ cup powdered milk
- ½ cup pine nuts
- ½ cup pumpkin seeds
- ½ cup cashews
- 1 cup pecans
- 1 cup dried pears, diced
- 1 cup banana flakes
- ½ cup sunflower oil
- 1 cup honey

Commercial granolas now usually cost about 18 cents per serving and tend to be rather plain, processed, and nonnutritive, still getting most of their appeal from sugar. The least expensive variety sampled by the authors was priced at 12 cents a cup. To find the price per serving of any particular granola, they suggest that you figure one cup of most varieties will weight one-quarter pound.

A Pound Of Rice Can Stretch A Long Way

A pound of rice does go a long way. In fact, all three of these recipes can be made from a single pound of rice: Cabbage Rose Salad, Chili Chicken, and Italian Beef Casserole. Three main dishes — six servings each. Uncooked, a pound of rice measures just over two cups but cooks up to make seven cups.

Translate those figures into dollars and cents and you'll find that each half cup of cooked rice costs less than a nickel.

You can be economical with a flair, too, as shown here in Cabbage Rose Salad. And it's as simple as arranging four or five of the outermost leaves of the cabbage on a platter before filling with the salad mixture of rice, shredded cabbage, crushed pineapple and luncheon meat strips. Not only does it look inviting, but it also tastes good. The dressing contains, in addition to mayonnaise, cream cheese and pineapple juice. Celery seed provides the seasoning accent.

CABBAGE ROSE SALAD

1 medium head cabbage
6 to 8 radishes, sliced
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 cups cooled cooked rice
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 package (6 oz.) ham luncheon meat, cut in julienne strips
1 teaspoon celery seed
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (16 oz.) crushed pineapple (drain; reserve juice)
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese (room temperature)
¼ cup mayonnaise

Choose a cabbage with full outer leaves. Wash cabbage. Carefully remove four or five outer leaves. Refrigerate. Shred remaining cabbage. Add radishes, green pepper, rice, cheese, luncheon meat, seasonings, and pineapple. Blend cream cheese, mayonnaise, and pineapple juice until smooth. Pour over vegetables; toss lightly. Chill. Arrange reserved cabbage leaves on platter to form a "bowl." Spoon rice mixture into cabbage bowl. Makes six generous servings.

Each serving provides 358 calories.

CHILI CHICKEN

1 cup chopped onions
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 cups chicken broth
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms with liquid
2 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. chili powder
¼ tsp. oregano
½ tsp. sugar, optional
2 cups chopped cooked chicken
3 cups hot cooked rice
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Saute onions, green pepper, and garlic in butter until onions are soft but not brown. Stir in remaining ingredients, except chicken and rice. Cover and simmer about 10 minutes. Add chicken and cook five minutes longer. Serve spooned over beds of fluffy rice. Makes six servings.

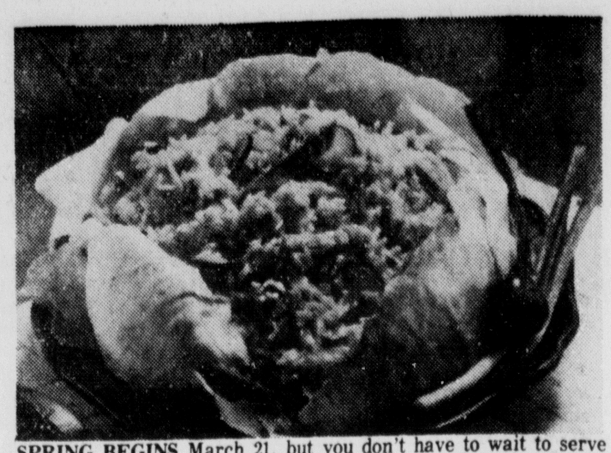
Each serving provides 222 calories.

ITALIAN BEEF CASSEROLE

1 pound lean ground beef
1 cup chopped onions
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 cups cooked rice
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup sour cream
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups grated Mozzarella cheese
1 package (10 oz.) frozen brussels sprouts, cooked, drained, and cut in half lengthwise
Paprika

Saute meat, onions, and garlic until meat loses its pink appearance. Stir in rice, soup, sour cream, seasonings, and half of the cheese. Add brussels sprouts. Turn into a greased shallow 2½-quart casserole. Top with remaining cheese. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Makes six servings.

Each serving provides 371 calories.



SPRING BEGINS March 21, but you don't have to wait to serve this luncheon Cabbage Rose Salad. It is a combination of rice, pineapple and meat served in a natural "bowl" of cabbage leaves. Orange punch or iced tea makes it a patio special.

BUFFET

A "mock lemon pie" that the pioneers made because they could not get lemons.

1½ cups sugar
3 Tbsp. cornstarch
1½ cup cider vinegar
1 Tbsp. butter
2 eggs
1 baked 8-inch to 9-inch pie shell
¼ tsp. cream of tartar

Mix 1¼ cups of the sugar with the cornstarch in a saucepan, then stir in the water, vinegar and butter.

Bring to boil, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and clear. Remove from heat. Stir a small amount of mixture into the egg yolks, then return to bulk of mixture in the pan, and cook, stirring, two minutes longer. Pour into the pie shell, cool and chill. Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Beat egg whites until frothy, and add remaining sugar very gradually, while still beating. Add cream of tartar. Beat until very stiff. Spread maringue over the pie, sealing the edges, bake 10 to 12 minutes, or until meringue is lightly browned.

FARMER IN THE DELL

26 pieces: about eight servings

1 (1 lb. 6 oz.) loaf extra-fresh soft white bread
1 7½ oz. package farmer cheese
⅓ cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
1 egg
½ pound butter, melted and clear yellow liquid poured off for cooking (discard milky solids).
¼ cup confectioners' sugar

Remove crusts from the bread slices. With rolling pin, roll each slice until very thin. Beat together the cheese, granulated sugar, vanilla and egg, and spread one tablespoon mixture on each slice rolled bread. Roll up each slice and pinch sides to hold together. Heat butter in a very heavy skillet and saute the rolls, a few at a time, over medium heat until golden. Roll in confectioners' sugar while hot.

Plant Mama's Greens Thrive On Music

By BETTY FROST

"I talk to the plants and I play music for them," Shirley Guaraldi said.

Her small shop in Sausalito is alive with healthy green growing plants in containers of all sizes. Some hang from macrame cords.

"Plants get lonesome," she said seriously. "They like to have company. Sometimes I move a plant from an isolated location to be near another plant and it flourishes."

Known as "Plant Mama," Mrs. Guaraldi takes in orphan plants and is delighted to see them revive under her knowledgeable care. "Most people are afraid of plants. I'm happy to rap with people about them, and I suggest that they start with easier plants. They will have more luck with less fragile plants," she explained.

GOOD PLANTS she suggests for beginners are Swedish Joy, Wandering Jew, and the Scheffelera plant. Coleus is too sensitive, needing lots of light and care, she added.

Essential for indoor potted plants are four things, she explained. They need light, watering, a change of position and regular routine feeding. She prefers the spraying method of watering "because the plant remains watered, a little remains on the leaves and continues to drip down," Mrs. Guaraldi said.

The serenity of nurturing leafy things is a far cry from Mrs. Guaraldi's busy years as the wife of Vince Guaraldi, jazz pianist. She arranged all of the musician's bookings and traveled with him all over the United States. Their marriage ended in dissolution in 1970. Their relation remains amicable and they share concern for their son, David, 18, and daughter, Dia, 14.

Her own first career was in fashion. A former model and fashion coordinator, she also wrote a fashion column for three years. Marinites may remember her for the fashion shows to rock music that Shirley Guaraldi organized at the Trident restaurant in Sausalito.

"One day I found that I was up to my neck in clothes, and I was sick of it," she recalled. "I had always had plants at home, and I decided to learn more about them. I got up at 4 a.m. to go to the flower market in San Francisco. I learned the plant business by talking to the growers, who were wonderfully helpful to me."

Before establishing her own business, she did all the plants at the Ice House in San Francisco.

"PLANTS ARE a heavy part of decorating today," the Plant Mama said. "In a home plants can be used instead of furniture."

She also advises customers on the ways plants can fit into their decorating scheme, and keeps living greens in professional offices and commercial establishments.

The interest of her daughter, whom she dubs "Baby Plant Mama," in the cultivation of plants, has inspired Mrs. Guaraldi to start a class for children.

"Children can learn to propagate plants, and they love to see things grow," Shirley Guaraldi said, as she carefully moved a small pot to a friendlier location.

"PLANTS GET lonesome," according to Shirley Guaraldi, self-styled "Plant Mama" of Sausalito. She had a few kind words for the healthy Wandering Jew she was trimming. (Photo by Jim Kean)

TEL-MED TAPES

Health Answers Over The Phone

By KAREN PETERSON

A worried mother wants to know what medicines in the home could be dangerous to her child. A confused youth, who wants to remain anonymous, needs information on venereal disease and where to go for treatment. A busy executive wonders about high blood pressure and heart disease.

A simple telephone call to Tel-Med gives these people and other callers, mainly women, concise authoritative information on general health from one of a library of more than 90 tapes both in English and Spanish.

Sponsored by The Sonoma County Medical Association and in operation since the end of December, Tel-Med is the first public medical information service of its kind in Northern California. Through basic medical information, the Tel-Med tape program will help allay groundless fears, dispel old wives tales and focus on the important aspects of a disease process, according to William E. Tewksbury, assistant executive director of the medical association.

THE CALLER, who remains anonymous, can dial one of the toll-free numbers, describe his area of interest to the operator, and listen to an updated, medically approved three to six-minute tape of information.

Tel-Med was developed by the San Bernardino County Medical Association with the aid of a U.S. Department of Housing, Education and Welfare grant. Now, after just a short time in operation, the Southern California program receives over 100,000 calls a month. The Santa Rosa-based program, which is still enlarging its library from the more than 250 available tapes, receives about 25 or 30 calls a day, said Tewksbury, and these calls are the result mainly of word-of-mouth.

From just a rough tally, Tewksbury reported that most of the callers are women and the most popular tapes have been those on venereal disease, drug abuse and abortion. He also noted that the tapes on teen-agers and rebellion, the woman living alone, and "Fears of the After 40 Man" have had surprising popularity.

THE TAPES, he said, have been medically authenticated by a review board of Sonoma County medical specialists, updated medically and substituted with locations and telephone numbers of specific crisis and public service agencies in Sonoma County for further information and help.

The tapes will continue to be updated with any new medical discoveries from the organization in San Bernardino, said Tewksbury.

Both the medical profession and health and counseling agencies are highly supportive of the program, he said, especially the county public health department and the Drug Abuse Council because of the program's treatment of venereal disease and drug use. Other agencies supporting the program include the heart and

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Unwed And Pregnant Daughter Doesn't Want To Name Father

DEAR HELEN:

My daughter is pregnant and wants to keep her baby. The father is married and has now returned to his wife, who knows nothing about the short affair.

Not wanting to get him in trouble, my daughter has told no one who the father is, even though he's able to pay child support. He himself doesn't know about the baby and she wants to keep it that way. She says it's her fault.

I've heard that a woman can't get welfare aid for her child unless she tells who the father is. She'll need welfare for a little while until she can find work and start supporting herself and the baby.

Is it true that an innocent child should be penalized because the mother won't "accuse" the father? — T.W.

DEAR MRS. W.:

I believe the law you mention has been ruled unconstitutional in your state. To make sure, why don't you call the welfare department? An identification won't be necessary — in case you're worried about giving away your daughter's secret. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a 7-year-old daughter I've raised mostly by myself. Two years ago I met and married a wonderful man. We have a new baby, whom Amy loves.

But the problem is: Amy, my daughter, hates me. She'd rather fight with me than give me a hug and kiss. I can't understand why she treats me like dirt, as I've done everything for her.

My husband can talk to her and she seems to listen, but as soon as he leaves, she's hateful again. What can I do? — UNWANTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER:

I'm glad you asked "What can I do?" rather than "Why does my daughter hate me?" Probably even she couldn't answer that question. (And possibly she wonders why you hate her).

A child psychologist might dig to the roots of the problem. Get a referral from your family doctor or the Mental Health Association. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In reply to the controversy over the punctuation of "Woman without her man is incomplete," who cares whether the comma is after woman or man?

The main thing is that either way is correct. From caveman (and woman) days, females have strived, dressed or undressed to please their men, and men have strived likewise to please their women. It has always been the male way to make a nest for the woman, and woman's way to hunt for a nest.

Woman should be on a pedestal about one-half inch higher than man, so that he can adore her, because basically that is what both she and the man want. But man must have his own pedestal on the same ratio.

She wants all the little niceties that man gives to his woman. He will work to the bone for her, in return for lots of love, fidelity, companionship, trust. He does not want to be equal, and I doubt that most women really want to be equal to man.

Just think of the emptiness without a mate. After all, what's a nameplate on a desk? Is hopping from one unsatisfactory affair to another enough? I'm for Woman plus Man, or Man plus Woman — they can function without one another, but they aren't really complete. — JUST A WOMAN

DEAR J. WOMAN:

Or, in the words of Helen Rowland, "Love is woman's eternal spring and man's eternal fall." — H.

lung associations and the blood bank.

The tapes go into specific details, said Tewksbury, giving, for instance, instructions on how a woman can examine herself for breast cancer. They go into things that people may not ask their doctors, he said, and they could possibly "save someone from getting something later on."

The tapes are not designed to treat any certain illness and they contain "nothing that would be frightening," he added. "They're totally for public information and referral."

Fourteen of the tapes are recorded in Spanish. These tapes, as well as being available through Tel-Med, are aired over KBBF Radio in Santa Rosa, a Spanish-American station.

TEL-MED will soon have brochures listing the titles and tape numbers in county libraries, Chambers of Commerce, schools, doctor's offices, hospitals and newspapers. Some of the topics available include menopause, vasectomy, pregnancy, birth control, the heart, the respiratory system, cancer, skin disorders, the digestive system, arthritis, first aid, childhood diseases, tension, anemia and influenza. Dental care and veterinary medicine tapes are also available.

Tel-Med is now open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Saturdays. It is closed on Sundays. Petaluma, Cotati and Rohnert Park will soon have a toll-free number, Tewksbury said.

PARENT AND CHILD

How About School Press Freedom?

(This column is for pupils who write for their school newspapers.)

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

A friend of mine is in grade six in a school in the United States. He told me that he was "hassled" over a piece he had written for his school newspaper, that his parents had to intervene, that he had been made to write and rewrite and that the article was never published.

But, let's hear directly from him.

"My name is Josh Binswanger. One day in our school our class was asked to write some editorials for our school newspaper. I chose to write about the Watergate incident.

"After I was done, I showed it to my teacher, and she said it was okay. Well, a few days later I was asked to come down to the principal's office, and she said that I made some statements and said nothing to back them up. She said that if somehow my editorial got to the public, the school could be sued.

"She asked me to make some changes in the editorial, so I did. In my second editorial I wrote the following:

"I feel that Watergate is a national crisis. I feel that this crisis will affect our country for three reasons: (1) Republicans might lose respect for their party; (2) the people might lose respect for their government; (3) other governments will think America's government is untrustworthy.

"'I think that even though Richard Nixon is our President, I feel that he knew and participated in the Watergate cover-up. I feel that way because: (1) Mr. Cox was fired when he demanded the Watergate tapes; (2) President Nixon had waited a long time before he let Judge Sirica listen to the tapes; (3) one of the key tapes was erased. I just hope that justice prevails.'"

That was not the end of it for Josh. But by now his family was in on the issue. His parents were particularly displeased with the suggestion that what was written by schoolchildren in a school newspaper might bring a lawsuit.

But, let Josh continue his story:

"When I finished my editorial, I brought it back to school so the principal could check it over. I was surprised to hear that she still would not accept it even though I stated my reasons on why I wrote the editorial.

"That day she never said she would print it, but she never said she couldn't print it. So, a little later my mom asked if she could take it to the district superintendent of schools. He looked at it and said it was perfectly all right.

"I waited a long time and still the school didn't print it. What finally happened was that I read it over the loudspeaker in our school. But that's not the same as having my editorial in the school newspaper."

What do you, the reader, think about this? Should the principal have let Josh's editorial appear in the school newspaper? Was Josh right to take it to the superintendent?

What is the situation at your school? Do the authorities tell you what you can and cannot say in your school newspaper?

If you are not in the United States do you have a school newspaper? Could you write an editorial criticizing your prime minister or head of government?

If you go to school in the United States would you be able to write an editorial such as that of Josh and have it printed?

Theater Party Raises $623.20

Members of the Old Mill Branch of Marin General Hosptial Volunteers raised $623.20 Saturday night at a fund raising theater party at the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The branch sponsored the Ross Valley Players production of "Ready When You Are, C.B." Chairman of the fifth annual fund raising theater party were Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul Hurd of Mill Valley.

Fourth Of Learning Series Set

"The Community as a Resource" is the topic for the fourth program in the Dynamic Learning Series, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Tamalpais High School Library in Mill Valley.

The series is sponsored by the Mill Valley Area Branch of the American Association of University Women in cooperation with the Dominican College Inservice program and the Marin County Superintendent of Schools.

Panelists who will discuss the topic are Gene Turtle of the Marin County Schools Office and a trustee for the Community College; Clare Broadhead and Esther Padway, principals in the Mill Valley Elementary School District, and Roger Flage, teacher in inter-related Studies at Tamalpais High School. Mrs. Phyllis Miller of the AAUW branch is chairman.

An educational film, "Inside Out", which focuses on schools without walls in the Parkway program in Philadelphia, Pa., will be shown.

Mrs. Paul's asks:

Are there natural onion rings in the onion rings you buy?

Mrs. Paul's makes the natural ring.

This is the real, genuine onion ring made by Mrs. Paul's. Because inside the delicious outer covering, is a real, genuine natural onion ring.

Mrs. Paul's makes onion rings only one way. The same way you would: with all natural ingredients.

Just read our list of ingredients. You'll find that each one starts out with a thick, juicy natural onion ring. Then it's dipped in a delightful batter and deep fried to perfection.

Mrs. Paul's goes to the trouble of making onion rings the natural way for a very good reason: taste. We guarantee your satisfaction or your money back.

Other onion rings aren't what they appear to be.

On the surface this looks like an onion ring. But inside there isn't any natural ring of onion.

If you read the ingredients panel on their package, you'll find that their "onion ring" is really diced, chopped onions mixed in a batter and shaped like an onion ring.

The Road To Inner Peace Open To Each One Of Us

By JOAN LISETOR

Diane Rose did not know how to get to San Rafael Friday afternoon from her home in Hayward for an interview. She tried to reach her father, who could give her directions, but he was unavailable. She didn't think her sister would know, but "something" made her ask.

Her sister knew and gave her the directions. Miss Rose was wondering about toll bridges, and as the thought crossed her mind her sister said, "If you go across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, you will only have to pay bridge toll once."

Not a dramatic psychic experience, Miss Rose said, but an example of what the Innter Peace Movement has done for her, teaching her to use the psychic powers we all possess.

Miss Rose is a promotional aide for the Inner Peace Movement in Central California and travels extensively, holding seminars, conferring with local leaders and assisting them in setting up workshops.

CURRENTLY SHE is on what the movement calls a thrust, a tour of 100 cities between February and May. She will lecture tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Crocker Bank, Fourth and B Streets in San Rafael. The following night at the bank she will present a technique clinic.

She defines the Innter Peace Movement as self awareness training to help people learn what is going on around them.

"We all have two natures, the conscious, or thinking self, and the unconscious, or feeling self. The unconscious is the real part, but most of us don't realize we have it. Society has taught us to suppress it or call it women's intuition. We all have this ability but women are more receptive to it. When men grow up they don't trust their feelings," she said.

When one understands that unconscious thinking is a real sense of communication he learns ways to go into himself for inner guidance, Miss Rose said.

"The Innter Peace Movement teaches us to interpret the accuracy of our premonitions. They are a high source of wisdom to people who know how sensitive they are," she said.

The movement teaches there are four different ways to interpret life. There is the intuitive person, the visionary, the prophetic and the feeling. Each of us lives primarily by one of these types and partially the other three.

"WE ALL interpret life differently. The intuitive is fast-moving, a leader and seldom needs direction. He is a clear thinker but sometimes seems rude or blunt," she explained.

"The prophetic has dreams that often come true, and he is concerned for the future. He has a gift of inner knowing that he can't explain. He is sensitive, but if he gets out of balance he seems nosy.

"A feeling person is a healer, sensitive to others feelings. He emanates his feelings, good or bad, and likes to work with details. He responds to things by how they feel to him.

"The visionary responds by how things look" she continued. "When a visionary talks to you he looks you in the eye. He responds to color."

Knowing what category you fall into helps you to understand yourself better and makes you better able to communicate with others, she said. Also knowing another person's perception helps you to relate better to that person.

Learning to bring the four perceptions into a better balance is another aspect of the training, she said.

"If you understand what you don't like about yourself, you can change it," she said. "Everybody has the same potential energy if he learns to use it. Someone who you think of as lazy just lacks the incentive, which gives energy."

The goal is to reprogram yourself with positive thoughts, she said.

"NOBODY ELSE can make you happy. We already have the things we seek in others. It is just finding them in ourselves, knowing they are there. If you put too much importance on another person, that person will often walk out on you," she said.

An unconscious part of us sets us up in situations, forcing us to resolve the situations. The solutions are the efforts that make us grow, she said.

Miss Rose's interest in the Inner Peace Movement began a few years ago, when she heard about it from a friend. She had felt herself withdrawing and losing incentive as a hairdresser, she said.

She had a profile done, and found out she was a visionary. Her interest grew and she took some courses at the Americana Leadership College in Osceola, Iowa. She has been an aide for one year and continues to attend regional camps and seminars for additional training.

"I don't try to convert people," she said. "I just live it and people start to see how much easier things are for me."

DISCOVERY GROUPS will be formed by local leaders following Miss Rose's lecture tomorrow. In these groups participants will learn to encounter ideas about themselves and their relationships with others, she said. The training takes in a small bit of meditation, scientology and assertive training.

"The key is to let what you learn flow and trust your hunches and feelings," she said.

If fruit floats after canning, it probably was packed raw with some air remaining in its tissues. It floats because it is lighter than the syrup. Or it may have been packed too loosely or in extra heavy syrup.

ART REVIEW

Unusual Combinations shown In Works Of Three Artists

By ADA GARFINKEL

Genesis Gallery's featured artists this month are a weaver who works with unusual combinations of media, a painter of the outdoors and one who explores the past and present in three different art forms.

Matilda Franz' exquisitely loomed weavings are more than just hangings. They are created for special places akin to the art objects in a Japanese tokonoma alcove.

Frequently the weavings are looped, knotted or draped into sculptural forms and combined with Mrs. Franz' ceramic or wooden sculptural pieces.

"Rick-Rack" is a fringed panel, its bottom end tied in a loose knot. It is draped casually over long wooden pincers whose inner edges are smoothly and rhythmically scalloped.

"Charade" is loosely woven in variegated orange tones and hangs suspended from a glazed ceramic sculpture of intertwined serpents.

"Out on a Limb" — a floor piece of nylon and heavy wool cord is transformed from "area rug" status to environmental sculpture by the presence of three hollow ceramic "limbs" spanning its surface.

Betty Jo Norton's monochromatic, thinly-stained oil paintings of misty forest scenes are a spiritual evocation of exalted feelings experienced in the hushed stillness and grandeur of wooded areas.

Her paintings, though they bear titles of specific places, time of day, and seasons, are however, purely imaginery, according to the artist.

James Fowler's strongly colored prints are nostalgic recollections of his own happy childhood, his wife's ancestral family life in China, and of their present shared life.

Most of the prints combine a process of photo-etching, etching, and multi-viscosity printing. The latter requires the usage of soft and hard rollers and different densities of oil in the printing inks to produce special color-separation effects and deposits.

Scenes from past and present occur side by side in movie-still and flashback fashion — a cameo portrait, a fishing scene, picket fence, rose arbor, family members. A vintage Buick and Grandpa seem omnipresent.

Each print is embellished with drawn personal symbols — a heart, a clock face indicating passage of time, landscape and planetary fragments, birds, frogs, and other life forms.

Fowler's small raku ceramics are organically inspired and bear no resemblance to his previous pop-art lustreware sculptures.

Several of his present works are semi-functional; others are sculptural. A shell-like mollusk form is especially nice.

Fowler's black-and-white photos contain unusual scenes of an old, deserted factory building in West Oakland. Its broken smoke stack, crumbling, ornate wall, and a pair of old-fashioned, high-top shoe forms he found there are among his best.

This show will continue through March 30, weekdays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The gallery is located on the second floor at 2 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley.

Art Display

Paintings, drawings and stitchery by Fairfax artist Susan Shippey will be on display during the month of April at the Mill Valley Public Library, 375 Throckmorton Avenue.

Open Space Purchase Transaction Near

Negotiations on a transaction which will make it easier for the city of Mill Valley to buy 22 acres of North Ridge as open space should be completed in the next few weeks, according to city Councilman Robert E. Capron who arranged the deal.

The proposal was first suggested two years ago and involves a parcel on the toe of Warner Ridge overlooking the city's downtown area.

Under the transaction, the landowner, the Mill Valley Community Church, will sell its holdings for $85,000 to the Nature Conservancy which will in turn lease the property to Mill Valley and give the city a four-year option to buy the land.

According to Capron, the Nature Conservancy has four years before it has to begin payments on the property. It expects to make these payments with money obtained from the city under the lease-option agreement.

If the Nature Conservancy cannot redeem the property within the next 14 years, the church can foreclose on the land. But whatever money has been paid will be credited towards preserving at least part of the parcel as green space.

Capron said that the deal might be used as one way to persuade the county to spend more of funds in the North Ridge area. "The city may eventually be willing to assign rights to the property to the county," he said.

A major advantage to the church in the deal is that it will not have to pay property taxes under the agreement. The Nature Conservancy is tax-exempt.

The church also will retain the right to hold services on one acre within the parcel.

Capron said that documents involved in the transaction will be discussed by the planning commission on March 25 and by the city council on April 1.

California's Traffic Toll Down Again

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Traffic deaths during the second month of California's new 55 miles per hour "energy crisis" speed limit fell to the lowest level in 20 years, the Highway Patrol said yesterday.

The February traffic toll took 205 lives — the lowest figure since February of 1954 when there were only 193 traffic deaths.

Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski cited the gasoline shortage and the reduced speed limit as the "two probably factors" in the drop.

In January, the first month of the 55 miles-per-hour limit, there were 263 traffic fatalities — the lowest total since 1962.

This year's January-February total of 459 deaths is down 200 from 1973 totals for those months, the patrol said.

"Compard to last year there have been 97 less deaths on city streets where the new speed limit does not apply," Pudinski said.

"So it is logical to assume that the gasoline shortage cut down on the amount of traffic present on city streets," he added.

"I believe lower traffic volumes combined with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit were responsible for the drop of fatalities on state highways and county roads," Pudinski said.

Candy Bunnies Being Recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Easter bunnies made by a Canadian chocolate factory have been recalled from U.S. candy shelves by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) because they may contain salmonella bacteria.

If the bunnies, along with other chocolate products made by the firm are contaminated, they could cause fever, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea if eaten.

The FDA said yesterday the products made by Regent Chocolates Ltd., of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada, are distributed in the United States under their name and 15 other private labels.

Train Runs Return To The Valley

FRESNO (UPI) — Regular passenger train service returned to the San Joaquin Valley yesterday for the first time in nearly three years.

Amtrak officials held ceremonies at the Oakland terminal for the first southbound run which carried dignitaries and members of the news media.

Stops were scheduled for Martinez, Stockton, Riverbank (near Modesto), Merced, Fresno, Hanford and Bakersfield.

At the first stop in Martinez, several hundred persons turned out for the arrival of the "San Joaquin" which carried only four chair cars.

Regular two-way service was to begin today with one daily run in each direction.

Southbound passengers en route to Los Angeles and northbound passengers seeking to reach San Francisco must make connections by bus.

One way fares between Oakland and Bakersfield are $14 and take six hours and 45 minutes to complete.

400 Music Students In Concert

Some 400 music students from Marin elementary schools, who had their first joint rehearsal on Feb. 23, will appear in the annual Marin County Honor Music Festival Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Veterans Memorial Building theater at the Civic Center.

The festival will present orchestra, band and chorus chosen from among students in the upper grades of elementary schools throughout the county. It is the annual renewal of a project started in 1965 and which "died" twice only to be revived each time after a one-year lapse.

Directing the band this year will be John Schuster, music director of Petaluma High School. Laurence Short, orchestra director of Burlingame High School, will be in charge of the orchestra, and John Land, choral director of Lowell High School in San Francisco, directing the chorus.

The festival was initiated in 1965 by Hyman Krongard, vocal director of Reed School District, with the help of music teachers from other schools in the county. It lapsed the following year, but was revived in 1967 by the Marin County School Music Teachers' Association.

That organization, however, disbanded in 1971 and the festival "died" again that year, to be revived in 1972 through efforts of Krongard and Virgil S. Hollis, county schools superintendent. Since then, it has been held annually.

Cosponsors of the festival since its 1972 revival have been the music teachers of Marin County schools, the county superintendent's office, and Marin Masonic lodges.

Controversial Genetics Figure Is Shouted Down

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Dr. William Shockley, who advocates controversial genetic theories about blacks, was shouted down by about 100 protesters at the University of Georgia last night when he tried to speak at a debate.

Wild shoving matches erupted on the small platform where Shockley was to have debated Dr. Lyle Schoenfeldt, associate professor of psychology at the University of Georgia. The demonstrators, most of whom were black, chanted "To hell with Schockley."

Despite Schoenfeldt's plea to let Shockley speak, plainclothes campus police escorted the Stanford University engineering professor out a back door. Schockely has suggested that blacks score poorly on intelligence tests because of cultural and economic inequities.

Mill Valley Geology Lecture Planned

'Voice of Democracy' Dinner Set March 15

Awards to the four winners of the Veterans of Foreign Wars' annual "Voice of Democracy" competition for Marin County high school students will be presented at a dinner meeting March 15 at 7:30 p.m. at Lin-Fa Restaurant in Northgate.

In addition, the sponsoring Tamalpais Post 72 of VFW will honor three lawmen for their work in solving the murder of Ranger Kenneth C. Patrick in Point Reyes National Seashore.

The three are Bryant Watkins of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Ranger Herbert Gercke of the National Park Service, and Deputy Sheriff William Johansen.

Winner of first place and a $100 U.S. savings bond in the "Voice of Democracy" competition is Ernest D. Stewart Jr., a student at Marin Catholic High School. Second place award of a $75 savings bond will go to Melynda Heacox of Terra Linda High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Heacox; third place and a $50 bond to Linda Perani of San Rafael High School, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Perani, and fourth place and a $25 bond to Michael Schilling of Terra Linda High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schilling. All four of this year's winners are San Rafael residents.

The contest is held annually. Awards are for the best speeches on citizenship subjects, with selection of the winners made by a committee from the VFW post.

Speakers at the presentation dinner will be Charles W. Bates, special agent in charge of the San Francisco FBI office; Chief Ranger Dan Murphy of Point Reyes National Seashore, and a representative of Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos. Irving J. Blabon, VFW post adjutant, is chairman of the affair.

Colteaux Is Hub's Top Vote Getter

San Anselmo Planning Commission chairman John H. Colteaux led a field of six candidates in yesterday's election for three city council seats, followed by incumbent Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro and second-time council candidate Pieter Toal.

The unofficial ballot count showed Colteaux received 1,638 votes; Capurro, 1,418 votes; Toal, 1,366 votes; Lyn Fischbein, 1,273 votes; Sarah Nome, 947 votes, and Edward L. Henley, 496 votes.

Though two of the winners and most of the losers campaigned strenuously, voter turnout was the second lightest of any of the 10 Marin County cities in which elections were held yesterday. Only 32.4 per cent of the city's 7,682 registered voters turned out — a total of 2,597.

Capurro, reached at home after the tally was completed, said the voters apparently approved his record since he was elected to the council 12 years ago.

Front-runner Colteaux credited a large, hard-working group of supporters for his win, and noted that Toal had "knocked on doors" all over the city to meet and win voters.

Winners and losers alike in the San Anselmo contests had called for preserving the city's small-town atmosphere, but offered slightly different ideas on how to achieve the goal.

Toal had reported paying campaign visits to 93 per cent of the voters' homes in the city, walking its length and breadth on foot for weeks.

Special Toll Book Approved

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The state Toll Bridge Authority yesterday approved a $5 ticket book good for five tolls on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge by privately owned noncommercial trucks.

The only ticket book previously offered drivers of such vehicles contains 20 tickets and cost $21, according to Robert Hardgrove, publicist for the Toll District administration.

Tickets bought separately for passage over the bridge by such trucks cost $2.50, he noted.

The new ticket book will be available in April.

SHARING COSTS, HOUSEWORK, MEALS

Living Together Because They Like Each Other

By REBECCA LARSEN

Last summer a Tamalpais Valley couple was trying to rent their home so that they could take a one-year trip to England where the husband had landed a temporary scientific research job.

The wanted to rent to a family but because of the price, $350 per month, and the short length of the lease, they couldn't find any takers. Finally they leased to two law students.

A week after they left, there were five or six people living in the house. Some neighbors reported that two more were sleeping in the garage. Six cars were parked out front. Moving vans came and went on the narrow street for several weeks.

The landlord discovered the situation when he made a business trip to the Bay Area in the fall. "But what could I do?" he said. "I've got to have the rent to keep up the house payments."

There is probably not an area or city in Marin that has not shared gossip or complaints about similar group households. And the trend seems to be picking up. Even in high priced communities like Tiburon and Belvedere, group living situations have popped up.

A San Francisco consulting firm which is doing a study of the economic impact of the county general plan recently estimated that 25 per cent of the county's households already are filled with groups of unrelated adults. If the county's housing prices continue to increase at a greater rate than income does, the percentage of such households is likely to increase as well, say the consultants.

"It was rare to see share rental ads in the paper eight or nine years ago," said Barbara Johnson, a supervisor in the Independent-Journal's classified advertising department. "Maybe there would be 1 or 2 per day. They began to pick up with the exodus of the flower children from San Francisco to Marin. They've really grown in the last four or five years."

So in 1990, the average homeowner may find three or four houses on his block with at least three or four single wage-earning adults living in them.

In fact there may be a chance that such households could become the majority on the block. The ramifications are mind boggling —a continued shrinkage in the number of children in county schools, a big increase in the number of cars per household; more demand for services catering to single and childless adults, such as bars, restaurants and leisure time facilities.

Some Marin cities have tried to control the trend by limiting the number of unrelated persons living in a single-family home at one time. But most restrictions are hard to enforce. One such law from a city on the East Coast is now being challenged before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Although the typical group is in its mid-20s, usually holding middle income jobs, some shared rentals involve elderly persons who can't handle the high cost-of-living on a fixed income.

One older woman looking for another woman to rent a two-bedroom house with her says she's desperate. "I don't even eat anymore. The rent is $240 a month here, and I can't afford it. I had three dogs, and I had to give up one because Ijust couldn't feed him anymore."

Some shared rentals are professional or semiprofessional single people who don't want the responsibility of owning a home.

"We used to joke about one of these group houses in Tiburon that there wasn't a car parked in front of it that was priced under $7,000," said the city's mayor Branwell D. Fanning. "It appeared to have been a commune of very affluent executives."

However, the chief motiviation for forming a shared rental group still seems to be saving money.

Diane Rabinowitz, a substitute teacher in San Francisco who lives in the Alto area, notes that the three in her group have to pay $125 per month each. "We were lucky to find rent as low as this in Marin County."

"We pay $470 per month in Mill Valley for our total rent," says 26-year-old Bill, who didn't give his last name, part owner of an outdoor advertising business, who lives in a house in Blithedale Canyon. "But that's cheap. There's one group up the hill paying $680 per month."

His group includes two men and two women with jobs as waitresses in Tiburon, as a freeland moviemaker and as a computer programmer.

"Mostly when you're looking for someone to add to the group you look for people you can live with. Like one girl who said she didn't care about the room or how much the rent was. She just wanted to know what we were like. We knew right away she would work out."

Bill also confides that a group of equal numbers of men and women, who are not boyfriends and girlfriends, is the best setup.

"It's bad for people in the house to have relationships. You usually find that the others get really down about it.

"I also couldn't live here if there were three women and me as the only man. There'd be too much femininity around."

Carol Posacki, a 25-year-old legal secretary from San Anselmo, who is in a group of two men and two women, says she would like to live alone. "But it's a necessity to share if you live in Marin."

Her group includes a karate teacher, a clerk and a landscaper.

Most groups contend that they are not "communes" in the way that that word was used in the mid-1960s.

"A lot of people have images when they see groups living together that there is a commune going on, something despicable," said Arden Jewett, a part-time art student and waitress in her mid-20s living in Novato.

"I like to think of us as living together because we like each other. It's so much cheaper, and it eases the responsibilities. We all have separate jobs around the house. One person doesn't get stuck with all the work."

She and her housemates pay $73 each per month for rent. She claims they have no complaints from neighbors.

The cities that try to legislate against the practice mainly are concerned about the outwardly visible impact effects of groups on neighborhoods.

"It's the external impacts we have to get at," said Fanning. "What they do inside the house is their own problem. Some of these places have 25 to 30 autos out front on weekends."

One Reed Ranch Road resident in Tiburon, who lives across the street from a group, says that last weekend she and her husband counted 17 cars at the shared home.

So the Tiburon City Council is debating adding a clause to the zoning ordinance to limit the number of unrelated persons in one household.

San Rafael talked about a limit of five but decided to postpone the idea for at least a year. Other involved cities include Larkspur with a limit of five, Belvedere with a limit of two, Mill Valley with a limit of five, and Sausalito with a limit of three.

A similar law in Belle Terre, Long Island, which sets a limit of two unrelated persons per single-family house is now being debated before the U.S. Supreme Court.

It appears that most cities rarely exercise these laws.

One Hillside Avenue house in Mill Valley which neighbors claimed was a real, live hippie commune was allowed to continue even after Mill Valley legislated against large groups. It was a legal nonconforming use, one which had existed before the law was passed. It finally broke up as members drifted off to new homes.

Most city planning directors report no complaints about such households.

If they were uncovered, cities would find it difficult to prove that these households exceeded the limits. What's to stop a group from claiming that members were distant cousins, or stepbrothers and stepsisters?

Since most groups usually add up to five or under, they would fit into almost all cities with limits on household size anyway.

Could shared rentals become a trend that will take place everywhere because of the high cost of housing? And if it does, will a large number of middle class families be living two or three to a house someday? A 2500-square-foot home for an upper middle class mother, father and two children might then become a thing of the past.

Incumbents Dumped In Sausalito

Sausalito may have become the first city in California to be governed by women yesterday as voters elected a third woman to the council and dumped two male incumbents.

Voters were in the mood for a change as they chose Violeta Autumn, a 43-year-old architect and planning commissioner, and Leonard F. Rappa, a 32-year-old attorney.

Ousted in the upheaval were Earl F. Dunphy, who served on the council from 1936 to 1944 and from 1964 to the present, and Stephen A. Fraser, who had been seeking a second term.

Mrs. Autumn's election brings a female majority to the council, joining Councilman Sally Stanford and Mayor Robin Sweeny. (Local and state municipal government watchers could recall no other woman-dominated city government in California history.)

Development on the city's waterfront — how much and what kind — surfaced early as one of the campaign's most pressing issues.

Mrs. Autumn had favored the most stringest control on waterfront building, believing it should be limited to marine-oriented uses and that residential and tourist-oriented projects should be forbidden.

Dunphy had envisioned hotels, restaurants and other commercial enterprises — primarily marine-oriented — on the water, projects which he said would strengthen the city's tax base.

Rappa said he would permit commercial, residential and light industrial projects there, provided they are controlled and generate little traffic.

Fraser was a supporter of the proposed Schoonmaker development, a residential, commercial and recreational project. He favored "a good, low intensity development" in Marinship, with the city requiring the developers to provide public access to the water and underground parking.

"We have a beautiful town," enthused Mrs. Autumn, the top vote-getter. "The people of Sausalito worked very hard for something they believed in."

Dunphy, 69, a machinist for a San Francisco newspaper, said he was "naturally surprised" by the voters' verdict. He refused to comment further.

Fraser, a writer and part-time waiter, said the election results "prove that fear is the dominant emotion in political campaigns.

"Violeta and Rappa ran on a big lie," he continued. "They said if they weren't elected, the town would be raped by big development. And that's simply not true. Apparently those who can tell the biggest lies and engender the most fear will win," Fraser said. "It's obvious the lessons of Watergate haven't been learned in Sausalito. It just goes to show that Hitler's election in 1933 was no fluke."

But he added: "If they can pull the town together, I'm for it. The city is more important than individuals."

Mrs. Autumn led the field with 1,273 votes. Rappa, who ran unsuccessfully for the council in 1972, received 1,071 ballots.

Other vote totals were: Dunphy, 835; Fraser, 369; William Henry Hanna, 15; David Lent, a videographer, 27; W. Daniel O'Connor, an engineering executive and shop owner, 623; Charles L. Peet, 29, and Serge Trubach, artist, 73 votes.

A total of 2,229, or 47.5 per cent of the city's eligible voters cast ballots in the election.

LOT OF LOAVES OF BREAD

An estimated three million tons of grain will never see the inside of a baker's oven as the result of a raging fire that gutted a huge grain elevator in Minneapolis early this morning. Reported shortly after midnight, the fire was first reported as a two-alarmer and then escalated into four alarms. At the height of the blaze the west wall of the elevator collapsed in a wall of flame.

Life Of Girl, 3, Saved By Terra Linda Student

A 3-year-old girl's life was saved yesterday when a nearby teen-ager rescued her from a swimming pool and administered artificial respiration, according to her father.

John R. Lenhart said his daughter Michelle was riding her tricycle when she tumbled into the swimming pool of their apartment building at 125 Nova Albion Way, San Rafael.

Cindy Giannini, a resident of the same building and a freshman at Terra Linda High School, saw the young girl fall into the pool and rushed to her rescue. Lenhart said the teen-ager was also responsible for summoning police and an ambulance.

Michelle was taken to Marin General Hospital, examined and released last night, Lenhart said.

Water District Told Gas Allocation Down

The North Marin County Water District, like everyone else, is having a gasoline problem.

Auditor Sage L. Morris reported the district, which receives fuel from Shell Oil Co. under the Marin County contract, this month has been promised only 60 per cent of the amount it received in March 1972.

The district has requested additional fuel and if it is not forthcoming, some services will have to be cut, he said.

District directors last night set April 2 for the sale of $4.9 million in bonds to finance the district's share of the cost of a new aqueduct from Cotati to the Russian River.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

HOSPITAL CONNECTION — Approved a four-inch fire extension for an internal sprinkler system at Canyon Manor Convalescent Hospital on Canyon Road.

GEOLOGY SERVICES — Awarded Harding-Lawson associates, soils engineers, a contract for a soils and geology study at the Pacheco Reservoir site, at a cost of up to $2,000.

TREATMENT PLANT — Approved painting and beautification at the Stafford treatment plant, estimated to cost $7,100.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 9:30 a.m. Saturday for a tour of the Warm Springs dam site, starting from the district office, 99 Atherton Avenue, Novato.

Two GM Divisions Cutting Big Autos

DETROIT (UPI) — The Buick and Oldsmobile divisions of General Motors Corp. will cut back production of big cars again next week because of slumping sales.

Oldsmobile spokesmen yesterday said an additional 1,283 workers will be laid off indefinitely next Monday at the division's home plant in Lansing, Mich. Buick will idle 3,200 workers for one week starting Monday at the assembly plant in Flint, Mich.

Team To Probe Jet Accident

EDMONTON, ALTA. (UPI) — A team of military experts from Texas was dispatched today to determine why a small window blew out on a U.S. Air Force jet yesterday, killing one of the 33 military men aboard.

A spokesman for the Canadian Armed Forces Base near Edmonton, where the plane made an emergency landing, said the KC135 jet tanker was flying at 35,000 feet, about 40 miles southeast of Fort Nelson, B.C., when the incident occurred.

The identity of the dead man was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

BILLY DeWOLFE

Noted Film Comedian Of 1940s Dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Billy de Wolfe, vaudeville dancer turned dapper mustachioed comic actor in movies of the 1940s, died yesterday at UCLA Medical Center.

Death was believed caused by lung cancer, a hospital spokesman said. He had been hospitalized since Feb. 26.

De Wolfe was believed to have been in his late 60s. He apparently went to some trouble to conceal his age, which is not listed in any of the standard reference works giving biographical details of celebrities.

However, one reference book, "The Filmgoer's Companion," lists his birth year as 1905.

De Wolfe was born Bill Jones in Walliston, Mass., and got his start in the entertainment business as a theater usher there. He joined the Jimmy O'Connor band as a dancer, and toured Europe with a dance team.

He appeared on the London stage in "Revels in Rhythm," and toured the United States and Canada as a comic.

His early movies included "Miss Suzy Flagle's," "Our Hearts Were Growing Up," "Perils of Pauline," and "Isn't It Romantic?"

He appeared in "Dear Ruth," "Dear Wife," and "Dear Brat," "Tea for Two," "Lullaby of Broadway" and "Call Me Madam."

He usually played comedy roles, sometimes as a comic villain.

Youth Enters Guilty Plea

A San Rafael teen-ager pleaded guilty yesterday to misdemeanor grand theft, thus averting a scheduled preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court.

Timothy Paul Slattery, 19, will be sentenced April 12. He was arrested in December after San Rafael police reported finding $896 in cash during a search. Slattery told officers he found the money in a bank bag at a service station.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday March 6, the 65th day of 1974 with 300 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evenings stars are Mars and Saturn.

British poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning, wife of poet Robert Browning, was born March 6, 1806.

On this day in history:

In 1836, Mexican forces captured the Alamo in San Antonio, Tex., killing the last of 187 Americans who had held out for 13 days.

In 1857, the United States Supreme Court handed down its landmark ruling that Negro slave Dred Scott could not sue for his freedom in a federal court.

In 1964, King Paul of Greece died at the age of 62 and was replaced by his son, Prince Constantine.

In 1968, Joseph Martin, Massachusetts Republican who twice held the post of speaker of the House, died at the age of 83.

A thought for the day: British poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning said, "The child's sob in the darkness curses deeper than the strong man in his worth."

New Series Deals With Old Age

Retirement is no longer considered a withdrawal into seclusion. It's a perfectly normal evolution in the pattern of life. But not everyone knows how to reap the rewards of the golden years.

A new 10-part series, "LIFE AFTER 65", starting in this newspaper Monday March 11, tells you how you can enjoy these retirement years.

Written by Jack Gourley, an authority on human relations and retirement planning, it's a revealing probe of the myths and facts surrounding the retirement years. You'll find it absorbing.

BOTH TABLES

When today's hand was played in a team match, West opened the three of spades at both tables. In both cases the bidding and the final contract were the same.

At the first table East put up the king of spades, and South shrewdly refused the trick. He won the next trick with the queen of spades and went after the hearts.

West took the ace of hearts but couldn't lead another spade. South had time to knock out the ace of diamonds and wound up making ten tricks.

NOBODY NOTICED

Nobody noticed East's muffed opportunity. At the other table of the match East made the right play at the first trick. Instead of putting up the king of spades, East played the nine of spades.

South assumed that East's spades were headed by J-10-9. Presumably, West had led the three of spades from K-8-3.

South didn't dare hold up in spades for fear of never winning a trick with the queen. So East's strange play at the first trick nudged declarer into winning the first trick.

AFTER HEARTS

Rather naturally, South went after the hearts. West captured the ten of hearts with the ace and led his other spade. Now South was dead. He couldn't make enough tricks without tackling diamonds, and this gave East the chance to take the ace of diamonds and run his spades. South made only seven tricks instead of ten.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer you hold:
♠ - K J 10 9 8 7
♦ - A 9 8 5
♣ - J 9.
What do you say?

Answer: Pass.

Even if you use weak two-bids, this is not a good hand for a bid of two spades. Your partner will not try for game unless he has more than an opening bid of his own. When you have a singleton, however, you may make game with a fairly light dummy. Pass to begin with and bid your spades later.

GEORGE ELLMAN
Biochemist wins

Tayer, Ross, Ellman Win In Tiburon

An architect, an attorney and a biochemist won seats on the Tiburon City Council yesterday.

Elected from a field of seven candidates were: Donald S. Tayer, an attorney and city planning commissioner; E. Bruce Ross, a planning commissioner and partner in an architectural firm, and George L. Ellman, a biochemist and former chairman of the city parks and recreation commission.

Tayer polled the most votes, 1,092 and Ross was second, with 1,082 ballots, Ellman third with 1,074 votes.

The three won handily over their opponents, attorney George C. Martinez, personnel consultant Robert H. Wayne, marketing consultant John Scott Mueller and bank vice president Harry S. Matthews.

The vote count for the defeated candidates was: Matthews, 792; Mueller, 690; Wayne, 372, and Martinez, 141.

Both Ellman and Tayer thought their past records of community service had influenced voters favorably. "The community based its decision on who had the background and experience to direct Tiburon over the next four years," Tayer said.

All of the seven candidates had expressed dissatisfaction with present development plans for downtown Tiburon proposed by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana. The development was one of the campaign's major issues.

Another was a plan by the State Highway Department to widen a part of Tiburon Boulevard south of Trestle Glen. All the newly elected councilmen oppose the widening.

A total of 1,919 persons, 53.2 per cent of the city's 3,607 registered voters cast ballots yesterday.

Street Named For A Royal House

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Bourbon drinkers may be disappointed to learn that Bourbon Street in the famed French Quarter of New Orleans was not named for that mellow spirit.

The Louisiana Tourist Commission reports that the street, known around the world for its jazz and strip tease nightclubs, was named after the House of Bourbon, rulers of France during the founding of New Orleans.

ORDINANCE NO. 132
MARIN MUNICIPAL WATER DISTRICT
AMENDMENT TO CHAPTER 13, MMWD CODE

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE MARIN MUNICIPAL WATER DISTRICT AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 13.01.110 of the Marin Municipal Water District Code is amended to read as follows:

"13.01.110 VARIANCES

(A) The Board of Directors may in its discretion grant permits for water service facilities otherwise prohibited hereby, upon such reasonable conditions as it may in its discretion impose, if it determines that any of the following conditions exist:

(1) The restrictions herein would cause an unnecessary and undue hardship upon the Applicant or the public. Examples of circumstances which may constitute unnecessary and undue hardships include, but are not limited to: (i) the destruction of a water-using structure or facility due to fire, flood or other disaster or act of God; (ii) the imposition by another governmental entity of a requirement for new or increased water-using facilities with respect to existing improvements; (iii) prior loss, destruction or removal of water meter without the knowledge or fault of the Applicant; (iv) to correct or substitute for an illegal or unsafe or unsound water service facility not caused by the fault of Applicant. Financial hardships alone shall not constitute grounds for a variance.

(2) The restrictions herein would create an emergency condition affecting the health, sanitation, fire protection or safety of the Applicant or the public.

(3) The granting of the variance would not increase the quantity of water consumed or otherwise adversely affect service to other existing water consumers; or

(4) That due to peculiar facts and circumstances of the case none of the provisions of this Ordinance authorizing new water service facilities are strictly applicable to the situation under consideration, if the Board of Directors, in its discretion, determines that the Applicant is entitled to substantially similar treatment to that set forth in some other provisions of this Ordinance.

(B) The Board of Directors may in its discretion extend the time limits of Section 13.01.020 (2), Section 13.01.020 (3), or Section 13.01.030 (2) of this Code, upon such reasonable conditions as it may in its discretion impose, if it determines that the Applicant has been prevented from complying with such limits by fire, flood, explosion, earthquake, landslide, or other natural disaster, building bans or moratoriums imposed by governmental agencies other than the Marin Municipal Water District, strikes, or other unforeseen matters of similar nature beyond the reasonable control of the Applicant.

(C) The Board of Directors may in its discretion extend the time limits of Section 13.01.020 (3) or Section 13.01.030 (2) of this Code, upon such reasonable conditions as it may in its discretion impose, if it determines that the Applicant has been prevented from complying with such limits because the normal construction time for the structure or structures which the Applicant intends to build exceeds eighteen months."

SECTION 2. This Ordinance is declarative of existing law, is enacted solely to clarify the provisions of Marin Municipal Water District Code 13.01.110, and is not intended to effect any substantive change in said Code.

SECTION 3. The severability provisions of Section 1.01.110 of the Marin Municipal Water District Code are applicable to this Ordinance.

Marin's Legislators Ignore Demands

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin's two state legislators have declined to introduce three bills asked by the county's supervisors.

In legislative parlance, the three were branded as "turkeys."

One would "allow" schools to pay for crossing guards, in effect forcing school districts to accept a shift of the cost from city and county governments. The supervisors and their staff argued the costs are the direct result of the schools themselves, thus the schools should pay for them.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley and Sen. Peter H. Behr, both R-San Rafael, objected that school guards are a matter of public safety, and that such police power is the proper responsibility of general purpose government, not of special districts.

Another of the county bills would eliminate the requirement that county ordinances be read at two meetings before adoption. The supervisors claimed the first reading is "awkward, time consuming and confusing to the public." The legislators, however, rebutted that two readings are in the interest of public involvement in and openness in government.

The third bill would have eliminated extra for law enforcement officers on leave when others on active duty get double time pay. The staffs of both legislators acknowledged such a measure would be opposed by police groups, but said it also is not going to be introduced because the problem still is only pending in a case in Contra Costa County.

Marshland Protection Is Sought

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation appropriating up to $4 million to preserve marshes in Suisun Bay, a vital link in the Pacific Flyway for migrating fowl, has been drafted by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The funds will be used to buy a ring of land around the marshes to prevent encroachment by urban land uses that are mushrooming in the area. Buying several hundred acres of land will prevent development of thousands of acres of marshes, Bagley's staff said.

The funds will come from the Bagley Conservation Fund. The legislation was asked by local governments, duck clubs using the marshes and conservationists." The bill states its purpose is "to ensure the perpetual protection of the Suisun Marsh," and is an urgency statute that would go into effect immediately upon signature into law.

Behr Bill On Education To Governor

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to facilitate funding of environmental and energy conservation programs in public schools has been passed by the Legislature and sent to the governor.

The measure, SB 1463, was authored by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. It establishes an environmental education fund under the Department of Education and activates a 1970 act which declared the Legislature's intent to finance the programs with revenue from "vanity" license plates.

The bill, which itself appropriates no money, was termed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles "an important step" in educating students to develop better conservation habits.

Cotton Leader's Production Call

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — The executive vice president of the National Cotton Council believes cotton producers can make great gains on man made fibers.

"Inadequate plant capacity and the energy shortage have made the man-made fiber supply situation uncertain today," Dabney Wellford said.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Monagan Will Not Run For Treasurer

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Former Republican Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan yesterday said he has decided against running for state treasurer.

Monagan, assistant secretary of the Federal Department of Transportation, announced several weeks ago he was considering seeking the post. He made the announcement after Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest said on Feb. 5 she would not seek a third-term due to health problems.

Monagan, who had alerted newsmen he would make a decision on running last Wednesday and then postponed it, said he had concluded that in joining the Nixon administration last year "I made a commitment that precludes my leaving Washington at this time."

He said the challenging of pushing the department's legislative program through Congress is one "I cannot ignore and I look forward to it with great anticipation."

"For this reason, I have decided not to be a candidate for the office of state treasurer," Monagan said in a statement issued in Sacramento.

WEAPON

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation restricting the legal use of a deadly Oriental weapon called a nunchaku has advanced to the Senate floor following a grunt-filled committee hearing.

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday approved the bill on an 8-0 vote after two karate instructers, who grunted and shouted, demonstrated the use of the wooden device. The weapon consists of two 18-inch-long octagonal clubs linked together with nylon cords.

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, said the weapon was becoming a law enforcement problem since it was popularized in movies about karate.

Originally, his bill (AB2571) would have outlawed the weapon outright. But the committee amended the measure to permit its manufacture, sales and use in licensed karate schools.

Tony Ramos of Fairfield and Joseph A. Artesi of New Jersey, who both own karate schools, demonstrated the weapon. They said it is used as a training aid.

COLLEGE BOND

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation to place a $250 million bond for community college construction on the November ballot has been introduced by the chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

Sen. Albert S. Rodda, D-Sacramento, yesterday said the bond funds would provide the state's share of financing for community college school building construction needs through 1980.

Rodda's proposal (SB1805) came a week after the California Community College Board of Governor's decided to seek a state bond act.

At that time, Community College Chancellor Sidney Brossman said enrollment at the community colleges appears to be growing at a faster rate than any other segment of higher education.

Labor Council Authorizes Strike On Pay Tomorrow

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Labor Council has authorized a strike for tomorrow morning for city ememployees involved in a pay dispute.

Labor Council secretary John F. Crowley said yesterday that police, fire, ambulance and emergency health workers would be exempted from the walkout.

Council action came at the request of the Service Ememployees Union, which represents 8,500 city employees in office, janitorial and hospital work.

Crowley said the strike would start unless the Board of Supervisors starts serious negotiations toward increasing the wage proposal it adopted tentatively Monday.

Board members have approved a pay raise package estimated to cost $5.5 million and giving employees boosts ranging from 2 per cent to 5 per cent. Many of the union's members would get the 2 per cent raises.

The SEU has demanded across-the-board increases of $960 plus a fully-paid dental plan which it is estimated would cost a total of $16 million.

Crowley pointed out that the cost of living index for the San Francisco Bay Area has risen 8.9 per cent in the past year.

A strike would involve the city's schools, the Municipal Railway, the port, the airport, the utility and public works departments, hospitals and office workers.

Clerk-typists now get $8,472 a year and a 2 per cent boost would mean $170.

Pregnant Whale Watched Closely

NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do with a pregnant whale.

At the new York Aquarium on Coney Island, they watch it carefully, guard it against inquisitive sightseers and hope the pregnancy will come to full term without the disaster that beset the birth of Francis' calf in July 1972. That quite unexpected event was followed shortly by the death of the baby, which had been unduly excited by spectators.

Francis, a beluga, was the first whale known to give birth in captivity, and her accomplishment had led to a whale-breeding program involving her and three other belugas. If it succeeds, scientists have great hopes for benefits not only for endangered species but for mankind. And Francis has become pregnant again.

The spelling is correct; Francis is named after a man.

Jury Unable To Believe Story

SANTA ANA (UPI) — A superior court jury of eight women and four men did not believe that being trapped in a sauna bath for 30 minutes could turn a devout Catholic mother into a sex-starved barroom pickup.

The jury yesterday found for the defendant in the "sauna bath nymphomaniac trial," brought by Maria Parson against the Holiday Health Spa of Orange.

Truck Accidents Cut By Training

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Professional driver training programs of the nation's trucking companies have made a significant reduction in the accident rates, according to a truck supply manufacturer.

Jack F. Whitaker, president of Whitaker Cable Corp., said industry figures show trucks are involved in only 15 accidents per million vehicle miles traveled.

San Rafael, Eureka Rail Link Asked

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A request by the Legislature that Amtrak restore rail passenger service from San Rafael to Eureka has cleared the Assembly and gone to the Senate Public Utilities and Corporations Committee for a hearing.

The measure, AJR 80 by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa, is coauthored by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

Noting that the Northwestern Pacific Railroad provided a network of passenger service to the North Coast before World War II, Keene's resolution predicts the shortage of gasoline "will undoubtedly inspire increased rail passenger patronage, once instituted."

Without rail service, it adds, there is a "perilous prospect of isolation" in the region.

Original railroad rights-of-way still exist, and much of the track is in place, "although some repairs and engineering adjustments would probably be required," the resolution states.

Keene told the Independent-Journal that San Rafael would be a convenient railhead connection to other transit systems in the Bay Area. Golden Gate Transit, for example, could connect the railhead with San Francisco, he said.

Bagley Sees No Delay In Tax Boost

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A one-cent increase in the state sales tax will go into effect on April 1 despite a "politically dishonest" bill in the Senate to delay the extra penny to October, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said yesterday.

There was no chance such a measure could pass the Assembly, and, in any event, it would be vetoed by the governor, the assemblyman predicted.

Bagley, the Republican fiscal expert in the lower house, said the tax increase was needed to pay for payments already being made by the state to cut property taxes and pick up some of the burden of school taxes.

The tax was increased by a 1972 law, but deferred because of unexpected surpluses in state funds that since then have been expended. The extra penny on the sales tax will raise some $650 million a year, he said.

Park Plantings Plan Approved

The Strawberry Recreation District board has approved plans for grading and planting to be done at the district's Strawberry Cove Park.

According to Gayle Hunter, district recreation manager, the board agreed Monday to about $2,500 worth of improvements to be paid for by Haywood Co. of Mill Valley. They will include planting shrubs and trees, grading, seeding the area with wildflowers and providing a sprinkler system.

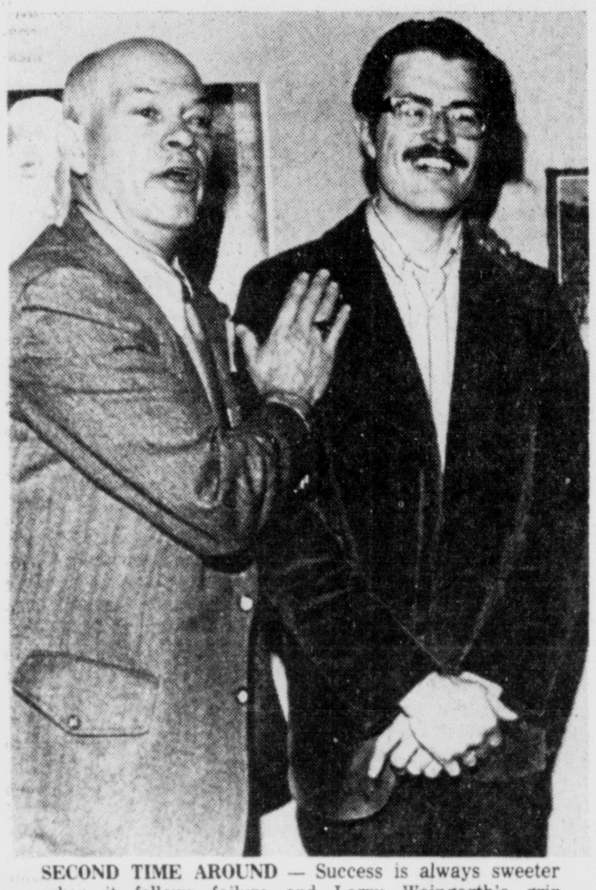
The company had granted the parkland to the district as part of an agreement allowing the building of a townhouse complex in the Strawberry Cove Area.

Interest In Flying

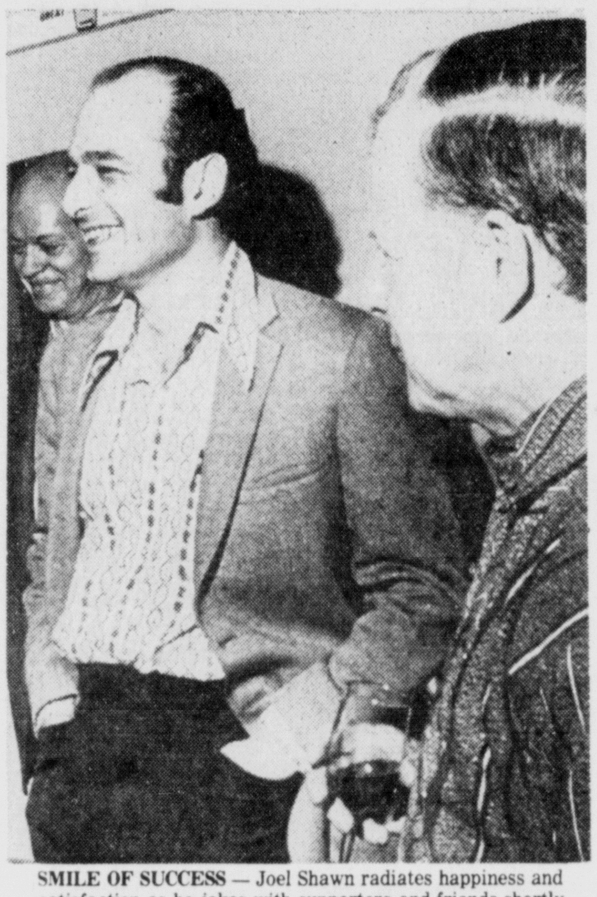
SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — The State Aeronautics Division reports that Oregon ranks second only to Alaska in the number of state-owned and operated general aviation airports.

FACES OF THE ELECTION

The faces of those who gathered in the county elections office last night were tense as supporters waited to see how their favorite candidates had fared in yesterday's municipal elections.



SECOND TIME AROUND — Success is always sweeter when it follows failure and Larry Weingarth's grin demonstrates that it's a lot more fun to win. Weingarth, being praised by supporter George Bloesser (left) yesterday defeated incumbent Albert A. Kostelic to win a seat on the Corte Madera City Council.. Kostelic beat out Weingarth in a special election in December to fill the seats of three recalled councilmen.



SMILE OF SUCCESS — Joel Shawn radiates happiness and satisfaction as he jokes with supporters and friends shortly after learning that he has been reelected to the Corte Madera City Council.

GOOD WISHES — Jana Haehl, who took second place in the Corte Madera council race, beams as she accepts congratulations and applause from those who worked for her reelection.

HIS CUP RUNNETH OVER — Ivan S. Poutiatine, happily pours a glass of the traditional election night veberage for one of his supporters at a party to celebrate his election to the Mill Valley City Council. The planning commissioner defeated incumbent Edward Boessenecker.

All Indications Point To Easing Of Oil Embargo

CAIRO (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said today there are mounting indications that the Arabs are about to ease their oil embargo against the United States and that Egypt and Saudi Arabia are leading the move to do so.

The sources said they expected Arab oil ministers to meet in Tripoli, Libya, next Sunday as proposed by Egypt and agree on a relaxation of the embargo.

The latest pointer to this move was a front-page report in the Cairo newspaper Al Gomhouria.

The newspaper said flatly that the Tripoli meeting will take place Sunday and hinted at relaxation of the embargo even though it did not mention the United States by name.

U.S. Undersecretary of State Joseph Sisco said today in Washington there has been no "clear cut indication" that Arab leaders will lift their oil embargo against the United States Sunday but "I continue to be hopeful."

("Over the past weeks and months we certainly have had indications on individual attitudes of individual Arab states," Sisco said. He emphasized, however, that the decision will be made collectively and for that reason, the United States will just have "to wait and see what this decision will be.")

The diplomatic sources said Saudi Arabia has come round to the Egyptian view that the time has come for a concrete gesture of gratitude to the United States.

Egypt, with its political weight, and Saudi Arabia, as the biggest and most influential Arab oil producer, are expected to carry the day at the Tripoli meeting, the sources said.

Supervisors Bypass Water Position

Marin County supervisors refused yesterday to support proposed state legislation which, in effect, would give the Marin Municipal Water District an easy way out of a ticklish legal situation. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The proposed measure would give the water district discretion whether to continue serving customers outside district boundaries during the moratorium on new water connections inside the district.

According to the water district's attorney, Tom Thorner, the district must terminate service to "surplus water users" later this year because there is no provision for continuing it once a moratorium has been declared.

Homeowners in the Wolfback Ridge area near Sausalito have received notices of termination, as have Forts Barry, Cronkhite and Baker and the Muir Woods National Monument, among others.

Should the district continue supplying water to these users, he said, it would be open to suit from property owners inside district boundaries who have been denied water connections because of the "threatened water shortage."

If it does terminate water service, several "outside" property owners have put the district on notice they will sue based on prior water rights.

Thorner told supervisors yesterday Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has agreed to introduce the legislation, but only if the board of supervisors concurred.

"I don't think the board of supervisors should rectify a problem brought on the water district," Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. said.

Among several persons in the audience opposed to the measure were David Greenlee of the Marin Builders Exchange and attorney Samuel W. Gardiner, a former superior court judge.

Gardiner urged the board to take no action on the proposed legislation because the legality of the water district's moratorium is under litigation.

". . . We do not think it is appropriate to interfere by legislation while the matter is under submission to the court," Gardiner said, referring to the McCarthy Co. suit against the district.

Greenlee, meanwhile, said the legislation would allow water districts to deny water to taxpayers and water ratepayers within a district while supplying water to persons outside the district.

Supporting the request was attorney Richard H. Breiner of San Rafael, representing the Wolfback Ridge Association, urged the board modify the legislation to make it mandatory on the water district to supply water to prior users.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, commented that Wolfback Ridge residents previously refused to annex to the water district.

On a motion by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, the board voted unanimously refused support.

Fund Plea By Marin Video Goes Nowhere

A request that the County donate $12,300 of taxpayers' money to subsidize Marin Community Video for six months while it organizes its planned countywide service was tabled yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors agreed with San Rafael City Mgr. William J. Bielser that the private group may not represent a wide enough spectrum of county interests.

Marin Community Video sought the money to finance programs that would be presented over Tele-Vue Systems of Marin, which has allocated six hours a month for community cablecasts to its 35,000 subscribers.

Bielser reported his city council on Monday set up a citizens committee to determine what use should be made of the community time that federal rules require of cable TV firms. San Rafael's franchise reserves to the city the right to determine who should originate such programs, Bielser told the supervisors. "Our feeling is we haven't granted any rights to local access" to anyone, the city spokesman said. "If it's going to be public, it ought to be really public and not limited to a special interest group."

"We're not competing with anybody — we offered a half-hour (each month) to San Rafael," Pearlman said.

"We don't think that anyone can offer San Rafael anything. We think it's the responsibility of the public agency," Bielser answered. He called for cooperation between all cities and the county to determine use of the community time on the cables.

All supervisors agreed that Marin Community Video may have taken over the job of program planning simply because other groups that might have been interested and capable were not aware of the matter.

Chairman Michael Wornum also raised the question of "what it could do to finance only one media," suggesting that the taxpayer might soon be subsidizing newspapers as well.

Pearlman said the $12,300 request for six months' help was a prelude to a three-year program expected to require $233,000 to finance broadcasts of board sessions, candidates' nights and other public programs. "The cable is more effective than other media" in such coverage, he said.

Following a unanimous vote to take no action, County Admin. John F. Barrows told the supervisors that his staff would closely follow the progress of San Rafael's citizen committee on cable programming.

Board Seeks Alternatives On Fire Protection Plans

Marin County supervisors yesterday directed their staff to return to the drawing boards for alternative solutions to providing improved fire protection to unincorporated areas near San Rafael.

The board's action means area residents will not vote in June on whether to form a county service area to finance an expanded county fire department or to contract with the city.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said yesterday any solution will require a vote, adding he will attempt to place the matter before voters in November.

To be considered along with other ideas is one proposed by Donald S. Manion of 350 Margarita Drive that the Country Club subdivision be designated as a single county service area.

He said homeowners in nearby Bayside Acres have expressed interest in joining a small service area but oppose one suggested earlier by County Administrator John F. Barrows to cover all unincorporated areas around San Rafael. (That proposal was rejected last month by the local agency formation commission.

Manion said the problems in each area are too diverse to be "lumped together" in one service area.

Jean Levinsohn of Country Club, a supporter of annexation to San Rafael, urged the board to postpone any action until a legal dispute over the annexation proceedings is resolved but then chided the board for not having moved swiftly enough to provide fire service.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

AIDE — Overruled the county administrator's recommendation by approving $825 for six-months employment of a part-time employment supervisor for the Novato Human Needs Center.

OPEN SPACE — Postponed to June 11 a hearing on whether certain lands should be annexed to the Loma Verde County Service Area and whether that service area should proceed with an open space bond issue election.

TAX RATE — Rejected, for the time being, a proposal from County Administrator John F. Barrows that the Lucas Valley and Santa Venetia county service areas hold tax rate elections to provide funds for planning and "maintenance" of open space. Supervisors agreed to pay the costs for the next year, pending further study.

TRANSIT — Sitting as the county transit district board, approved contracts with Kenneth J. Schmier and W. C. Gilman and Co. Schmier will study a "random carpooling concept" proposed by Alexis Tellis of Tiburon. It involves drivers picking up hitchhikers for a slight fee. Schmier will be paid $500. Gilman and Co., meanwhile, will be paid $3,000 to study the feasibility of Marin operating its own bus system.

AIRPORT — Was told by Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell that he expects Gnoss Field to end the fiscal year June 30 with a $4,800 net profit.

Gls Land Chunk

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — More than 43,000 armed forces veterans have purchased 3,359,367 acres of land in Texas since 1949 when the state set up a special program to help former soldiers.

No Probe Wanted In Food Hijack

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Leaders of the food program set up to secure the release of Patricia Hearst agreed today to refrain from asking for an investigation into the hijacking of a truck laden with 12,500 pounds of meat, poultry and produce.

Sources said the coalition of activist groups named to direct the People in Need program felt a police investigation might antagonize the Symbionese Liberation Army, which kidnaped the daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of The San Francisco Examiner, on Feb. 4 from her Berkeley apartment.

A lone man toting a shotgun hijacked the truck as it headed toward a distribution center in the city's Hunter Point section yesterday. He pointed the weapon at the driver's head and ordered him to drive a short distance.

The driver was then released and the hijacker drove away. The truck was found later but with the foodstuffs missing.

PIN officials said the truck had been loaded with enough food for as many as 4,000 persons. The food's value was placed at between $34,000 and $60,000.

The hijack was the only incident to mar the third time food was distributed in the $6 million program devised by the Hearst family to meet the SLA's demands. The operations at the San Francisco Bay Area's 12 centers ran smoothly.

Patty's parents had hoped the continuation of the program, which started Feb. 22, would elicit some response from the kidnapers who have not been heard from the past 13 days. However, the SLA failed to issue another communique.

More than $300,000 in food was handed out yesterday And to date a total of $750,000 has been used to purchase groceries for the program to feed the poor. PIN officials said the fourth distribution would take place Friday at the same centers.

Amanda Blake To Leave Her Role Of 'Miss Kitty'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marshal Dillon will just have to find a new girl. Amanda Blake, the redhaired actress who has played Miss Kitty on the "Gunsmoke" television series for 19 years, announced yesterday that she will not be back when the series begins filming for the new season.

She told CBS-TV that she is tired of commuting to Hollywood from her home in Phoenix, Ariz., where she lives with her husband, businessman Frank Gilbert, and she wants more time for "outside activities."

For her years of portraying "Miss Kitty" Russell, owner of the Long Branch Saloon, Miss Blake in 1966 became the first woman to be named to the Hall of Fame of Great Western Actors in Oklahoma City.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Early Respiratory Infections Behind Emphysema, Bronchitis

When a man or woman of 25 develops chronic bronchitis or emphysema, we can safely assume it did not begin yesterday. As children, these people usually had serious respiratory infections or a string of minor "colds." Each bout took its toll and, after several years, the lung tissue became scarred and no longer worked effectively. All too often, the parents and physician did not realize that the original coughing, sneezing, and nasal congestion were more than just a cold.

Some estimate that 85 per cent of the children seen by pediatricians have a respiratory disease in one form or another. These infections account for almost 60 per cent of school absenteeism.

MOST COLDS are viral in origin and the commonest culprits are rhinoviruses, influenza and parainfluenza, and the respiratory syncytial virus. If throat cultures were done on all children with colds, the physician would be able to spot the 15 per cent of "colds" that involve serious bacterial infections, such as strep. These respond to antibiotics and the sooner they are detected, the less harm they do.

Approximately one-third of all recurrent or chronic respiratory diseases stem from hayfever, asthma, or allergies. Skin tests help pinpoint the causative allergens, except in the case of foods. Parents of these children should cooperate by following to the letter the doctor's recommendations. Doing this may require dust-proofing the home, getting rid of pets, and avoiding air pollution, especially smoking in the same room with an asthmatic child.

CHRONIC OR repeated respiratory distress in children may also stem from cystic fibrosis. (Our leaflet on cystic fibrosis can be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.) The latter, a serious disease, is easily ruled out by a sweat test, which determines the amount of salt in the secretions. Wheezing bouts in children are not always caused by asthma. Some of these youngsters have heart trouble; still others have tuberculosis. Complacency when dealing with common respiratory symptoms in children is dangerous. If these bouts persist or recur frequently, do everything possible to get to the source.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies the request, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

BLACK AND BLUE

P. K. writes: While playing basketball, I developed a hematoma on the leg. What is done for this type of injury?

REPLY

A hematoma is a collection of blood under the skin that clots after bleeding stops. To bring hemorrhage under control, elevate the leg and apply ice packs or cold towels. Use heat thereafter to stimulate the absorption of blood. Several enzyme tablets on the market are said to hasten healing.

SHINGLES ON SURFACE

K. J. writes: Can a person have shingles internally?

REPLY

No, because the disease is confined to the nerve endings in the skin and on the surface of the eye.

BRALESS

N. T. writes: Is there any harm in going without a bra?

REPLY

Quakeproofing Cost Is Given

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — It will cost at least $514.9 million to replace or rehabilitate the 1,258 California public school buildings which are earthquake unsafe, according to the state Education Department.

In the fourth in a series of reports to the legislators on school earthquake safety, the department yesterday said the 1,258 buildings contained 6,083 classrooms with a total student capacity of 179,285, including Alameda and San Francisco Counties.

The department, in compiling the report, said it surveyed all 1,054 school districts in the state serving kindergarten through the 12th grade.

Park Department Work Ordered

Darryl Jon Duckett, 20, of San Rafael, has been fined $50 and ordered to work 10 days for the Marin Parks and Recreation Department on his guilty plea to reckless driving.

San Rafael police arrested the man in November after a chase through city streets. They reported finding suspected amphetamine tablets in his car.

Originally arrested on suspicion of felony possession of dangerous drugs, Duckett was charged with a misdemeanor, and a hearing on funnelling him into a drug treatment program in lieu of prosecution is set for March 22 in Marin Municipal Court.

Stokes Sees Big Deficit For BART

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Despite greater patronage caused by the energy crisis, the Bay Area Rapid Transit system faces a $111 million operating deficit over the next five years, General Manager B. R. Stokes said yesterday.

Testifying before the Senate Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, Stokes said BART patronage increased from 65,550 passengers per day in January to 83,000 per day last week.

He predicted a daily passenger load of nearly 215,000 by 1975. But he said the increase won't solve BART's financial problems.

Last week Stokes said the ultra modern $1.6 billion system would have to close down this fall unless it gets a tax subsidy of some sort. He repeated that forecast today under detailed questioning about BART's finances.

Stokes said his revenue projections are based on the assumption that service will begin in September through the underwater tube linking San Francisco and Oakland. That assumption is challenged by numerous people, including BART President Nello Bianco who said last week it would take "a miracle to meet that goal."

The state Public Utilities Commission has refused to give BART clearance to open transbay service, the last and most important link in the 75-mile system, until BART can prove that its computerized train detection system is foolproof.

"Any delay in transbay service will add to our shortrange financial problems to the tune of $1.5 million per month," Stokes said.

He said the $111 million deficit is the best that BART can hope to do, even if it meets all of its goals because, he said, there is no way the system or any other mass transit system can pay its own way at the fare box.

Factors contributing to the deficit problem, he said, are increasing labor costs, added overhead caused by construction delays, and problems in getting equipment to work properly.

BART fares now range from 30 cents to $1.25.

Paper Sack Is His Downfall

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An alleged bank robber was caught yesterday because he stopped to get a paper bag for the money.

The Security Pacific Bank surrendered $1,787 in a bag marked "Denver National Bank," police said, to a holdup man who subsequently stopped at a nearby drugstore.

"He came in, asked to borrow a paper sack and walked out," a drugstore clerk said.

Right Place, But The Wrong Office

LANSING, Mich., (UPI) — Lansing citizens keep trying but they just can't get the time of day from city hall.

A new telephone system was installed in city hall this week and the number assigned to the city council is only two digits off the telephone number to call for the correct time. As a result, a local telephone company spokesman said, about 40 per cent of all the time callers this week have dialed the city council number instead.

Improvisational Acting Used In New TV Picture

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Improvisational acting is something you rarely see in television drama because of its tight schedules and lean-to-the-bone budgets.

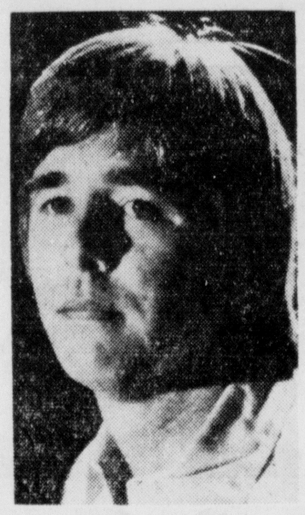
But director Larry Peerce, who had employed it in theatrical films, was curious to see how it would work in his first movie for the home screen.

In improvisational acting, the performers know who they are and what their attitudes are, but work without scripted dialogue.

The picture is "The Stranger Who Looks Like Me," an ABC Movie of the Week airing tonight. It's about a young adopted girl who sets out to find her real parents and battles the red tape strung up to keep their identity secret.

Meredith Baxter plays the girl and her real-life mother, Whitney Blake, is cast as her biological mother. Beau Bridges is another adoptee who helps her in her search.

The improvised scene, which runs nearly five minutes, is an angry confrontation in which a group of adoptees argue for their right to know their real parents, background and heritage. Others defend the right to anonymity of parents who have given up children.



BEAU BRIDGES
Role of adoptee

"It was in the script, all the dialogue, but we threw it away," said Peerce. "Everybody knew what their attitudes would be and who they were. They improvised the lines.

"I wanted to see what would happen in a real situation without words being put into their mouths. The realities that occurred in the scene couldn't have been written in a script.

Peerce directed the film for producer Lillian Gallo, an old friend who had helped him in the days when he directed episodes of such TV series as "The Monroes," "Batman," "The Green Hornet," "Wild Wild West" and "Judd for the Defense."

Peerce, the son of concert and opera tenor Jan Peerce, is a former actor who studied under Stella Adler. After leaving television he directed such movies as "The Incident," "Goodbye Columbus," "A Separate Peace" and "Ash Wednesday."

CAMPAIGNS '74

Special Antitrust Unit Is Proposed

Creation of a special antitrust unit within the state attorney general's office to prosecute California's oil companies has been proposed by Jack R. Felson of Lagunitas Forest Knolls, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Ninth Assembly District.

Felson criticized a fellow candidate, Deputy Marin County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr., for endorsing a proposed statewide initiative to put the oil companies under the control of the Public Utilities Commission. Felson said the PUC "actually protects the industries it is supposed to regulate."

The high price of the state's energy supplies, Felson said, were the result of monopoly control of energy by a few corporations.

BALES — A fund-raising testimonial dinner for Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, seeking reelection, will be at 6:30 p.m. on March 15 at the Lion's Club Recreation Center, Corte Madera. Reservations are being handled by Ronald D. Schenck of Novato and Burton R. Kirchner of Novato.

MARKS — Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, has made official his decision not to run for the GOP nomination in the Fifth Congressional District. He said he would not announce until next year whether he will run for mayor of San Francisco.

HANSON — Howard Hanson, candidate for Marin County clerk, has found a new way to meet voters — in early morning lines at gasoline stations. Hanson is dispensing free coffee to waiting motorists between 6 and 8 a.m. at various locations throughout Marin, except when he's in line himself.

WALDIE — A fund-raising theater party will be sponsored by the Mill Valley Citizens for Waldie for Governor Committee at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday at a performance of "Welcome to the Monkey House" at the Mill Valley Theater for the Performing Arts. Tickets are being handled by Richard L. Vittitow of Mill Valley.

BURTON — Coffees for Assemblyman John L. Burton of San Francisco, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Terra Linda home of Kenneth Bruce Rosenberg, 685 Barbery Lane, and at 9 p.m. Friday at the Upper Lucas Valley home of Ruth Rosen, 5 Mount Hood Court.

Paintings Display

Brown Cites History Of '48 Election

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., opening his campaign-for-governor headquarters in the heart of movietown, warned his Democratic colleagues against a "Tom Dewey-like overconfidence."

"Some Democrats believe that Watergate will cause virtually certain Democratic victories in 1974," Brown said, "But history has shown that overconfident candidates — dangerously underestimating the strength of their opponents — can lose elections."

A crowd of about 200 yesterday heard Brown go on to compare the situation to the presidential race of 1948 when favored Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York lost to President Harry Truman.

"Twenty-six years ago Tom Dewey thought he was sure to be the next president, but his overconfidence may have cost him the election," said Brown.

"As Democrats, we must all work to make sure we don't lose this year's elections because of a similar Tom Dewey-like overconfidence."

Planner Speaker

Phyllis Faber of Mill Valley, a member of the North Central Coast Conservation Commission, will speak at a meeting of the Northwest Marin Planning Group at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Tomales High School.

Where do you want the freezer in your new Amana refrigerator...

Amana gives you a choice

If you want your zero degree freezer on the side, there's the Amana Side-by-Side. Or you can have it on the top or the bottom. They're all Free-O-Frost in both the refrigerator and freezer.

And every Amana has two independent temperature controls, one for the freezer, one for the refrigerator. There's a "refrigerator-within-a-refrigerator" that keeps meat fresh up to twice as long as an ordinary meat keeper. And a high-humidity compartment that keeps vegetables fresh up to three weeks.

Come and look at the choices Amana has for you. Then choose the one you want from gold, avocado, coppertone or white.

Paradise Trip For Sonoma

A Good Show, If You Can Get There

People are staying home more these days. Gasoline is becoming so hard to come by that once they get some in the tank of their cars they are hesitant to wander too far from their driveway.

Attendance at sporting events will have to suffer. After waiting as long as two hours in a long line of cars to get some gas, Joe Fan will give serious thought before taking off to the old ballpark.

That's probably why the men putting on the exhibition basketball game between the 49ers and Raiders are getting edgy. Advance ticket sales are not going as good as they had hoped.

Billed as Super Bowl IX, the game is scheduled Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Redwood High School gymn, with proceeds going to Redwood Bench Warmers and Central Marin Babe Ruth League. The game last year drew more than 1,800, but it appears that figure will be down this time.

EXPENSES WILL have to be met, including the $500 each team charges, before any money can go to the Redwood boosters group and Ruth league. "We might even have to charge the 49ers and Raiders admission," quipped committeeman Harry Del Grande.

The 49ers and Raiders on the teams find basketball is a good way to stay in shape in the off season so they play a lot of exhibition games such as the one at Redwood. Many times it's either the 49ers or Raiders playing against a school faculty team, which cuts the promoters' price in half, to $500. But when they play against each other the interest in the game goes up, and so does the price.

Among the 49ers on the roster for Tuesday's game are (football) first stringers Ted Kwalick, Cas Banaszek, Randy Beisler, Bruce Taylor, Mel Phillips and Vic Washington. One first stringer — defensive end Cedrick Hardman — is not on the team.

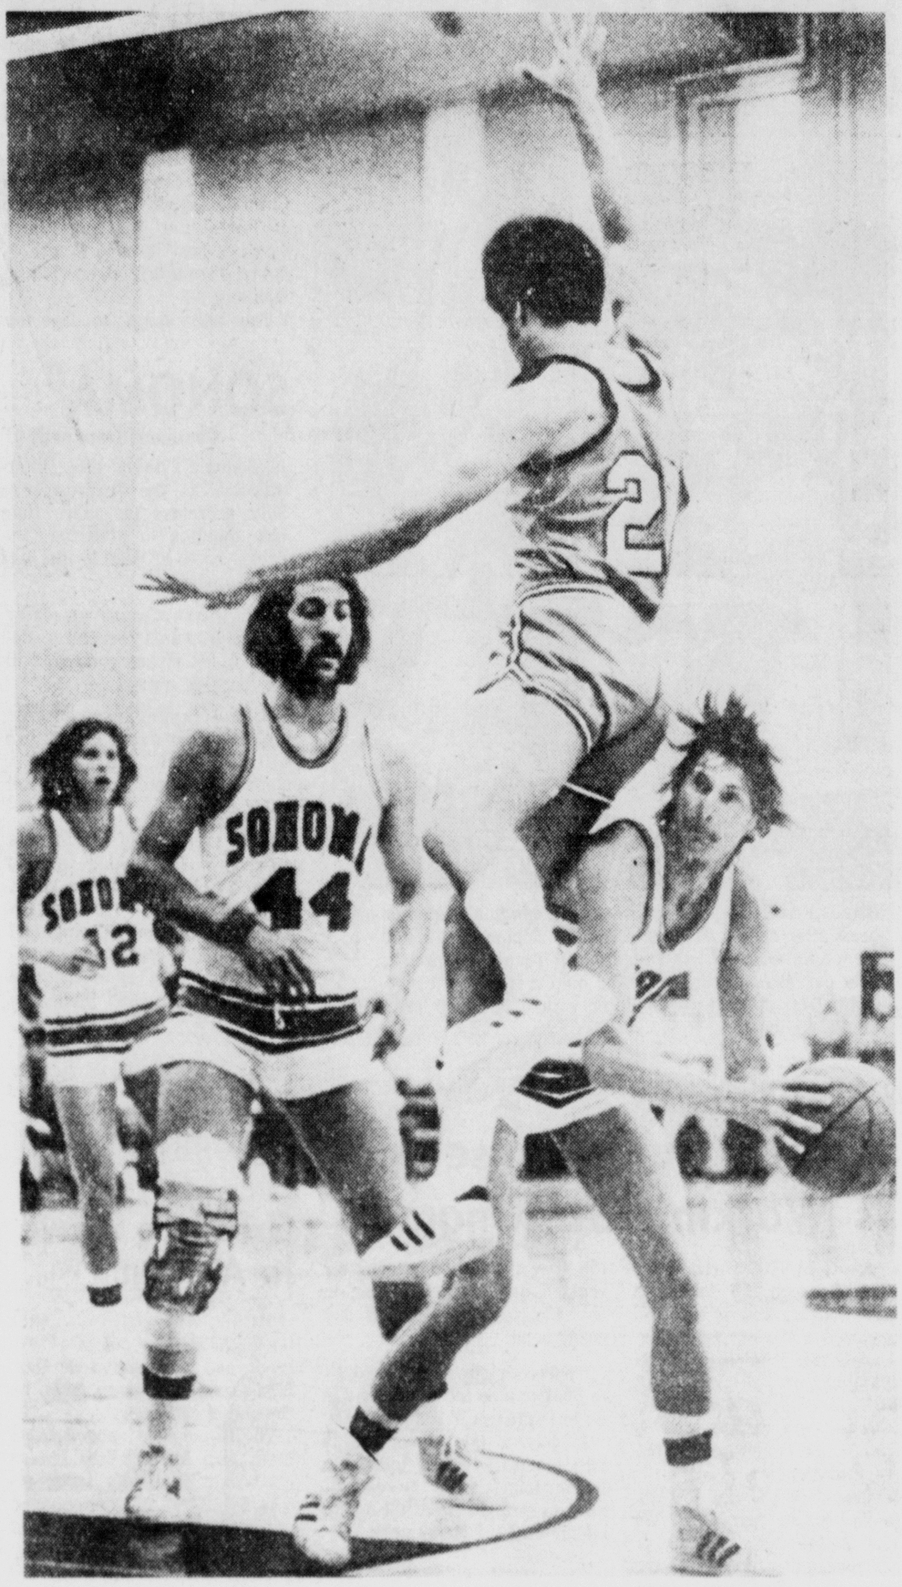
I MENTION Hardman because it was a game such as this which caused a knee injury that resulted in surgery two years ago. He had played through the 1971 football season, being whacked by big offensive tackles, without being injured. And then in a basketball game against some out of shape teachers he suffered an injury that required surgery. It took him nearly half the 1972 season to regain his full strength.

The injury caused writers to ask head coach Dick Nolan whether he was going to put a stop to the 49er players being involved in off season basketball where they risked injury. Heck no, said Nolan. These guys are athletes, he said, and they can't be expected to sit around during the off season not being involved in athletics.

THERE WAS NO overreaction from Nolan. The injury to Hardman was a freak thing and Nolan didn't expect it to be repeated for the rest of his troops.

Joe Reed, quarterback trying for the job left vacant with the retirement of John Brodie, will be with the 49er players, but he won't be there to play basketball. Instead, he'll sing the National Anthem.

It should be an entertaining evening. Now if Del Grande and the other committeemen can find a way to supply gasoline to get the spectators to the Redwood gym . . .



A LEAPER — This proved to be a rough play for University of San Diego's Stan Washington (20) last night against Sonoma State. He tried to block a shot by Sonoma's Steve Tiedeman and instead, fouled and went crashing to the floor. At left are Sonoma's Bill Belander (42) and Bob LeBrun (44). (Photo by Alfred Arn)

Cossacks' Defense Keys Win

By PAUL DWORIN

San Luis Obispo may not exactly be paradise but to the Sonoma State College basketball team, it's close enough.

The Cossacks earned a trip there last night with a thrilling 60-54 victory over visiting University of San Diego in the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association College Division Western Regional tournament.

The win gave Sonoma the final berth at the Western Regional this weekend at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo. The victor of the four-team tournament will go on to the NCAA College Division Championships in Evansville, Ind.

Sonoma's first-round opponent Friday night will be host Cal Poly. Both teams have 17-9 win-loss records. The other two teams are University of California, Riverside (19-7) and Chico State (18-8), which was co-champion of the Far Western Conference with Sonoma.

The Cossacks beat San Diego because they did one thing that they've failed to do well all year, and another that they've done very well: play defense and shoot free throws.

Using a pressuring, man-to-man defense, Sonoma held the Toreros to the least points it has allowed in two years. The constantly harassed San Diegans shot a poor 31.5 per cent from the field, and just 25 per cent in the second half.

Particularly effective were Jim Bristol and Dan Heien, who held San Diego's leading scorer, Stan Washington, to 12 points. Considered a pro prospect, Washington made just five of 18 shots from the floor.

"I knew I had to play defense," said Heien, who came off the bench to grab six rebounds and spark the Cossacks. "When you get right down to it, defense wins the game, not offense."

Despite their poor shooting percentage, the Toreros scored five more field goals than Sonoma. They also took 30 more shots, which is a tribute to their offensive rebounding. For the game, San Diego beat Sonoma, 46-36, on the boards.

What won the ball game for the Cossacks — at least statistically — was their 78.5 per cent free throw shooting (22 of 28). Nine of their last 11 points in the first half came at the free throw line, with Bristol converting the last four to give Sonoma a 33-32 half-time lead.

The numerous Cossack free throw attempts were not due to whistle-happy referees, but to the aggressive play of San Diego.

Steve Tiedeman and Tom Fitchie, especially, were the victims of this rough play which sent them to the line 13 times. Both of them were held and tripped throughout the game. On one occasion, Fitchie received a forearm smash to the head. No foul was called.

What had been a close game the first half turned decidedly

Basketball War Of Nerves For San Rafael Tomorrow

It will be partly a basketball game and partly a war of nerves tomorrow evening when San Rafael High School takes the floor at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The Bulldogs will be playing perennial power Berkeley High in the first round of the Tournament of Champions at 6 p.m., and their hopes to win lie in dictating the style of the game.

"We have to stop their running attack," said Bulldog coach Bret Tovani, "and we have to be patient and selective about our shots. Above all, we have to be poised."

San Rafael must be considered an underdog on the basis of its 17-8 overall record, compared to Berkeley's 29-4, and on the basis of the traditionally poor showing the Marin County Athletic League champions have made in the tournament over the years.

No Marin team has won the TOC, or even reached the finals. San Rafael has appeared three times — in 1959, 1962 and 1964 — and each year lost two games and went home. Tovani played on the 1962 team.

An exception was the showing made by Drake High last year. The Pirates stunned heavily favored Castlemont of Oakland, then nearly upset eventual champion San Joaquin Memorial of Fresno before finishing fourth.

The eight-team tournament will run three days. Other games tomorrow match St. Joseph's of Alameda (27-5) and Hayward (20-4) at 4:30 p.m., Lincoln of San Francisco (26-6) vs. the Central Section champion at 7:30 p.m., and Oakland Tech (13-9) vs. Amador Valley (20-2) at 9 p.m.

San Rafael's game will be broadcast on delayed tape at 9:05 a.m. Friday on KTIM-AM, 1510 on the dial, with Bob Dinsmore handling the play-by-play.

If San Rafael wins, it will play the St. Joseph's-Hayward winner at 7:30 p.m. Friday. A Bulldog loss will put them against the St. Joseph's-Hayward loser at 4:30 p.m. Friday.

San Rafael will be relying heavily on 6-foot-7 senior center Byron Stewart, who averaged more than 20 points and 15 rebounds a game. Mixing his board work with his outside jumper, Stewart will have to more than neutralize Berkeley's high-leaping 6-5 Kenny Barnes.

After Stewart, the Bulldogs' height drops off fast to a collection of 6-1 and 6-0 players who get few points and fewer headlines, but who do important work playing defense, blocking out on the boards, diving for loose balls, and keeping defenses honest by hitting the open shot.

Jim Grant and Mike Farris normally start at forward, but Tovani never fears to call in Gary Paterson, Mike Ellingson, Arthur Brooks or Eric Wheeler when needed.

Guard play will be critical. Five-six Kevin Gallivan will be in charge of keeping the ball away from Berkeley's grasping, shifting defenders, and Steve D'Ambra will be expected to provide points with his hard-charging drives. James (Pee Wee) White contributes additional ball-handling.

The 11th player on the roster, reserve center Reggie Bryant, will not see action except under the most severe pressure, with Stewart injured or in foul trouble.

Marin Golf Team

College of Marin's golf team defeated Contra Costa College, 37-17 yesterday in a Camino Norte Conference match at Marin Country Club in Novato.

BEATS TERRA LINDA SWIMMERS

San Rafael Fulfills Billing

The coaches' choice lived up to its billing.

Favored San Rafael High School won eight of 11 events, piling up enough points to fend off Terra Linda's superior depth and achieve an 89-83 swimming victory yesterday.

Visiting San Rafael improved its Marin County Athletic League record to 2-0 and cleared an important barrier to its hopes for the championship. San Rafael as tabbed by most MCAL coaches as the league's strongest team.

In other MCAL meets yesterday, San Marin defeated host Novato, 44-37, and Tamalpais whipped host Drake, 111-37. Defending champion Redwood drew a bye.

San Rafael's Scott Hislop and Ken DeMont participated in three victories each and Bob Placak had his hand in a pair. DeMont, a senior, swam for Terra Linda as a sophomore before sitting out a year and transferring.

Though Terra Linda won only three events, the Trojans piled up points for third, fourth and fifth place under the new scoring system, which scores five places instead of three. Under last year's scoring, San Rafael would have won, 62-33, coach Bill Ranney said.

Novato's Bob Patocchi and San Marin's Russ Testa won three events each in that meet, counting the 200 medley relay, in which their teams tied.

Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park also participated, but had no double winners. The triangular score was San Marin 61, Rancho 60, Novato 50.

WARRIORS LOSE

Pacific Race Close Down To The Wire

OAKLAND (UPI) — There's a grim feeling that the National Basketball Association Pacific Division race is going right down to the wire. Neither Golden State nor Los Angeles can break it open.

While the Los Angeles Lakers were upset at Portland last night, Golden State squandered a 10-point lead and fell 95-93 to Detroit.

The Warriors were unable to score for the final 3:45 seconds after Rick Barry had made his 35th and 36th points from the free throw line for a 93-89 Warrior lead.

Golden State was up 52-45 at the half and moved ahead by 10 before turning ice cold. Barry and reserve Joe Ellis each missed crucial scoring opportunities as Detroit moved to a 75-all tie early in the last quarter.

Golden State moved up again and then had its second cold spell to wind up still one game up on the Lakers which it could just as easily have been two.

Cazzie Russell added 22 for the Warriors, who now start on a road swing that throws them up against Milwaukee tomorrow, then Philadelphia, Capital and Detroit twice.

DETROIT (95)—Adams 7 4-4 18, Rowe 1 2-2 4, Lanier 8 5-5 21, Bing 9 5-6 23, Mengelt 2 0-0 4, Ford 1 0-0 2, Norwood 1 0-0 2, Trapp 8 5-7 21. Totals: 37 21-24 95.

Kings' Motivation Minimal Vs. Seals

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — After a tense 2-1 win over the lowly California Golden Seals last night, Bob Murdoch offered an explanation.

"We seem to have problems getting motivated against the lower teams in the standings," said Murdoch, whose 40-foot goal with 2:18 left to play won the game. The win pushed the Kings into sole possession of fourth place in the National Hockey League West, two points ahead of idle St. Louis.

"At this point we shouldn't have this trouble, because every point counts," Murdoch added.

It appeared the Kings were headed for a tie when Murdoch, while both teams were a man short, slapped in the long-range shot.

USF's Smith Is Player Of Year; LaPorte Top Coach

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The Northern California basketball writers have named University of San Francisco guard Phil Smith the area's Player of the Year and St. Mary's Frank LaPorte Coach of the Year.

Smith hit a career high of 34 points to give the Dons a comeback victory Saturday in the game that they had to have to win the West Coast Athletic Conference title and land in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney.

The 6-foot-4 guard hit 21.3 points per game, averaged 47.7 per cent from the floor and is considered certain to go high when the pros start drafting.

LaPorte took the Gaels from 7-19 last season to 15-13 this season in this, his rookie season. It was the first winning record for the Gaels in a decade.

Stan Cherry of Hayward was named College Division Player of the Year after averaging 17.6 points per game and 12.4 rebounds even though he was only a 6-4 center.

IN GIANTS' CAMP

Batting Tutor Fonseca Is Working On Kingman

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Lou Fonseca, an American League batting king in 1929 still considered a student of hitting, is in the San Francisco Giants training camp.

Kingman is a huge slugger who has hit 59 homers in 288 major league games, many of them awesome tape measure jobs in the Frank Howard range. But he has also struck out 262 times in the last two seasons alone.

Kingman spent about 15 minutes in the batting cage yesterday with Fonseca looking on and hit about 25 pitches over the fence. Fonseca alternately scolded and praised, trying to get Kingman to shorten his swing a bit.

"There is absolutely no way to predict how far this man can go in this game," Fonseca said. "He has a few flaws in his swing, curable ones, and such tremendous power he doesn't need to swing with a full arc to hit the ball out of the park."

The Giants plan their first intrasquad game today. They break camp tomorrow and travel to their permanent spring quarters in Phoenix. On Saturday they launch their Cactus League exhibition season in Tucson against Cleveland.

Marin Teams Win 4 Out Of 5 Baseball Openers

Marin high school baseball teams greeted Opening Day with considerable zest yesterday, winning four inaugural games in five tries.

Redwood High School defeated host El Cerrito, 10-4, Marin Catholic topped host El Molino of Forestville, 8-2, San Marin whipped host Rancho Cotate, 7-2, and Tamalpais edged visiting Sonoma, 2-1.

The only team to lose an opener yesterday was Terra Linda, a nine-inning, 3-2 victim of Sacred Heart in San Francisco. Novato High (0-2), which lost Monday's opener to St. Ignatius, yesterday fell to visiting Napa, 5-2, in eight innings.

Redwood batted around during an eight-run sixth inning which sank El Cerrito. There were seven hits in the inning, four in a row, including a two-run triple by Rob Long, his second three-bagger of the game.

Marin Catholic got only two hits, but took advantage of El Molino errors and wildness. The decisive six-run rally in the seventh inning consisted of five walks, an error and a fielder's choice.

San Marin stole six bases and played well defensively, according to coach Ron Butori. Mike Linder had two steals, two runs batted in and a crucial double in a four-run rally in the second.

Tamalpais scored twice in the sixth to beat Sonoma. John Wynn walked, hustled to third on Tony Petersen's sacrifice, and scored on Alvin Hall's single. After another bunt by Curt Klinger, Jake Newman singled home the winning run.

Terra Linda gave up the winning run in the ninth on a double by Sacred Heart's Jim Bowes, after losing a two-run lead in the seventh on a two-run single by Joe Ramirez.

San Rafael High's makeup game with Galileo in San Francisco was called off due to wet grounds. Poor field conditions also forced the transfer of San Marin's game to Rancho and Redwood's game to El Cerrito.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tremendous Growth Before Energy Crisis

About 46 million Americans went boating "more than once or twice" during 1973, according to statistics being compiled by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers from state boating agency figures.

They spent very close to $4 billion.

There are about 9,300,000 boats in use in the United States, a figure that has been growing at the rate of about 300,000 a year for the past 25 years.

This growth will probably slow a little this year because of the energy crisis, but it demonstrates beyond all doubt that boating enjoys a tremendous popularity. Boating goes so well with almost any other hobby or pastime you can think of.

The divesity of its application to other interests is shown by many of the questions we are asked:

Q. The beach in front of a campground we often visit is very pebbly and rough. Any suggestions for beaching our boat?

A. Lay an old tire flat on the beach just barely submerged at the water's edge. Fill it full of rocks or pebbles to anchor it. It will give you something resilient and non-abrasive to beach the boat on.

Q. I have become an avid scuba diver. What privileges do I have if I am flying the diver's flay? (A red flag with a diagonal white stripe indicating a diver is below.)

A. Practically none. One or two states have sections in their state boating laws requiring boats to stay 100 feet or more clear of a diver's flag whether flown on a buoy or a boat. However, in most waters you are strictly on your own.

Q. As a swimmer and student of aquatic safety, I think the adage, "stay with the boat," if you are swamped, is sometimes dangerous. Suppose there's an offshore wind?

A. You are right. Last summer two young boys followed the rule and their boat drifted away from shore and they finally succumbed to exposure. When the boat first tipped over, they were close enough to land and both were good enough swimmers to have made it easily.

Q. Is my home woodworking shop adequate for boat repairs? I want to buy a 44-year old boat that's been in salt water all its life. Any suggestions?

A. Get the boat out of the water before you buy and get an expert to look at the bottom planks and frames. If the hull has not suffered borer damage, it may be well preserved. But, if the frames are rotted, your home workshop may be out of its depth.

Q. My survival class asks what is the best distress signal from a boat in trouble?

A. Assuming that you have no radio or mechanical device — or that they have all broken down — the opinion of many boating experts is that the best distress signal is one made by standing on the highest point available and slowly raising and lowering the arms from your sides, in a slow flying motion. Nobody would confuse this signal with a wave or greeting.

Q. I teach knot-tying to scouts. I've heard so many conflicting figures as to the strength of splices. What is fact?

A. The best authorities I can find — the rope manufacturers themselves — say that a splice can attain 90 per cent of the strength of the original rope, whereas a knot is seldom better than 65 per cent as strong.

Q. If two sailboats are approaching each other on different tacks, which has the right of way?

A. The boat on the starboard tack (with the wind coming over its right or starboard side) has the right of way. The boat with the wind on its left or port side has to give way.

Q. What is the whistle signal to give if you intend to pass a boat ahead on his right side?

A. One blast. It indicates you are altering your course to starboard (right) and that you intend to overtake and leave the boat on your left or port side.

Tam Track Team Gets Bus, Wins

Not even the energy crisis could stop Tamalpais High School.

Terra Nova hosted the meet, originally scheduled for Tam's track. Terra Nova's buses couldn't leave Pacifica because of the energy crisis.

Tam was led by two double winners: Shannon Bynum in the sprints (100-yard dash and 220), and Steve Locey (880, mile). Freshman Aaron Collier, running on varsity, set a new Tam frosh record in the two-mile, with a time of 12:14.7.

Drake was "significantly behind" in its non-league meet yesterday with San Bruno powerhouse Crestmoor, said Pirate coach Gerry Kobil. Final results were unavailable. Larry Mastin broke a Drake High record in the two mile with a time of 9:54.5, while senior Eddie Joe Chavez started his track and field career in the high jump with a leap of 5-9.

Drake's non-league meet this week with Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland has been rescheduled from Friday to Thursday in San Anselmo at 3:45 p.m.

Sonoma State Pours It On Against Pacific?

ANAHEIM — Is there such a thing as pouring it on in baseball?

If so, Sonoma State College could be accused of doing just that.

Wayne Bauers was the slugging star for Sonoma (14-6), driving in five runs on a triple, double and single in seven at-bats. He also scored five times and stole four bases.

Perry Kozlowski went the distance for the Cossacks to raise his season record to 3-1. He helped his own cause with a triple and a double to go along with 10 strikeouts and five walks.

Walks Hurt Marin Nine In Opener

The innocent-looking base on balls was cruel to both teams yesterday, but more cruel to College of Marin in a 4-2 loss to Contra Costa of San Pablo.

The game at Marin Catholic High School was the Camino Norte Conference opener for both teams.

Marin pitcher Don Bianchini walked only two, but both preceded a bases-loaded triple by the Comets' Pat Ward in the third inning. Contra Costa's John Paysinger walked only three, but two came before a two-run single by the Tars' Steve Sherry in the fifth inning.

Paysinger struck out 10 and scattered five hits, while Bianchini, also pitching well, fanned eight and allowed seven hits.

San Rafael Wins In Golf

Drake High School's Mark Lavin was the medalist with a three-over-par 39 yesterday, but his efforts fell barely short as the Pirates lost a non-league golf match to San Rafael at San Geronimo National, 212-213.

Bill Corbett was low man for San Rafael with a 41.

In another non-league match, Tamalpais won for the first time by edging Terra Linda, 234-240, at Marin Country Club. Tam's Bill Campagna was medalist with 42, while Kevin Sweeney led the Trojans with 44. Tam lost its opener Monday to San Marin, 231-240, at Indian Valley.

Redwood Tennis String Hits 55

Henry Jacobson won the No. 1 singles match for the Giants, defeating Jerry Jue, 6-4, 6-2.

The match was Redwood's 1974 opener, following the rainout of Friday's match with Washington of San Francisco, which has not yet been rescheduled.

PASSES FIRST TEST

Goodson Swinging Away

By JACK HANLEY

CASA GRANDE — Ed Goodson is happy that the first day of 1974 spring training is behind him. It was no ordinary day for the rangy Virginian with the natural baseball swing.

Goodson came to camp with a big worry. He didn't know whether he would be able to hit a baseball again in the same way he did before a frightening accident last Aug. 17.

"I'm nervous, really concerned," said Goodson while waiting his turn in the batting cage.

The tension around the batting cage disappeared as soon as Goodson discovered he still could hit a baseball despite a semi-rigid index finger of the right hand.

Goodson's index finger was broken when it was caught in the catching equipment of Dave Rader. Goodson and Rader collided in Three Rivers Stadium at Pittsburgh while chasing a foul popup.

Goodson was lucky he didn't lose the finger. An infection set in and destroyed the cartilage of the middle joint. Goodson was in considerable pain by the time the team arrived home following emergency surgery and stitching of the finger in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Robert Brown, San Francisco hand specialist, saved Goodson's finger with a skillful skin graft.

"He also cleaned up the infection," said Goodson. "I had no pain whatsoever during the winter. I was able to hunt with a bow and arrow and help in building our home in Independence."

The Independence to which Goodson referred is a tiny Virginia township in the Appalachians where this winter Goodson bagged an eight-point buck with a bow that has a 50-pound pull. That should indicate Goodson's index finger isn't handicapping him.

Dr. E. C. Sailer, team physician of the Giants, has assured Goodson that he wouldn't be handicapped by the finger in his batting. That's because Goodson bats left. Had it been Goodson's left index finger that had been broken his major league career might be over now.

"I can't curl the finger around the bat as I once did," said Goodson. "It sticks out. I'm conscious of that now. It will take a little while before I forget about it sticking out. But I'm comfortable — and mighty relieved."

Even though he bats left, Goodson throws right. The damaged finger doesn't interfere with his ability to grip and throw a baseball. There's just enough flexibility in the middle joint of the finger to permit a solid grip.

For a nightmarish period after the accident, Goodson didn't know whether the middle joint might have to be fused. If that had become necessary, Goodson couldn't have gripped and thrown a baseball the way a first baseman must.

Goodson already has been announced by Charlie Fox as Willie McCovey's successor at first base. While McCovey was still a Giant last year, Goodson played third base. He was hitting .302 before the accident.

Petaluma Has Big Opening Baseball Win

Petaluma High School got its 1974 baseball season off to an explosive start yesterday with a 15-10 non-league win over visiting San Leandro.

The Trojans scored 14 of their runs before the first out was recorded in the opening frame on 10 hits.

USF's Smith Is Player Of Year; LaPorte Top Coach

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The Northern California basketball writers have named University of San Francisco guard Phil Smith the area's Player of the Year and St. Mary's Frank LaPorte Coach of the Year.

Smith hit a career high of 34 points to give the Dons a comeback victory Saturday in the game that they had to have to win the West Coast Athletic Conference title and land in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney.

The 6-foot-4 guard hit 21.3 points per game, averaged 47.7 per cent from the floor and is considered certain to go high when the pros start drafting.

LaPorte took the Gaels from 7-19 last season to 15-13 this season in this, his rookie season. It was the first winning record for the Gaels in a decade.

Stan Cherry of Hayward was named College Division Player of the Year after averaging 17.6 points per game and 12.4 rebounds even though he was only a 6-4 center.

IN GIANTS' CAMP

Batting Tutor Fonseca Is Working On Kingman

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Lou Fonseca, an American League batting king in 1929 still considered a student of hitting, is in the San Francisco Giants training camp.

He is listed as a team hitting instructor but actually he is mostly a personal tutor for big Dave Kingman.

Kingman is a huge slugger who has hit 59 homers in 288 major league games, many of them awesome tape measure jobs in the Frank Howard range. But he has also struck out 262 times in the last two seasons alone.

Kingman spent about 15 minutes in the batting cage yesterday with Fonseca looking on and hit about 25 pitches over the fence. Fonseca alternately scolded and praised, trying to get Kingman to shorten his swing a bit.

"There is absolutely no way to predict how far this man can go in this game," Fonseca said. "He has a few flaws in his swing, curable ones, and such tremendous power he doesn't need to swing with a full arc to hit the ball out of the park."

The Giants plan their first intrasquad game today. They break camp tomorrow and travel to their permanent spring quarters in Phoenix. On Saturday they launch their Cactus League exhibition season in Tucson against Cleveland.

A Complete Field For Cal 500 Race

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — There will be a complete field for Sunday's $350,000 California 500 after all.

The Ontario Motor Speedway yesterday announced that Al Loquasto of Easton, Pa., and Johnny Parsons Jr. of Indianapolis have accepted invitations to enter the fifth annual 500-miler.

Marin Teams Win 4 Out Of 5 Baseball Openers

Marin high school baseball teams greeted Opening Day with considerable zest yesterday, winning four inaugural games in five tries.

Redwood High School defeated host El Cerrito, 10-4, Marin Catholic topped host El Molino of Forestville, 8-2, San Marin whipped host Rancho Cotate, 7-2, and Tamalpais edged visiting Sonoma, 2-1.

The only team to lose an opener yesterday was Terra Linda, a nine-inning, 3-2 victim of Sacred Heart in San Francisco. Novato High (0-2), which lost Monday's opener to St. Ignatius, yesterday fell to visiting Napa, 5-2, in eight innings.

Redwood batted around during an eight-run sixth inning which sank El Cerrito. There were seven hits in the inning, four in a row, including a two-run triple by Rob Long, his second three-bagger of the game.

Marin Catholic got only two hits, but took advantage of El Molino errors and wildness. The decisive six-run rally in the seventh inning consisted of five walks, an error and a fielder's choice.

San Marin stole six bases and played well defensively, according to coach Ron Butori. Mike Linder had two steals, two runs batted in and a crucial double in a four-run rally in the second.

Tamalpais scored twice in the sixth to beat Sonoma. John Wynn walked, hustled to third on Tony Petersen's sacrifice, and scored on Alvin Hall's single. After another bunt by Curt Klinger, Jake Newman singled home the winning run.

Terra Linda gave up the winning run in the ninth on a double by Sacred Heart's Jim Bowes, after losing a two-run lead in the seventh on a two-run single by Joe Ramirez.

San Rafael High's makeup game with Galileo in San Francisco was called off due to wet grounds. Poor field conditions also forced the transfer of San Marin's game to Rancho and Redwood's game to El Cerrito.

San Diego was never closer than four points thereafter, despite five Cossack turnovers in the last five minutes.

Bill Belander showed last night why he was a unanimous All-FWC pick. He scored a game-high 21 points and picked off 12 rebounds.

More than half of the Toreros scoring was provided by two former College of Marin stars, Neil Traub and Joe DeMaestri. Traub contributed 16 points and 17 rebounds. DeMaestri registered 12 points, 11 of them in the first half, and had five rebounds.

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Dick Green has come out of retirement and will arrive at Oakland's training camp here by the end of the week.

The 32-year-old second baseman, who hit .262 last season and committed only seven errors in 133 games, announced yesterday he had been lured back to the diamond wars by owner Charlie Finley.

Meanwhile, A's star Reggie Jackson revealed that he had won $10 from Vice President Gerald Ford in a weekend golf match galleried by a group of pistol-toting Secret Service men.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tremendous Growth Before Energy Crisis

About 46 million Americans went boating "more than once or twice" during 1973, according to statistics being compiled by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers from state boating agency figures.

They spent very close to $4 billion.

There are about 9,300,000 boats in use in the United States, a figure that has been growing at the rate of about 300,000 a year for the past 25 years.

This growth will probably slow a little this year because of the energy crisis, but it demonstrates beyond all doubt that boating enjoys a tremendous popularity. Boating goes so well with almost any other hobby or pastime you can think of.

Consider the many activities it complements so well: camping, swimming, fishing, hunting, bird watching, nature study, photography, sketching, and on.

The divesity of its application to other interests is shown by many of the questions we are asked:

Q. The beach in front of a campground we often visit is very pebbly and rough. Any suggestions for beaching our boat?

A. Lay an old tire flat on the beach just barely submerged at the water's edge. Fill it full of rocks or pebbles to anchor it. It will give you something resilient and non-abrasive to beach the boat on.

Q. I have become an avid scuba diver. What privileges do I have if I am flying the diver's flay? (A red flag with a diagonal white stripe indicating a diver is below.)

A. Practically none. One or two states have sections in their state boating laws requiring boats to stay 100 feet or more clear of a diver's flag whether flown on a buoy or a boat. However, in most waters you are strictly on your own.

Q. As a swimmer and student of aquatic safety, I think the adage, "stay with the boat," if you are swamped, is sometimes dangerous. Suppose there's an offshore wind?

A. You are right. Last summer two young boys followed the rule and their boat drifted away from shore and they finally succumbed to exposure. When the boat first tipped over, they were close enough to land and both were good enough swimmers to have made it easily.

Q. Is my home woodworking shop adequate for boat repairs? I want to buy a 44-year old boat that's been in salt water all its life. Any suggestions?

A. Get the boat out of the water before you buy and get an expert to look at the bottom planks and frames. If the hull has not suffered borer damage, it may be well preserved. But, if the frames are rotted, your home workshop may be out of its depth.

Q. My survival class asks what is the best distress signal from a boat in trouble?

A. Assuming that you have no radio or mechanical device — or that they have all broken down — the opinion of many boating experts is that the best distress signal is one made by standing on the highest point available and slowly raising and lowering the arms from your sides, in a slow flying motion. Nobody would confuse this signal with a wave or greeting.

Q. I teach knot-tying to scouts. I've heard so many conflicting figures as to the strength of splices. What is fact?

A. The best authorities I can find — the rope manufacturers themselves — say that a splice can attain 90 per cent of the strength of the original rope, whereas a knot is seldom better than 65 per cent as strong.

Q. If two sailboats are approaching each other on different tacks, which has the right of way?

A. The boat on the starboard tack (with the wind coming over its right or starboard side) has the right of way. The boat with the wind on its left or port side has to give way.

Q. What is the whistle signal to give if you intend to pass a boat ahead on his right side?

A. One blast. It indicates you are altering your course to starboard (right) and that you intend to overtake and leave the boat on your left or port side.

Tam Track Team Gets Bus, Wins

Not even the energy crisis could stop Tamalpais High School.

Tam's track and field team rolled over Terra Nova, 96-44, in the Indians' non-league season opener in Pacifica yesterday.

Terra Nova hosted the meet, originally scheduled for Tam's track. Terra Nova's buses couldn't leave Pacifica because of the energy crisis.

Tam was led by two double winners: Shannon Bynum in the sprints (100-yard dash and 220), and Steve Locey (880, mile). Freshman Aaron Collier, running on varsity, set a new Tam frosh record in the two-mile, with a time of 12:14.7.

Drake was "significantly behind" in its non-league meet yesterday with San Bruno powerhouse Crestmoor, said Pirate coach Gerry Kobil. Final results were unavailable. Larry Mastin broke a Drake High record in the two mile with a time of 9:54.5, while senior Eddie Joe Chavez started his track and field career in the high jump with a leap of 5-9.

Drake's non-league meet this week with Bishop O'Dowd of Oakland has been rescheduled from Friday to Thursday in San Anselmo at 3:45 p.m.

Sonoma State Pours It On Against Pacific?

ANAHEIM — Is there such a thing as pouring it on in baseball?

If so, Sonoma State College could be accused of doing just that.

The Cossacks yesterday scored 17 runs in the final three innings here to take a 22-3 non-league game from host Pacific Christian College.

Wayne Bauers was the slugging star for Sonoma (14-6), driving in five runs on a triple, double and single in seven at-bats. He also scored five times and stole four bases.

Perry Kozlowski went the distance for the Cossacks to raise his season record to 3-1. He helped his own cause with a triple and a double to go along with 10 strikeouts and five walks.

Walks Hurt Marin Nine In Opener

The innocent-looking base on balls was cruel to both teams yesterday, but more cruel to College of Marin in a 4-2 loss to Contra Costa of San Pablo.

The game at Marin Catholic High School was the Camino Norte Conference opener for both teams.

Marin pitcher Don Bianchini walked only two, but both preceded a bases-loaded triple by the Comets' Pat Ward in the third inning. Contra Costa's John Paysinger walked only three, but two came before a two-run single by the Tars' Steve Sherry in the fifth inning.

Paysinger struck out 10 and scattered five hits, while Bianchini, also pitching well, fanned eight and allowed seven hits.

San Rafael Wins In Golf

Drake High School's Mark Lavin was the medalist with a three-over-par 39 yesterday, but his efforts fell barely short as the Pirates lost a non-league golf match to San Rafael at San Geronimo National, 212-213.

Bill Corbett was low man for San Rafael with a 41.

In another non-league match, Tamalpais won for the first time by edging Terra Linda, 234-240, at Marin Country Club. Tam's Bill Campagna was medalist with 42, while Kevin Sweeney led the Trojans with 44. Tam lost its opener Monday to San Marin, 231-240, at Indian Valley.

Redwood Tennis String Hits 55

Redwood High School extended its undefeated streak in tennis to 55 consecutive matches (with one tie) by defeating Berkeley High yesterday in Larkspur, 6-1.

Henry Jacobson won the No. 1 singles match for the Giants, defeating Jerry Jue, 6-4, 6-2.

The match was Redwood's 1974 opener, following the rainout of Friday's match with Washington of San Francisco, which has not yet been rescheduled.

Goodson Swinging Away

By JACK HANLEY

CASA GRANDE — Ed Goodson is happy that the first day of 1974 spring training is behind him. It was no ordinary day for the rangy Virginian with the natural baseball swing.

Goodson came to camp with a big worry. He didn't know whether he would be able to hit a baseball again in the same way he did before a frightening accident last Aug. 17.

"I'm nervous, really concerned," said Goodson while waiting his turn in the batting cage.

Goodson's fellow Giant teammates shared his anxiety. They knew it was a dramatic and apprehensive moment for Goodson.

The tension around the batting cage disappeared as soon as Goodson discovered he still could hit a baseball despite a semi-rigid index finger of the right hand.

Goodson's index finger was broken when it was caught in the catching equipment of Dave Rader. Goodson and Rader collided in Three Rivers Stadium at Pittsburgh while chasing a foul popup.

Goodson was lucky he didn't lose the finger. An infection set in and destroyed the cartilage of the middle joint. Goodson was in considerable pain by the time the team arrived home following emergency surgery and stitching of the finger in Pittsburgh.

Dr. Robert Brown, San Francisco hand specialist, saved Goodson's finger with a skillful skin graft.

"He also cleaned up the infection," said Goodson. "I had no pain whatsoever during the winter. I was able to hunt with a bow and arrow and help in building our home in Independence."

The Independence to which Goodson referred is a tiny Virginia township in the Appalachians where this winter Goodson bagged an eight-point buck with a bow that has a 50-pound pull. That should indicate Goodson's index finger isn't handicapping him.

Dr. E. C. Sailer, team physician of the Giants, has assured Goodson that he wouldn't be handicapped by the finger in his batting. That's because Goodson bats left. Had it been Goodson's left index finger that had been broken his major league career might be over now.

"I can't curl the finger around the bat as I once did," said Goodson. "It sticks out. I'm conscious of that now. It will take a little while before I forget about it sticking out. But I'm comfortable — and mighty relieved."

Even though he bats left, Goodson throws right. The damaged finger doesn't interfere with his ability to grip and throw a baseball. There's just enough flexibility in the middle joint of the finger to permit a solid grip.

For a nightmarish period after the accident, Goodson didn't know whether the middle joint might have to be fused. If that had become necessary, Goodson couldn't have gripped and thrown a baseball the way a first baseman must.

Goodson already has been announced by Charlie Fox as Willie McCovey's successor at first base. While McCovey was still a Giant last year, Goodson played third base. He was hitting .302 before the accident.

Petaluma Has Big Opening Baseball Win

Petaluma High School got its 1974 baseball season off to an explosive start yesterday with a 15-10 non-league win over visiting San Leandro.

The Trojans scored 14 of their runs before the first out was recorded in the opening frame on 10 hits.

FLEA MARKET: BARGAINS AND BABIES

A seller unloads his pickup, left, as anxious buyers look for bargains amid piles of second-hand goods at the Marin City Flea Market, a busy center of weekend commerce when the weather's right. Four tots, right, occupy a lofty vantage point on the top of a car as they watch their parents rummage for that special buy at a price they can't afford to turn down. (Photos by Jim Kean)

TOOLING AROUND — A young couple search through bits and bolts and brass at a tool seller's stall. She's found a screwdriver, and if the price is too high, she'll probably haggle, which is half the fun in the open air market.

BUY BABY BUNTING — Nine-month-old Alexis Gawthier snoozes, unimpressed that his mother, Marty, is searching for some additions to his wardrobe. Baby clothes, carriages, cribs, always are hot items at a flea market, a kind of recycling center for things junior has outgrown but some other child might be able to use.

FRESH FRUIT — A fruit and juice seller arranges her wares on a low bench, offering shoppers and other weekend merchants sustenance to continue through an afternoon of hard bargaining at the flea market.

PICKING A BANJO — A young man sights the neck of a used banjo, checking to see if it is warped before making an offer to buy. A young woman browser, wearing a "what sort of a man reads Playboy?" expression, watches with interest.

CASH AND CARRY — J. R. Miller, left, of San Francisco helps houseguest Donald David of Los Angeles wrestle an old record chest into the back of a station wagon. Plans are to convert the chest into a liquor cabinet. The Marin City market has a reputation for authentic buys, while many other bigger markets in the bay area often are haunts for "professional" sellers, who show up every weekend with mostly new goods.

IMPROMPTU PLAYPEN — Jessica Sue Garnett of Waldo Point keeps an eye on the action from the confines of a cardboard box near her mother's stall at the flea market. Many persons find renting a space at the market a profitable way to get rid of unused items in a kind of communal garage sale. For bargain hunters, this garage sale in one place saves energy and gasoline.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Sale Of Two Issues Best To Reap Tax Advantage

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I firmly believe I should liquidate my holdings in Seagrave Corp. (NYSE), Bond Industries (NYSE) and Diamond International (NYSE) in order to use the losses to offset a larg capital gain. My wife feels that these stocks should not be sold when they are at their lowest levels. Your opinion would be appreciated.—E.K.

A. Assuming that your capital gain is also long-term, there would appear to be a considerably tax advantage in taking the long-term capital losses on two of your three holdings. Recovery prospects for Bond and Seagrave are dimmed by their negative earnings trends. Sale of these two issues is advised.

For Diamond International, in which your loss is not large, earnings were up substantially in 1973. The drop in share price reflects the downturn in home building; some 30 per cent of the company's sales are derived from lumber and building materials. While this factor may continue to depress the stock over the first half, an upturn in building is expected by the latter part of 1974. Furthermore, undercapacity in the paper and paper container fields (40 per cent of sales), should keep prices and profits in that area at a high level. The generous 6.8 per cent yield coupled with appreciation potential make shares worth holding.

Q. I would appreciate your opinion on Milton Bradley (NYSE) in view of the substantially lower price of the shares during the last 1½ years.—S.M.

A. Most of the problems which held earnings down in 1973 are now behind. Recovery was apparent in the final quarter when net rose 7.5 per cent year to year. Earnings for the year $1.10 a share compared with $1.36 in 1972, while sales moved up 17 per cent. Higher interest costs incurred on short-term borrowings will be reduced this year reflecting the drop in the prime rate. Sale of one plant and the expected rental of another, both of which had been carried at a loss on the books, should also reduce non-recurring expenses. Hold for recovery.

Stocks On Mixed Side After Opening

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks turned mixed on the New York Stock Exchange today after opening a bit higher. Trading was active.

Gainers outnumbered losers, 610 to 513, among the 1,546 issues traded.

In economic news, Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said he believes inflation and unemployment will continue to rise in the first half of 1974.

Stocks of companies involved in motor tourism were among the previous session's strongest performers and were actively traded in today's early trading.

Ramada Inns, the volume leader, gained ⅜ to 7 ⅛ on 158,100 shares. Howard Johnson was second, ahead ½ to 10 ¾ on 157,200 shares. Both issues have been prime selling targets during the oil embargo.

Hailliburton, an oil field service stock, gained 1 ½, but other energy stocks weakened in profit taking. Superior, Atlantic Richfield and Ohio Standard each dropped at least a point.

On the American Exchange, stocks gained in moderate trading. McCulloch Oil led the actives, up ⅛ to 7 on 32,600 shares.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Sick Pay Deduction Dependent On Several Different Factors

Sick pay is sometimes taxed, sometimes partially taxable and sometimes tax free. Here are the rules:

The amount you received because of accident or sickness where your employer paid the premiums to the insurance company, or where your employer himself paid your wages while you were off sick is taxed as follows:

No sick pay exclusion is allowed for wages received for the first 30 days of absence if the wages are over 75 per cent of the regular weekly rate. Sick pay received after the 30 day waiting period is over is excluded, but not more than $100 per week.

If your sick pay is 75 per cent or less of your regular weekly pay and if you are in the hospital at least one day while you are off, you can exclude the payments for the first 30 days up to $75 per week. But, if you are not in the hospital at least overnight, there is no exclusion for the first seven days and the $75 maximum will apply only to the balance of the first 30 days you are off.

If you can use sick pay exclusion, you should get a Form 2440 from your local Internal Revenue Service office and attach it to your tax return. This form will help you compute accurately the amount of sick pay you can exclude.

'Retreads' Have Lesson For Today

There's a little lesson for all of us uptight Americans in a "new column" that started Monday on this page.

We hope that by now many of our younger readers have made their first acquaintance with Will Rogers. Their parents and grandparents remember him — fondly in most cases — from his years in movies and on radio plus his daily columns for nine years before he was killed in a 1935 plane crash.

The present columns are "retreads." They are selections from his writings in those long-ago days of "back to normalcy," Teapot Dome, "two chickens in every pot," and the great depression.

IT IS BECAUSE they are "retreads" that they contain a message for us today. It's a message Will repeated over and over, in a wide assortment of ways.

In January, 1930, he wrote: "Last year we said, 'Things can't go on like this' and they didn't. They got worse."

And in November of the same year: "It looks like the Democrats will get in a bunch of new ones in the next election. They always do mighty well in these off years.

"It'll give some people something to get worked up over, and get all excited over. It don't mean anything. We been staggering along now all these years under every conceivable horse thief that could get into office, and yet, here we are, still going strong."

BUT IT WAS six years before that — during the Teapot Dome investigation — that he wrote:

"If they had ever taken one of those truth machines to that investigation in Washington, there would have been more American men sailing for Europe than went during the war."

The lesson is a simple one: History repeats itself, and when we think we are facing unprecedented disaster or an unsolvable problem, it's just because we've forgotten — or never knew — what happened before.

STUDENTS of history have found in ancient Rome the same kinds of problems and "solutions" we have today — including welfare abuse, an overgrown military establishment, unsuccessful attempts at government control of the economy, etc. Will Rogers, who grew up in what had been the Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma and got into columning more-or-less by accident via the vaudeville stage, didn't delve that far. But he knew the history of the United States had its blotches and bad times. He couldn't help but know: some of his grandparents had walked the "trail of tears" from Georgia to the Indian Territory.

But he also knew that the nation and its people had great ability to revive and rise above their failures and shortcomings — and "here we are, still going strong."

The "retreading" of Will Rogers' cogent comments a half century later should serve to make us aware of what he knew all along. Maybe now, as in the '20s and '30s, his humorous barbs can bring us some perspective in our view of fuel shortage, Washington scandals, government spending, and the rest of the current crop of problems.

Budget Reform Needed But Not Burton's Game

By RUS WALTON

In his 1974 "State of the State" message, Governor Reagan called for several measures to slow the spiraling costs of government. One was a constitutional amendment to require the legislature to adopt balanced budgets.

He figured that since he must present a budget in balance to the lawmakers, the least they could do was to return the favor. As it is now, the legislature can shove an over-sized budget on his desk and he must use the "blue pencil" — the line item veto — to cut it back to the revenues available.

ASSEMBLYMAN JOHN Burton, D-San Francisco, has jumped on the governor's suggestion. Burton has introduced a constitutional amendment that would force the legislature to adopt a balanced budget. But Burton's deck is stacked. It would also take away the governor's right to line-item veto.

Burton no doubt thinks his half-vast proposal is a hah-hah. It's a no-no. It would simply remove one more check, one more balance, between the legislative and executive branches. The taxpayers would be the patsies.

If Burton were to have his way, the legislature would have the final say on how the people's money was to be apportioned. The budget passed by the legislature would stand, as is, without any alteration by the governor. Such a budget would be the world's biggest pork barrel.

THERE ARE, INDEED, some needed reforms in the budget-making process. Those are what Burton should attend to, instead of playing games.

For one thing, it it now takes a two-thirds majority to pass the state budget: 27 votes in the Senate, 54 votes in the Assembly. That is a total of 19 "extra" votes (over and above simple majorities) — six extra in the Senate and 13 in the Assembly.

Those 19 extra votes can —and usually do — cost the taxpayer millions of extra dollars. Because many of those "extra" votes come through costly barter: a couple of million dollars for a new park brings one "aye," another million or so for another pet project brings another "aye," and so on until the two-thirds majority is obtained.

Some legislators think it shrewd to lie back and wait; the longer they wait, the more they can demand for their "aye."

If the vote required were lowered to a simple majority, there might be fewer barrels and less pork.

THEN TOO, the Joint Conference Committee on the budget should be restricted strictly to items in dispute. The committee's job should be to iron out the differences between the budget bills passed by the two houses, period.

The way it is now, the committee slides in all sorts of little — but expensive — goodies. Sen. Randy Collier, D-Yreka, is a foxy-loxy at that. Last year he slid in about $82 million-worth of pork and bought himself a running start on those memorial legislative towers.

The contingency funds for the Senate and Assembly went into committee at $37 million and swelled to $45 million before emerging from those closed and secret conference meetings.

THERE IS A PLACE where the two-thirds majority should apply on the passage of any tax measure.

The way it is now, it takes only a simple majority to increase your taxes. The exceptions to that are bank and corporation taxes. It takes a two-thirds vote in both houses to hike them. For years some legislators have been trying to drop that vote requirement to a simple majority. They push in the wrong direction.

For one thing, businesses do not pay taxes; they just collect them: people pay taxes, all taxes.

What the legislature should do is push for a constitutional amendment that would require a two-thirds majority on tax measures. That would give the taxpayer some measure of protection from the tax-and-spend types.

The combination of those three reforms — a simple majority to pass the budget, restricting the conference committee to items in dispute, and a two-thirds majority for tax measures — those are fiscal reforms we really need.

Omen Of Better Future In Roanoke, Va.

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

ROANOKE, Va. — Even if this were some other winter, it would be greedy to ask to start out around the country and come across somebody like her the first day — somebody whom I am nominating now to be an omen for all the towns and miles to come.

Another day, a traveling salesman-cheerleader who attends Rotary pep rallies for a living might tell you he struck such an inspiration, in the form of predictions of boom times ahead. Not even that traditional fount is flowing optimism this winter, however. Still I found one in Roanoke — not a he but a she, not a booster but a poet!

Annie Dillard.

A FEW MONTHS BACK, she was a tall, blonde, skinny, cocky girl who played second base in softball, studied science, contemplated her back yard, and sat cross-legged in the middle of her bed, writing. Very shortly, everybody who reads books in this country is going to know of her, and she is going to be relatively rich, as poets go.

She has done a book of poe tic prose which is in fact poetry set in paragraphs instead of stanzas, and which it is hard to write about without sounding like her agent. It is a book about nature, but that is like saying Genesis is a book about marine engineering. In it she has avoided absolutely any social or political commentary, or even stated advocacy of the environmental cause. And yet . . .

Its title is "Pilgrim at Tinker Creek," and she says it is a religious book, and that saying so makes her publishers in New York fall over on the floor. But that is what it is — not a book about religion, but a religious book. It and she put all the sour and crowded mess of the headlines into a perspective where it belongs.

I paraphrase her conversation, speculation about God: Whatever He is, He must be nice. He looks down and smiles and says, "Here, have a daffodil — Here, have a bluebird."

THAT IS HOW IT COMES spontaneously. There is no frivolity to it when she puts it on paper. It is buffed, held up to the light, breathed upon, buffed again, strung together and collated. No more careful writer is writing.

She examines and celebrates seeing. Having considered blindness, she supposes she had been blind and gained sight: ". . . the world unraveled from reason, Eden before Adam gave names. The scales were dropped from my eyes; I'd see trees like men walking; I'd run down the road against all orders, hallooing and leaping."

She is mesmerized by minutiae. One of her favorite bits of knowledge is that if a single aphid bred unmolested for a year, it would produce so many living aphids, each one-tenth of an inch long, that they would extend into space 2,500 light-years. She is that way about rock barnacles, muskrats and giant water bugs. When I talked to her I was embarrassed because I did not have on the tip of my tongue the precise latitutde of the Arctic Circle.

From being a poet (and faculty wife) at Hollins College, she is catapulted into new things. Jill Krementz, who specializes in literary eminences, took publicity photos of her in Bob Dylan's apartment. Harper's asked her, as its new contributing editor, where she would like to go. She said Antarctica. She is going to the Galapagos Islands instead. Where she really wanted to go was the high Arctic.

WHERE SHE WANTS to be, when it comes to that, is at Hollins, beside Tinker Creek. Since she has been so nice to God, I hope He lets her.

It is there that she is moved to write, "There is always an enormous temptation in all of life to diddle around making itsy-bitsy friends and meals and journeys for itsy-bitsy years on end . . . I won't have it. The world is wilder than that in all directions, more dangerous and bitter, more extravagant and bright. We are making hay when we should be making whoopee; we are raising tomatoes when we should be raising Cain, or Lazarus . . . This is how you spend this afternoon, and tomorrow morning, and tomorrow afternoon. Spend the afternoon. You can't take it with you."

I may have missed her here. Let me say it flat out. She has a high talent, the youth of a rock fan and an overwhelming love affair with life. And what is inspiring is not merely to experience all that in reading and meeting her, but to realize afterward that here is an American who is getting there on hard, simple quality. No gimmicks. No connections. In this otherwise downbeat winter of 1974, as I say, I pray that she is an omen of others to come.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Children do not know how their parents love them, and they never will till the grave closes over those parents, or till they have children of their own. — Philip Pendleton Cooke.

An infallible way to make your child miserable is to satisfy all his demands. — Henry Home.

The American landscape is littered with monuments to the folly of certain expenditures: giant public-housing developments that have become high-rise slums and breeders of delinquency, drug addiction and crime; scenery-destroying highways that bog down with traffic jams; canal and harbor projects that ruin rivers and destroy marshlands; and, worst of all, our disgraceful welfare system with its incentives for people not to work and for fathers to desert their families. — Elliott L. ROSCOE DRUMMOND

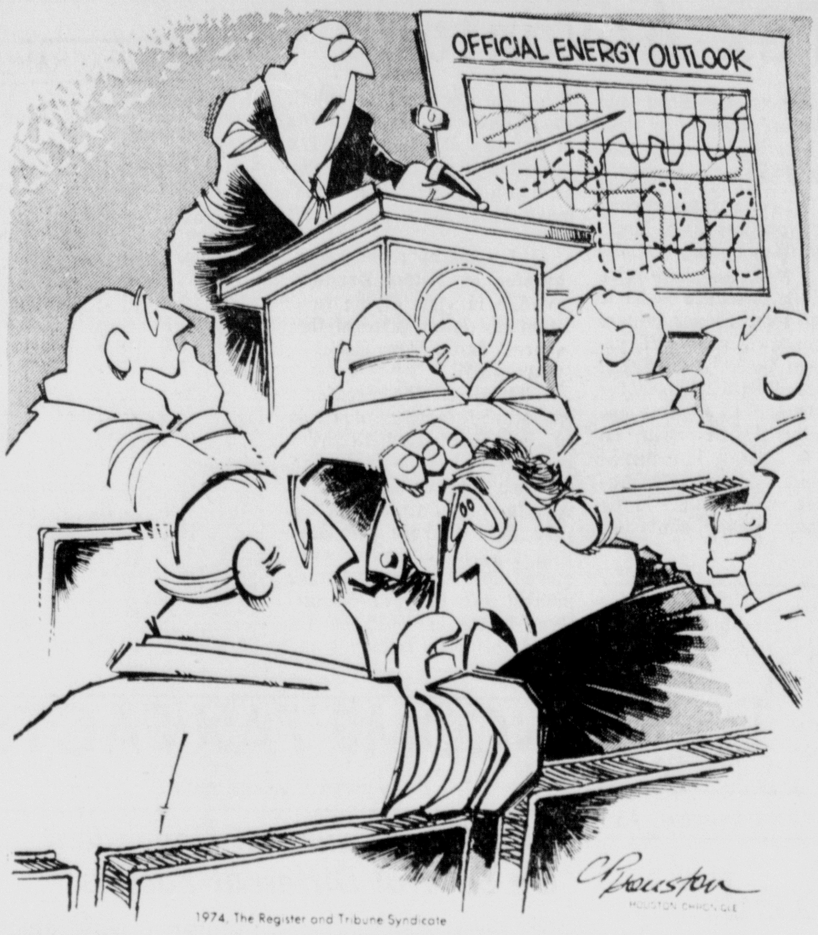
Why Those Doubts Of Oil Crisis



"What drives me crazy is how the good news and the bad news are the SAME news."

WASHINGTON — Why is the administration having such a hard time persuading the American people that the fuel crisis is real, not phony? In part it is because no official has come near to explaining why the government was so egregiously late in recognizing what it was up against and in doing anything to head it off.

In the second sentence of the opening statement at his latest press conference, President Nixon remarked: "You will recall that last October when we saw the energy crisis developing as a result of the embargo . . ."

WRONG ON BOTH points! The president may have first seen the energy crisis developing last October, but it had been developing not just over a period of many months but many years, and, while some with foresight were warning about what was ahead, nobody did anything about it.

And the Arab oil embargo only speeded the oncoming crisis; it didn't create it. For at least a decade our use of oil was steadily exceeding supply, and this, too, was evident to those who were willing to look at the facts. Some looked and none acted.

I am not seeking to center the blame on anyone. There's plenty for all, including the media. Responsibility for failing to perceive and to act goes back to every president and every Congress — Republican and Democratic — since the end of World War II.

IT SEEMS TO ME that here we come face to face with one of the usually concealed weaknesses of democracy, certainly our own democracy. The weakness — and it is a gravely serious one — is this:

As a government we are better than average at coping with a national crisis after it has become so ominously visible that there is no blinking at it.

But also as a government we seem determined to close our eyes and turn our heads the other way instead of recognizing impending crises and beginning to deal with them when it would be possible either to avert or make them more manageable.

The present fuel emergency reveals a historic and abiding shortcoming of our government; namely, that it is competent at managing crises, incompetent at anticipating them.

FROM 1945 TO 1973 there were some within every administration who perceived what was coming, but they met a stone wall at every turn.

When James Forrestal was secretary of defense as far back as 1947, he pleaded with other officials of the Truman administration and with leading congressmen to see what the United States could and should do to safeguard its sources of oil in the Middle East.

"Middle East oil," he told one senator, "is going to be necessary for this country not merely in wartime but in peacetime."

In his public addresses and in his private conversations, he warned that "because of the rapid depletion of American oil reserves and an equally rapid rising curve of consumption, we would have to develop resources" to meet those needs inside and outside the United States.

Nobody listened.

SHORTLY THEREAFTER, Ambassador George F. Kennan began warning that the "western world was vulnerable to Soviet influence" in the Middle East and said he could "see only one answer . . . reduce our dependence on the resources and facilities in question."

Nobody listened.

Two university scientists, Lawrence Rocks and Richard Runyon, wrote a book laced with facts to alert the nation to the emerging energy crisis. They had terrible trouble and delays in getting a publisher and, when the book finally came out, few newspapers paid it any attention. The reviews were scanty. It just didn't seem important.

What, then, has been the underlying cause of our failure to recognize and act upon the energy crisis until it almost overwhelmed us? It was a failure of political leadership on the part of five presidents and a dozen congresses. The American people never had a chance to demand action because they never had the facts effectively presented to them.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Washington Offers Lesson For Legislators

Thanks for your editorial regarding a bill by a Los Angeles state senator to give legislators another $1,920 raise in addition to their 30 bucks a day — for what!

A current national magazine reports the legislators in the state of Washington voted themselves a 193 per cent pay hike.

One man, as you and I, was burned up and he did something about it. He needed 188,000 signatures in just three weeks to put on the ballot a sensible pay boost of 5½ per cent. People liked what they heard and saw and 700,000 signed up. It was the biggest referendum victory in the state's history.

Perhaps some of the California politicians would do well to see what can happen when the voters are rubbed too long the wrong way.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

The New Alternative Arrives In Lagunitas And Elsewhere

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

This, claims the Council for Basic Education in its February bulletin, may be the year of the new alternative in the public schools.

What CBE refers to is what Diane Divoky calls "an old-fangled alternative" in the lead article of the February issue of Learning magazine.

In Marin's two-school Lagunitas Elementary School District it is called the "ABC program," w th ABC standing for "advanced basic capabilities."

In Cupertino Elementary District in Santa Clara County, it is the "A-plus" program. In Pasadena Unified District, it is the "fundamental" program. But whatever the name, it is the new alternative. And the new alternative is very much like the old grammar school education brought up to date.

UNTIL LAST YEAR, the only alternative offered pupils in any public school was likely to be a left-of-center, free choice, open classroom, unstructured type of education. A long series of federally funded demonstration programs across the nation all fell within this loose frame.

A lot of parents didn't like this. "As they saw it," Miss Divoky wrote in the Learning magazine article, "their kids have been getting gerbils and cozy reading corners and something called self-directed learning stations, while they, the parents, got guidance conferences in which the teacher explained how the children are interrelating and having a lot of fun — and what in God's name has all that to do with school?"

That was the way quite a few Lagunitas parents looked at it when the district's second school was built for an open classroom situation as the alternative to the existing program of self-contained classrooms but only partially structured curriculum.

IN RESPONSE to parent demands, Lagunitas added "ABC" in the fall of '72. School opened that year with about 150 pupils in open classroom, 170 in the old program (now labeled "academic plus") and 75 in the new ABC program, in first through sixth grades.

Now, according to Supt. Harry F. Roche, the same grades have about 110 in open classroom, 160 in "academic plus" — and 90 in "ABC." The "old fangled alternative" has grown while the other two have declined.

Pupils are allowed to change programs in the Lagunitas schools to find where they fit best. And the growth of "ABC", according to Superintendent Roche, results from pupil requests as well as parent requests.

CUPERTINO STARTED its "A-plus" program last fall — also at the demand of parents. That district, which also was offering an open-classroom alternative, did nothing to encourage the traditionalist option. It even denied bus transportation to the one school where "A-plus" is offered. But in spite of official discouragement, there are now six traditional academix "A-plus" classes in operation.

Pasadena also offered the new "old-fangled alternative" for the first time last fall. The district's administrators proposed it be in just one school — an abandoned junior high building designed for 1,000 pupils. But nearly 3,000 applied. So the John Marshall Fundamental School, as the district calls it, is serving as pilot project this year with plans to expand the traditionalist approach to other schools next fall.

Interestingly, the percentage of black and Chicano pupils among those applying for Pasadena's fundamental school differed little from their percentages in the school community as a whole.

ELSEWHERE ACROSS the nation, a similar trend toward a structured academic curriculum and more of what many educators have sneeringly called "rote learning" is developing. One school system where the trend has been in evidence for three years is Louisville, Ky. And the Louisville schools boast of "extremely dramatic gains" in reading and mathematics in those three years. A district newsletter notes that it isn't enough for a child to feel good when he sits down with a book — if he still can't read the book.

Wouldn't it be amusing if the "wave of the future" turned out to be what a lot of parents have been asking all along?

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

March 6, 1964

Marin County Parks-Recreation Director Kelvin J. Nelson refused to make public maps showing lands proposed for park acquisition, saying that to do so might jeopardize land gifts to the county.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said he would be willing to run for that office again.

20 YEARS AGO

March 6, 1954

County Clerk George S. Jones said Marin County voter registration for the June primary was down more than 5,000 from that for the 1952 presidential election. Republicans led Democrats 23,282 to 19,783.

Marin County planned to locate a veterans' memorial building, armory and fairgrounds exhibit buildings on the first 50 acres of a planned 140-acre fairgrounds in Santa Venetia.

ONE OF A KIND — The West German nuclear-powered freighter Otto Hahn may be joined soon by other such vessels as rise in cost of conventional fuels makes nuclear power more competitive.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Nuclear Ships Receive Boost From Fuel Crisis

By DAVID R. FRANCIS

BONN, W. Germany — Every few weeks the West German nuclear ship Otto Hahn steams into Bremen or another North European port with a load of phosphate or ore from Africa.

It is the only atomic-powered commercial vessel in the West currently in operation.

Experts believe, however, it may be joined by dozens of others in the 1980's. With the dramatic rise in the cost of fuels, the economic competitiveness of nuclear ships has startingly improved.

ONLY TWO WEEKS ago a group of West German organizations met with some British counterparts to discuss construction of a demonstration 80,000-shaft horsepower container ship. (Shaft horsepower is used in maritime comparisons). It will be the largest peaceful nuclear ship yet built.

If all goes well, construction should start by the end of 1975. Actually, plans for building this successor to the 16,870-ton, 10,000-shp NS Otto Hahn were well under way before the start of the oil crisis last fall.

A study completed last year found that a ship of 70,000 to 80,000 shp would be competitive with a conventional oil-fired ship, presuming several were built.

Even a 50,000-shp nuclear ship would now be competitive.

INTEREST HAS already risen sharply in the United States and Japan.

In Washington, the maritime administration has been pushing a draft law that would permit the federal government to subsidize nuclear ship construction.

The first American nuclear ship, the freighter NS Savannah, was completed in 1962. After its experimental usefulness had been essentially concluded, it was decommissioned in 1972.

In Japan, the NS Matsu, a 10,400-ton research and freight vessel, was completed last year. Facing considerable public antipathy to its atomic character, it has not been allowed to leave port to begin operations. Observers here suspect it will be permitted to do so after general elections in Japan next summer.

IT IS NOT generally known that the number of nuclear reactors on ships in submarines and surface warships (about 200 units) is considerably larger than the number of nuclear reactors used in power stations (end of 1972 — 152).

However, other than the Savannah, Otto Hahn, and Matsu, the only nuclear ship with a peaceful purpose is the first one, the Soviet icebreaker NS Lenin. It was completed in 1959. Since then it has been substantially rebuilt.

The technical and economic problems in constructing large nuclear ships are no longer considered a serious hindrance.

Since uranium deposits are scattered in many countries, the experts say the possibility of uranium producers forming a successful price-hiking cartel is not high.

Even should uranium costs rise rapidly, fuel costs are a less important factor for nuclear ships than for conventional ships. This is partially because the preparation and reprocessing of the fuel amounts to 75 per cent of the fuel cycle costs. In addition, nuclear reactors need recharging with fuel only every few years. Thus fuel supply fluctuations should have little effect.

ONE FURTHER advantage of nuclear ships is that they are pollution free — no oil slicks, no smoke.

The economic disadvantage of nuclear ships is their high capital costs. The West German-British container ship, if several are built, will cost some 50 per cent more than a similar conventional ship.

Lower operating costs, through cheaper fuel and the elimination of most bunkering (refueling) time, are expected to more than offset the high capital costs after a few years.

The major unsolved problem for nuclear ships is liability insurance. The experts maintain they are safe.

Apparently important maritime nations are less certain. Some insist on $500 million of risk insurance, an impossible amount for private shipowners to purchase. Such insurance problems have effectively banned the Otto Hahn from ports in Britain, the United States, and Canada, for instance.

However, a 1962 Brussels convention regulating the liability of owners of nuclear ships, which would limit the liability to about $150 million, will become binding this year if ratified by the West German parliament.

Taxpayer Group Seeks Members

The Marin County Taxpayers Association is conducting a membership drive, soliciting memberships from homeowners in the county.

The association also is engaged in a campaign to bring about a change in the assessment law for residential property, according to Robert Weidenmayer, president.

He said in a letter to prospective members that "the hoped-for tax relief as a result of SB 90 cannot be attained without a positive curb on the assessment spiral."

The association, which mainly works toward lowering property taxes, now has about 200 members, Weidenmayer said.

Plans U.S. Visit

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon will visit the United States from May 2-9 before going to Canada, a Kensington Palace spokesman said today.

Pope Is Ailing With Influenza

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul is ill with influenza and has canceled all audiences for the week, Vatican sources said today.

The Vatican announced the Pope was suspending all engagements during the week due to the Lenten period which began one week ago. The Pope's last public appearance was on Sunday, when he gave his weekly noon blessing in St. Peter's Square.

The Vatican sources said the Pope had been advised to rest.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

Proper tire and suspension system maintenance are vital to obtaining maximum tire mileage. Montgomery Ward will therefore rotate your tires and inspect your suspension system free of charge every 5,000 miles, for the entire guaranteed mileage, at any of its retail or catalog branches having tire installation facilities. Wheel alignment and balance service available, at regular charge.
